ENGLISH MARKET.

Cottons, tar and turpentine were in brisk demand, and brought high prices at the latter end of September.
Flaxseed, in request, and advancing.
Flour, wheat and rice, reduced in price and less wanted.
Tobacco, dull sale; and
West-India produce a mere drug.
Hides and logwood lay heavy on hand.
Indigo almost unobtainable, as the export had nearly ceased.

"GROWING PROSPERITY" OF ENGLAND

Omnium Stock is at a discount of 7 or 8 per cent. All the funds are depressed; and the prospects of commercial adventurers exceedingly gloomy; heavy losses and fearful forebodings depress the merchants, some of whom have shot themselves in despair. This is the state of things in a country, whose prosperity we were lately told by an Englishman now no more, was an object too great for contemplation.

Some people have an habit of accounting for effects by ascribing them to inadequate causes: thus, we are informed, that the death of Sir Francis Baring reduced stock in the funds 5 1-2 per cent! On this absurdity the Patriot remarks, that it would be more reasonable to attribute the decease of Mr. Baring to the depression of stock.

SCARCITY OF SPECIE.

While we continue to import more than we export, specie must flow from our country—for, even our good friends the English would not take in payment the notes of the United States Bank; although they own so much of its stock—Yet, we are seriously told to renew the charter of that bank, and we shall have money enough. What! after it has existed near twenty years, and paper circulates in three times the quantity that money does.

Let us not destroy the body part with quick medicines; nor incur pain and evil under pretence of removing temporary inconvenience.

Let congress and the state governments give activity to internal industry in agriculture, mechanic arts and manufactures; let them encrease the duties on importations from India and elsewhere, and we shall soon regain our proper station, and share of specie!

The particular and immediate cause of the present scarcity is the artificial arrangement made by English agents to procure payment for the immense quantities of British merchandize imported this season—quantities sufficient perhaps for several years consumption.

We learn, that the body of Mr. Michael O'Brien, of Fell's Point, was taken up yesterday near County wharf; where he was drowned several days ago. We do not recollect the time when so many fatal accidents of this sort occurred as have happened within the last ten days.

The official paper of the British government relating to Spanish affairs, will surprise those who perused a few days ago the dispatches from the deputies of Caracas to their government, and who recollect the overtures of col. Robertson was authorized to make to the provincial government of Venezuela. The British government has found itself in a singular Spanish American dilemma, and after dismissing the words and fair promises, has published its declaration to the Junta of Spain, which would be equivocal in its meaning, but for the commentary which we find in the ministerial prints of a contemporaneous date. Speaking of the blockade of Caracas declared by the Junta of Spain, the Times of Sept 5, says, "We are as much bound to respect this order of blockade as if there were not a French soldier in the whole peninsula." If they are to respect this blockade, what has become of the engagement to protect the trade of Venezuela against all attempts to destroy it? This official paper is nothing more than a flimsy veil thrown over her double dealing with the Spanish Junta. It is absurd in the extreme for the British ministry to hold out the idea that they would oppose any dismemberment of the kingdom, when they have contemned the authority of the regency by authorising a confidential agent to tempt the South American provinces to depart from its orders, and establish a separate commercial treaty with them. (See, &c.)

THE ORICANT.

The Oricant, captain Andrews, arrived at Marblehead, was taken off Christian-sand by a Danish privateer and brought to anchor, when three Danish custom-house officers came on board to take command of the ship; but captain A told them that he must make the best of his way home, and not wishing to be detained, he weighed anchor and proceeded on his voyage to Marblehead, where he arrived on Wednesday last, with the three Danish custom house officers on board. (Boston Patriot.)

NEW-YORK, November 5.

Extracts from London papers to the 28th September, received at the office of the Mercantile Advertiser, by the ship India, Terry.

LONDON, Sept. 15

A gentleman who left Koenigsburg as late as the end of last month, informs us that it was generally believed there that war would in a short time be declared by Russia against France. The motive of hostility was stated to be, that since the election of Bernadotte, to the dignity of crown prince of Sweden, an intimation had been given by Bonaparte, that the surrender of Finland to its former sovereign must be the consequence of that appointment. The same person adds that no idea was entertained that Frederick William would retire to a private station to transfer his sceptre to the prince of Neuchatel.

September 18
Three American vessels, the first since the raising of the embargo, have entered the river Garonne, laden chiefly with tobacco, rice and cotton. It would be satisfactory to know how they could have been apprised of Bonaparte's change of disposition towards the United States previous to their sailing from America; for without some positive information they would not surely have entered a French port, where certain confiscation awaited them.

September 19.
Messengers sailed on Saturday and Monday for Mr. McKenzie at Moulins.—We suspect nothing can be done to bring the negotiation for the exchange of prisoners to a successful termination. One demand is made after another, and every acquiescence is succeeded by a fresh demand—the prisoner is alternately the prey of hope and disappointment; of joy and fear. Our government has, we learn, sent a positive and final answer to the last dispatches—the French refuse, Mr McKenzie will come home.
Stocks were better this morning, and the attempts to continue the depression of the funds, are likely to be defeated, as they ought to be.

