

GOOD ADVICE

It contained in the following extract from an address, published in Mr. Hartig's Gazette, to the electors of that district, concerning public affairs, and particularly as it relates to the election of representatives for the next Congress.

What is to become of our vessel of state? Who is to guide her through this raging storm, which shakes the foundations of the ocean, and causes the seamen to tremble in their watery habitations? Is it not virtually essential, that an able captain and experienced seamen should command her, to prevent her wrecking upon the innumerable shoals and rocks by which she is environed? She may have an able pilot at the helm; but unless she has also skillful seamen, she must wreck, she must sink, she must go the bottom. To be plain, we must be represented by an enlightened and energetic Congress, to aid the Executive in rescuing us from our present difficulties and dangers. The belligerent powers of the old world have outraged our persons, seized and confiscated our property in port and on the ocean, and have been suffered to riot in their pilfered spoils with perfect impunity. The British king, your implacable foe, has caused your fellow citizens to be forcibly taken from your ships; his piratical subjects have murdered your people in cold blood within the jurisdictional limits of his native land; and the decks of your national ship have been deluged with the blood of your most valuable seamen. To make reparation for the last outrage and indignity, a minister was sent to delude and amuse you; and to wind up the plot of this tragic drama, the vice and insouciant Jackson landed on your shores, to corrupt your citizens, and to insult your government. Wrong has been committed, insult succeeded insult, until forbearance becomes a crime, and moderation a test of the most baneful cowardice. What then is to be done? The time is fast approaching, when you will be called upon to elect representatives to Congress. Every motive should prompt you to elect such men only as are bold, firm, and of a dauntless character. Let not such a Congress as the present, represent you after the 4th of March next; they are timid, fluctuating, and imbecile, and unworthy of your suffrages.

Extract of a letter dated Fort Stoddert, (Sept.), July 1, 1810

"I am sorry to inform you that our neighbors at Mobile have for some weeks past been in much alarm under the apprehensions of a predatory expedition from this settlement under colour of avenging our wrongs, and liberating the citizens of the United States in this quarter from the payment of Spanish tribute. They think that they have demonstrative evidence of the existence of such a conspiracy among us. For my own part I have doubted it, because I have seen no external evidence of it. Possibly, however, the idea of forming a confederacy for the purpose of attacking Mobile, may have existed, or may now exist—but I do not believe that men of property will put their all so much hazard; nor do I think that they will be readily led away by a doctrine advanced here, that as the Florida are not possessed by any prince now acknowledged by the Federal government, to attack them will be no violation of the law, prohibiting expeditions against the territories of powers with which the United States are at peace. Be this however as it will, the Spaniards have very imprudently collected, as I am told, a body of 400 Indians; the consequence of which will inevitably be, that if any depredations should be committed by them upon our settlement, even peaceable and prudent men will be drawn into an indirect support of the wicked machinations of the lawless; and will in defence of themselves and their property, feel impelled to take vengeance on the savages and their employers. I am in hopes, however, that the Indians have no serious purpose, beyond that of eating Spanish beef."

ALBANY, August 14.

COLVIE'S ORATIONS.

The arrival of Mr. Ogilvie in this city is announced by his advertisement in our columns of this day. This gentleman has acquired a high degree of celebrity in several of our sister states as an Orator, deeply versed in the art, or rather art of elocution. In the capital of Virginia, where he long resided, and in the neighbourhood of one of the most classical seminaries in the Union, his orations were generally admired as correct models both of composition and delivery. His reputation in that vicinity was such, as could not fail to gratify the most ardent love of fame; of which it would be no compliment either to his head or heart, to suppose him destitute. In his peregrinations, since he left that capital, in Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston, we have uniformly observed that his efforts in one of the most difficult, as well as most useful and agreeable of the polite arts, have been crowned with general and unequalled applause. These facts are the best evidence of the superior merit of Mr. Ogilvie in the provision to which he has devoted himself; and we state them only in satisfaction of that claim which real merit shall ever possess to our exertions to promote its advancement and prosperity. [Register.]

BOSTON, August 16.

Arrived at this port, on Tuesday evening, the Cygnes, captain Purrington, in 49 days from Liverpool. The papers by this arrival are to June 25; but they contain very little intelligence of any interest to the American reader:—The last date states, "That the island of St. Marion, in the Adriatic, had been captured by the English; that the Dutch fleet were being up for some expedition; that a French consul had arrived at Stralsund, so as to the shipping, and closed the magazines and warehouses; that the captains and part of the crews of two vessels had been shot for violating the prohibition imposed by the anti commercial decrees of Bonaparte; that the duke of Oldenburg, a near relation of the emperor Alexander, was mentioned as the successor to the throne of Sweden."

COMMERCIAL INFORMATION.

