NEW YORK'S INSANE. (Continued from first page.) Enough Crazy People In the State to donna and the poorest players there mor than any earthly Gottschalk. Oh, that music room, the headquarters of cadence and rhythm, symphony and chant, psalm and antiphon! May we be there some hour when Haydn sits at the keys of one of his own oratorios, and David the psalmist fingers the harp, and Miriam of the Red sea banks claps the cymbals, and Gabriel puts his lips to the trumpet and the four and twenty elders chant, and Lind and Parepa render matchless duet in the music room of the old heavenly homestead! "In my Father's house are many rooms.' Room For the Family.

Another room in our Father's house will be the family room. It may correspond somewhat with the family room on earth. At morning and evening, you know, that is the place we now meet. Though every member of the household have a separate room, in the family room they all gather, and joys and sorrows and experiences of all styles are there rehearsed. Sacred room in all our dwellings, whether it be luxurious with ottomans and divans and books in Russian lids standing in mahogany case or there be only a few plain chairs and a cradle. So the family room on high will be the place where the kinsfolk assemble and talk over the family experiences of earth, the weddings, the births, the burials, the festal days of Christmas and Thanksgiving reunion. Will the children departed remains children there? Will the aged remain aged there? Oh, no! Everything is perfect there. The child will go ahead to glorified maturity, and the aged will go back to glorified maturity. The rising sun of the one will rise to meridian, and the descending sun of the other will return to meridian. However much we love our children on earth, we would consider it a domestic disaster if they staid children, and so we rejoice at their growth here. And when we meet in the family room of our Father's house we will be glad that they have grandly and gloriously matured, while our parents, who were aged and infirm here, we shall be glad to find restored to the most agile and vigorous immortality there. If 40 or 45 or 50 years be the apex of physical and mental life on earth, then the heavenly childhood will advance to that, and the heavenly old age will retreat to that. When we join them in that family room, we shall have much to tell them. We shall want to know of them, right away, such things as these: Did you see us in this or that or the other struggle? Did you know when we lost our property and sympa thize with us? Did you know we had that awful sickness? Were you hovering anywhere around us when we plunged into that memorable accident? Did you know of our backsliding? Did you know of that moral victory? Were you pleased when we started for heaven? Did you celebrate the hour of our conversion? And then, whether they know it or not, we will tell them all. But they will have more to tell us than we to tell them. Ten years on earth may be very eventful, but what must be the biography of ten years in heaven? They will have to tell us the story of coronations, story of news from all immensity, story of conquerors and hierarchs, story of wrecked or ransomed planets, story of angelic vicory over diabolic revolts, of extinguish ed suns, of obliterated constellations, of new galaxies kindled and swung, of stranded comets, of worlds on fire, and story of Jehovah's majestic reign. If in that family room of our Father's house we have so much to tell them of what we have passed through since we parted, how much more thrilling and arousing that which they have to tell us of what they have passed through since we parted! Surely that family room will be one of the most favored rooms in all our Father's house. What long lingering there, for we shall never again be in a hurry! 'Let me open a window," said a humble Christian servant to Lady Raffles, who, because of the death of her child, had shut herself up in a dark room and refused to see any one. "You have been

Review of Reviews for November.—
Cecil Rhodes, the man who has done more than any other Englishman to give the English-speaking race a foot-hold in South Africa, and hence is indirectly, if not directly, responsible for the differences between the British Government and President Kruger that have culminated in war, is the subject of an elaborate character sketch by Mr. W. T. Stead in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for November. Mr. Stead was the original "discoverer" of Mr. Rhodes and has for many years been on terms of intimacy with the millionaire-statesman. His sketch is the only authentic biography of Rhodes ever published.

President Schurman's thoughtful address to the Cornell students on "The Problem of Territorial Expansion" appears in a revised How would it do for my sermon to leave you in that family room today? Territorial Expansion" appears in a revise and authorized form in this number. Presi dent Schurman's position as chairman of the Philippine commission just about to meet in am sure there is no room in which you would rather stay than in the enraptured circle of your ascended and glorified kinsfolk. Washington gives special importance to expressed opinions on this subject. Ladies' Home Journal for November The Thanksgiving Ladies' Home Journal presents itself in a seasonable and attractive dress, and is a number of unusual excellence. In its practical features and departments con ideration has been given to every need of the sideration has been given to every need of the home. There are suggestions for Christmas presents, instruction in china painting, cooking, lace making, domestic economy; the newest things in woman's attire are shown, and new games and entertainments presented. Among the literary features of general interest are "How the Next Census will be Taken," "How a Play is Written" and "The Anecdotal Side of Robert E. Lee," Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In Fis Steps," contributes an article, "Is Christianity Practical in Worldly Affairs?" and Sir Henry Irving writes on "The Study of Shakespeare in Small Communities" By The Cartis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. cents per copy. McClure's Magazine for November.—A poem by Rudyard Kipling on the Transvaal crisis, entitled "The King." is a feature of the November number of McClure's Magazine. In order to get the poem in time for that number, the editors had it cabled from England. Dr. Frederick A. Cook contributes to the November number the story of his adventures with the Belgian Antartic expedition of last year. The members of this expedition were the first men to pass a winter in the Antartic: they were in the south polarice-pack continuously for thirteen months. Dr. Cook's article will be illustrated from photographs taken by himself. Mr. A. H. Ford, who has lately returned from China, describes the miracle in railroad construction that Russia is working in completing the Chinese Eastern—the last section of her great trans-continental line; and tells of the invaluable service rendered her by American invention, skill and enterprise. The article will be fully illustrated from photographs secured by the author in his journey. McClure's Magazine for November .- A

Scribner's Magazine for November.-Mr Scribner's Magazine for November.—Mr. Sylvester Baxter tells the story of "The Great November Storm of 1898," in the November Scribner's. One of the most destructive storms ever known on the New England coast, it was the occasion for many stirring incidents associated with the irresistible power of the wind and sea. Mr. Baxter gives a vivid impression of the development and climax of the storm, with many details, and of the gradual realization in the public mind of the great loss of life and property involved. The iterations by H. W. Ditzler are from great loss of life and property involved. The plustrations by H. W. Ditzler are from sketches made on the coast during the week following the storm, and convey a spirited

he still proposes to remain identified with Maine and will for a time at least maintain his residence in Portland. He says that the people of Maine are the ones who have enabled him to gain his standing in the world and are the ones who have always displayed lively interest in his activity.

"And with all his metropolitan finish Mr. Reed will never be anything else than a Yankee, not only in his mannerisms, but in his tastes. About the first question that one of his close friends asked him when he arrived in Portland from his European trip and stated that he had firmly made up his mind to resign was:

"But aren't you just a little bit sorry to get out? Aren't you inclined to have a little regret at leaving such a place?"

"Not the least bit in the world,' replied the congressman, with beaming Maine and will for a time at least mainplied the congressman, with beaming

The Lewiston (Me.) Journal says:
"One of the most interesting points in connection with Mr. Reed's departure for New York is this: He will not dispose of his residence in Portland, nor will he sell his cottage at Grand Beach. In fact, it is intimated that Mr. Reed has stated quite plainly to his friends that he still proposes to remain identified with Maine and will for a time at least main.