September 22
The following very distressing information has been posted at Lloyd's. It rests on the authority of a private letter, received this morning by a house of the first respectability in the city:
"Gottenburg, Sept. 10.
"We have just heard, that out of a convey of thirty five sail, bound to the Baltic, twenty one have been lost with all their crews, a few days ago, not far from Marstrand."
N. B. The Gottenburg list, received this day is of the same date as the letter, and makes no mention of the circumstance.

September 24.
This forenoon arrived two Gottenburg mails, the contents of which are rather important. The king of Sweden continues so much indisposed that there is some probability that the lately elected Crown Prince will soon assume the reins of government. A Treaty of Alliance, offensive and defensive, between France and Austria, is talked of, and a war with Russia is mentioned as its primary object.

September 25.
We have received more German papers, from which we have made more extracts. Bonaparte, it is said, has postponed his intention of visiting Holland till next spring. A letter from Paris says, that Massena has manoeuvred so as to force the English to a battle in Portugal, and that the result is impatiently expected.

DEATH OF MR. ABRAHAM GOLDSMIDT.
Never was there a scene of greater confusion than it was during the whole of this morning. Business seemed at a stand, and the stock exchange and the avenues leading to it were crowded to excess, to ascertain the particulars of an event we are about to mention. It is the death of Mr. Abraham Goldsmidt, one of the great contractors for the loan—and we grieve to add, by his own hand. He shot himself this morning about 8 o'clock, at his house at Merton. The state of the public funds—the attempts against, (which we adverted to some time ago,) and consequent depression of the loan—perhaps too, the recent death of one of the contractors, sir Francis Baring, had for some days produced at times an irritability of temper, and at other a despondency wholly foreign from his natural disposition, which was mild, equable, and cheerful. We have heard that he has of late, when in his office or in his house, burst out in paroxysms against what he declared to be a combination against him, in the midst of which he would burst out from the room. In the moments of his anguish he has been heard to declare, that he suffered more than he could bear. He would then relapse into despondency and silence. But still he was as attentive and active as ever in his business—Our readers have remarked that the funds have fluctuated more within the last three weeks than they have done for months before—Omnium has been at 8 discount. One of the great causes of this depreciation was the futures, which had rendered large sales of stock necessary; money in consequence became scarce, and the difficulty of borrowing great. This was peculiarly unfortunate to those concerned in the loan, which under such circumstances, could not be at discount. When, however, being at 8, it had improved to only 5 1-2 discount, great hope was entertained that it would improve still more. But more futures took place yesterday, and it left off at 6 1-2. Mr Goldsmidt's fortune is said then to have forsaken him, and we have heard that he retired from the stock market yesterday in the deepest despondency. The first intelligence that reached the stock exchange this morning, was, that Mr Goldsmidt had put a period to his existence.

Words would be inadequate to express the surprise, the alarm, and the dismay that was visible.

The first price of three per cents. was 65; they soon fell to 63 1/2, and were at 64 when our paper was put to press—Omnium began at 7 disc. fell to 10, and was at 8 at one o'clock. The stock exchange, chapel court, and even the royal exchange were crowded, all persons eagerly making inquiries about this event, and forgetting almost every thing else. Those concerned in the stock market were making up their accounts, and little or no real business was done. We question whether peace or war suddenly made, ever created such a bustle as the death of Mr. Goldsmidt. Few details have yet transpired, except that he went to Merton last night in the greatest distress of mind—that he rose this morning at the usual hour, and without speaking to any of his family, went into the water closet where he blew his brains out. He expired instantly.

This is the second suicide in Mr. Goldsmidt's family—but the first proceeded from different causes.
Mr Goldsmidt was a man much beloved, liberal, hospitable, and humane. He was the promoter of all charitable institutions; and there are many persons who owe all their success in life to his kindness and protection. Let us hope that such deeds will be accepted as some atonement for his last act committed in a moment of phrenzy and desperation.

September 26.
Paris papers to the 19th instant, arrived last night. The principal articles which they present are two Reports from Massena to Berthier, containing some further details respecting the fall of Almeida. From one of these it appears that 1200 of the Portuguese militia, which, by the terms of the capitulation, were to have returned to their homes, have by their own consent been taken into the French service! The chief variant Portuguese commander, the Marquis D'Alorna, was the agent employed by Massena to corrupt the Portuguese prisoners.

Some of the private accounts received by the Gottenburg mail of yesterday are highly interesting. It appears certain that Napoleon had actually applied to the Danish government for permission to occupy Zealand, not with 25,000 but with 30,000 men; and it appears equally certain that the king of Denmark has given a peremptory refusal. What will this lead to?

That Napoleon has planned the subjugation of all the Northern Powers, or what amounts to the same thing, to set aside the present reigning families, and to elevate his own creatures to their sovereignty, has long been apparent to those who have studied his character and actions. Will the refusal of the king of Denmark to permit the passage of his troops through Holstein alter his views? We think not. Indeed, by the accounts brought by this mail, this appears already to be the case.

September 28.
Letters were yesterday received from Durkirk to the date of the 23d inst. inclosing several licences for the introduction of indigo and spices on the export of the stipulated cargoes of wine, grain, &c. We have also a trait under a new Decree, which is as follows:

Two ships from Oporto have arrived at Plymouth, but we cannot find that they have brought any accounts confirming the intelligence of the retreat of lord Wellington to Lanhaes or Ceia.
There is some reason to believe that by this time a battle has taken place. It was reported this morning that the king of Sweden is no more.
