

We are sure that all the nations they have subdued would rise in arms to recover their liberties. That such fears should prevail, perhaps none will be surprized, who are sensible of the effects of lunacy. We would if possible, in charity to their fears, wait them to that planet under whose influence they appear to act.— But here, forsooth, we fear they would discover the spectre of Napoleon, riding in balloons on the wings of the wind, in pursuit of them. Where we witness these fears, fellow citizens, let us pity that depression of spirits which gives them birth. But be cautious how we select such men as our military officers or legislators. For the coward will surrender at discretion at the first summons, and a fear admitted into public councils betrays like treason." (To be continued.)

Latest Foreign Intelligence.

NEW YORK, July 23: Yesterday arrived at this port, the brig Luna, Southworth, from Tonningen, which port she left on the 3d of June.

Captain S. informs us, that American vessels and property were not molested at Tonningen—that no new decree for sequestrating American property had lately been issued, and that the markets were tolerably good.

Capt. S further adds, that it was rumored, the French were speedily going to take possession of Siralsund and Sietin.

The Luna came through the English Channel, and on the 7th of June, off the Isle of Wight, spoke a British vessel, and captain S obtained a file of London papers to the 5th of June inclusive, which he has obligingly favored the editors of the Mercantile Advertiser with, from which they have made the following extracts.

The raising of the American Embargo was not known in London on the 5th of June.

LONDON, June 5. This morning we received a variety of German Gazettes to the 24th ult. The principal articles of intelligence are given in the following extracts:

Extract of a letter from Helsingberg, dated May 24

"There has been an engagement between an English merchant ship and a Danish lugger, commanded by lieutenant Senlerup, in which the Dane was beat off with the loss of two men killed and two wounded. Three sail of the line are in the Belts, one of them bearing an admiral's flag; they sent boats ashore on the island of Sprogoe. A Swedish merchant ship has been detained by the gun boats at Elsinour. A convoy of eighty sail has passed Nyborg. English troops have landed on the island of Sprogoe from the three sail of the line; it was supposed that the island was taken possession of for a watering place."

It appears from the Paris papers, to the 30th ult. that the expectations entertained by the Court of St Petersburg of a vigorous co operation on the part of the Servians against the Turks have been completely disappointed. The Russian corps that passed over the right bank of the Danube, has been obliged to return precipitately. Murat affects to make preparations for the invasion of Sicily.

The intelligence brought by the Gottenburg mails has created an unusual sensation of alarm among all commercial men. The hope that Sir James Saumarez had mistaken the tenor of his instructions, however, in some degree allayed their fears. In order to ascertain this important point, a deputation of merchants were this day to apply to the Board of Trade. Had our government intended that the Swedish ports should be formally blockaded, there is no doubt but the usual notice of this intention would have been given to the ministers or consuls of foreign powers. Such a notice was published in the Gazette, when the blockade of several of the French ports took place; but has not hitherto made its appearance with respect to the Swedish harbours. So much alarm had been excited at Gottenburg, by the measures adopted by Sir James Saumarez, that several respectable merchants came in the packet, for the purpose of obtaining a proper understanding on that subject. To a question put to Sir J. Saumarez by the American consul, "Whether Americans coming or going direct with their own produce would require licences?" He replied, "That he considered the regulations as meaning to exclude all vessels indiscriminately, unless they were provided with licences." We fear that should Sir James have rightly interpreted his instructions, this measure will prove a fresh source of contention with America, at a time when the most amicable settlement of differences was expected to take place.

From Embden, under the date of the 26th of last month, we learn that the intelligence from South Holland was unfavorable; that all colonial produce beyond the Maecze had been seized, and that the unfortunate Louis had been ordered again to repair to Paris.

Some letters were yesterday received in town from New York, by a vessel arrived at Liverpool. They state that the two branches of the Legislature had agreed to the adjournment of Congress on the 24th of April, leaving certain discretionary powers vested in the President.

Mr. Windham, a member of parliament, died on the 4th of June. Several passengers were brought on shore to Hastings, on Sunday, from a vessel in distress in the offing. The vessel proved to be one from Dieppe. These passengers state, as the latest rumors when they sailed, that the new bride proposed for Ferdinand VII, is a daughter of Lucien Bonaparte; that accounts had been received of an insurrection having lately taken place at Naples; and that general Sebastiani, apprehensive of some summary investigation of transactions in Spain, was reported to have destroyed himself.

Banks of the Maine, May 14. We read in the Borne Gazette that Gustavus Adolphus IV. has refused the annual pension of 30,000 crowns, which the states of Sweden had assigned him, and that this prince will only enjoy his private revenue. He has requested, it is said of Professor Zang, at Basle to choose a governor for his son.

At Plymouth—The Thomas, Vimberon, from Baltimore, and the Eliza & Ann, from Philadelphia.

Boston, July 21. Many persons have been wondering, for some time, that though the intelligence from Cadiz was recent, nothing had been communicated through that channel respecting the affairs in the South of Spain. We now clearly perceive the cause of it, by London papers by the arrival from Bristol, to the 2d of June, stating that the army of general O'Donnell had been completely defeated near Letida, by that of general Suchet, with an immense loss, and 6000 taken prisoners.—And that of general Frazer, (successor to general Blake) in the province of Murcia, had been scattered to the winds by the corps commanded by gen. Sebastian, who had afterwards entered the capital, and Frazer with those of his soldiers that could escape, had taken refuge in Carthage.

A letter received at Dublin by a gentleman of respectability, from his correspondent, who is a captain in the army, serving with Lord Wellington, positively states, that in consequence of the numerous reinforcements the French had lately received, Lord Wellington had determined on the immediate evacuation of Portugal.

The duke of Albuquerque had arrived in London, minister from the Spanish regency.

Port of Baltimore.

From the Merchants' Coffee-House Books. July 25.

Arrived, schr. Caroline, Fairchild, 12 days from Porto Rico—coffee and sugar.—Jonathan Hudson.—Left there 13th inst a northern sloop, the only American in port. Sailed in co. with the schr. Richard, Clow, for New York; schr. Union, for Plymouth; and sloop Margaret, Sutton, for New York.

It was reported at Porto Rico, that it was the intention of government to send off all the French inhabitants, in the same manner as had been done in Cuba.—Many of them were so well convinced of it that they were making the best preparations they could to meet the catastrophe with the least possible injury.

Also, the brig Rising Sun, Burr, 24 days from Carthage—sustic and hides.—John M'Faddin. Sailed 30th June.—Left schr. Hope, of Baltimore, uncertain; schr. Thorn Sutor, of Philadelphia, in 20 days.—No other Americans 8th inst. in sight of Jamaica, spoke schr. Aurora, of and from Charleston for Jamaica. 11th, schr. Sally, of Philadelphia, in sight of Cape Nicholas Mole for Jamaica.—Saw nothing in the Bay bound up.

On the 18th June, a revolution took place in Carthage and the governor sent off to Havana. The whole of the business was effected in a few hours.—The old governor who was formerly dismissed by the junta of Spain was chosen by the revolutionists to head the present government.

There was no accounts from St. Fee.—The committee were sitting forming new regulations, and the merchants had petitioned to have the duties on imports reduced to ten per cent.—and those on exports taken instantly off. They profess allegiance to Ferdinand the 7th, but reject the Spanish Junta.