A letter from a respectable commercial house in Liverpool, of date of June 27, contains the following Prices and Remarks:

PRICES

Ashes, Pot, 56 a 58; Pearl, 54 a 56; Cotton, Upland, 14 a 15; New Orleans, 15 a 18; Sea Island, 16 a 20; Flour, 64 a 68—Tia, 25 a 27—Turpentine, 13 a 15—Pitch, 11 a 13—Siccas, pipe, w. o. 23 a 31; hhd 14 a 21; hhd 10 a 16—Timber, Mas. Oak 1 1/2; 4 1/2 a 4 1/2; pine, 3 1/2 a 4; hardwood, 3 1/2 a 4; lathwood, 17 1/2 a 18; ash, oak rafters, 4 1/2 a 5; pine boards and planks, 8d a 9d; oak do. do. 10d a 12—Tobacco, Carolina and Georgia, 2d a 4d.

REMARKS.

"In our preceding printed letter, we had the pleasure to anticipate the return of regular commerce, which event being now happily realized, we sit down with great satisfaction to renew our prices of, and remarks on, American produce at this market; and, although a general reduction in currency has been consequent thereon, yet the returns now to be made, will no doubt be more satisfactory than higher ones, obtained as heretofore, through irregular channels. In respect to ashes—the demand for Pearl has been for some time past very limited, but sufficient to keep pace with the late uncertain supplies, and no considerable stock had accumulated. Of Potash, the market previous to the recent arrivals, was quite cleared, at good prices for exportation; but, in consequence of some obnoxious news on the two governments, as regarded the articles to be admitted respectively, the granting of French licenses has been suspended, and their renewal being uncertain, that vent is for the present closed; but we still think the annexed currency, or nearly so, will be maintained, unless the supplies are immoderate. The same cause has also given a serious check to the sales of Logwood which was an admitted article of export; and good Campeachy Wood in Bond, was up to 361 per ton. The price is now uncertain, and rapidly declining, and nothing but a renewed export will keep it above 201 or 211 per ton. Grain and Flour, on the contrary, have been benefited, and are in steady demand at our quotations, with every appearance of maintaining them. Rice is not expected to go below our quotations. Cottons have fallen to very reasonable prices, the demand lately has been brisk, and we do not look for any further depression of moment, particularly in Orleans and Georgia Uplands, of fair and good quality. Bark is fast declining, and its price just now quite uncertain. Clover seed continues to be sought after, a short supply for next season being apprehended from the excessive dryness of the weather. For Flax seed there is no demand but for crushing, and its price is very low. In Naval Stores here is a very dull market, Turpentine being reduced to a very low ebb, and no prospect of improvement. Tar continues in better state, owing to our supplies from the North of Europe being so very precarious, and we expect 25s. per barrel or upwards, will be supported for the present. Our stock of Tobacco has of late been constantly augmenting, and the demand being no way equal thereto, the market is greatly overstocked, and prices have in consequence been almost daily growing lower. The sales of Timber and Lumber, have, until within the few days, been very lively; but the arrivals already from the United States, under the new state of things, having been considerable, and further ones daily expected, a pause in the market has succeeded, and a consequent reduction of about 4d to 6d. per foot on price of Pine, and on other articles in proportion; we confidently anticipate, however, that should any further decline occur, the den and will so far revive, as to hold prices within a trifle of the present rates, which may be considered very favourable to the shipper."

NEW YORK, Aug. 18

LATEST FROM TONNINGEN. By the brig Alfred, Bryan in 50 days from Tonnigen, we learn verbally, that it was feared all American vessels and property would shortly share a similar fate to those at St. Sebastians; that several ships' papers had been seized and sent to Copenhagen. The alarm at Tonnigen was so great, that several American vessels were preparing to sail in ballast. We understand letters have been received by the Alfred, confirming the accounts recently received, of the seizure of American vessels at Stralsund and Stettin. [Merc. Ad.]

From the Enquirer.

It is not an uncommon thing in these days, to see merit in plain homespun, while its opposite is gorgeously arrayed in purple and fine linen. The following song, combined with its tune, breathes a spirit cheering to the plain republican heart, and though it may not please every refined amateur, if it affords delight to plain honesty, in the common sense walks of life, and call the reflecting mind back to sentiments and feelings of a whole nation in pursuit of pure and rational liberty, it is enough for me.

Come all ye hearts of temper'd steel, Come, leave your flocks and farms— Your sports, your plays and holy days, And haste away to arms; A soldier is a gentleman, His honour is his life, And he that won't stand by his post, Will never stand by his wife, And he that won't &c.

Sure love and honor are the same, Or are so near allied, That neither can exist alone But flourish side by side; Then farewell sweethearts for a while, Our sweet, dear girls, adieu, But when we've drove those foes away, We'll come and stay with you, But when &c.

We'll chase our foes from post to post, Attack their camps and lines, And by some well concerted schemes, We'll baffle their designs; No foreign power shall make us slaves, No British tyrant reign, 'Twas Independence made us free, And freedom we'll maintain, 'Twas Independence &c.

In shady tents by purling streams, With hearts both firm and free, We'll drive the cares of life away, With songs of liberty; And when the wars are over, boys, We'll sit us down at ease, We'll plow, we'll sow, we'll reap and mow, And do just as we please, We'll plow, we'll sow, &c.

This rising world shall sing of us, Ten thousand years to come, And children to their children tell, The wonders we have done; Brave, honest fellows, here's my hand, My heart—my very soul: With all the joys of liberty, Our sweethearts and our bow; With all the joys of liberty— Our good wives and our bowls, &c
