effusion of blood, and perceiving that no thing could be compared to my patience and bounty if it was only the hardness of heart and inflexibility of the factious, I had decided on the fate of this criminal place, as soon as the two chiefs who suc cessively commanded there, had bit the dust; two of their vessels of war des troyed, in the road offer only their weak carcases; a considerable quantity of can-non, mortaus, municions and provisions of all kinds, is the result of your labors, the price of your valor, and the men who issued forth from the extremity of the South, to plunder you of your most precious effects, forced to surrender at dis cretion, have known that your clemency

19 equal to your valor. Such is always the reward of true courage! Nothing can resist it, because it is nurtured by the fidelity of its chief, guided by honor and inspired with a love of country. Soldiers, and you brave marines who have rivalled the land forces throughout - You whose efforts have mastered the winds, the currents and the waves in a cruize which will be the admiration of the most experienced ma-Miners: The new splendor which your glorious exploits have just reflected on the arms of your chief is your best culogium; in fine, the zeal, constancy, loy alty, fidelity and intrepidity that you have displayed in a hundred battles, necessitated by the most inconceivable rage, are my pride and glory: Yes, I recognize in you, intrepid warriors, founders of liberty & independence; and I glory more than once during this campaign in leading you on to battle. It is pleasing to me to declare, that you have deserved well of your country, and it will be a solace to my heart to decree honourable rewards to those of you who are the most distinguished. But this is little else than illustrating the career of heroes; there is another virtue, another kind of glory of which we ought to give the example You have seen these furious support ers of error, these obstinate pattizans who are a shame to reason and nature-You have seen them, I say, the unfor tun-te children of the south basely aban doned and betrayed by their comrades; after having tasted of the most bitter cup of human disgrace; after having been forced to lay down their arms, to bend before me, acknowledge their errors and implore my forgiveness; they thought to find in me an enraged conqueror; they expected to read in my irritated counce nance their sentence of death! The ungrateful men! they have witnessed no thing but my compassion and the tears their repentance have drawn from my eyes. You Soldiers, soltened by this example, have nobly shared with them they have in you none but brothers; and sick and woulded to full nobpital, increased and taken care of as the instance of your companions. What say 17 The 9 h regiment, that same which You Soldiers, softened by this The 9 h regiment, that same which was the first to raise the standard of revolt, as also the wreck of the 16th, 18th, 21st, 22d, 23d and 24th, made prisoners, are this day astonished to take rank in the armies of Hayu; but let their surprise cease, when they know, that in inflicting chastisement a father is always a father; and let them bring to their recollection these words of the common father of mortals :- " there is more joy in heaven over one lost skeep which is found again, than over a hundred which have never gone astray " Let this characteristic of magnanimity soften the hearts of those who yet fo ment discord or ceress imposture : Let them learn finally that it is good to sa-crifice private resentments to the general weal: let them consider that the vile agents of the French government, like unto famished vultures, only watch the moment to spring upon their prey; let them resect that the vessel of Inde pendence on board of which all have em barked mustsave itself or perish with its passengers; and that to bring her into a good harbor, it is glorious to rally under brethren who know how to fight, conquer and pardon. For myself, con vinced that our divisions are the joy and hope of our enemies; persuaded that this is the only country which now offers itself to freemen; certain by experience that the interests of the blacks and mulattoes are inseparable; instructed by sufficient data that our common enemy are weaving new webs to render our quarrels endless; I call heaven and man to witness, that be the sacrifice what it may, my only endeavour shall be to re-assemble the children of Hay 1 under my paternal shield. Confiding in my own resources, on the legitimacy of my cause, and strong in the ascendancy which they give me, I fear not to renew the general amnesty which has been already offered for the welfare of the state, the only object of my ambition. But if it be desirable that a part of the

Haytians yet scattered abroad, return from the errors and expiate the evils of many years by a moments repentance; if it be of public interest that the members of the great family unite for the despair and dismay of our tyrants; it is not the less necessary to preserve an attitude which becomes men who having done much, know that much remains to be do c Soldiers-You will return to your garrisons and respective contonnients; to repose from the toil you have experienced; carry with you there the spirit of order, subordina ion and discipline, the pledge of victory. I will distribute the prize of valor to those who have signalized themselves by great actions corps will be completed, new cloathed and equipped; enjoy then in peace the fruits of your laurels, and be ready at Westied with temporising to spare the the first signal to complete the triumph of the legitimate authority.

Done at the palace of Cape Henry, 8th Oct. 1810, 7th year of Independence.

By the President, HENRY CHRISTOPHE. The marshal de camp of his serene highness. PREVOST.

A Ca'edmian Courtehin, - A son of medicine verging to his climacterick, breathed out his amorous sighs to the daugh ter of a Scotch Peer. The Lady, prone to jocularity, seemed to listen to his suit. solely for that entertainment which grey haired folly produces in assuming the characteristicks of juvenility. The doctor one day was to pay a visit in form to the goddess of his idolatry; on this occasion he was determined to be as Adonis like in inhabiliments as possible. It is requis tie to be known, that the doctor was man who scorned to be thought of the sect of Peripateticks; when he appeared it was in the equestran style. On such an important event as the present, resolv ing to be spruce, he took an immaculate shirt, and put it, not on, but in his pock et, prudently considering, that in the action of riding, its purity might be tarnished; to prevent this he resolved to put it on when he should come within a small distance of the scene of his wishes. When arrived at the settl d distance, the Doctor proceeded to disrabe himself of his upper garments, still sitting on his horse; his hat wig, coat and waisctoat were taken off and faid upon the pummel of the saddle. In this critical moment, malignant fate designing, his faithful Pegasus received a f ight from some what on the road! Off sat Rosinante. with the Doctor in demi nudi y, and ran with him (instictively knowing, from frequency in going, to his masters destin ation) to the door of the very house he and haped to enter with every minu im of dress adjusted. His Quixotte like ap pearance threw the family into such parxisms of laughter, as precluded the eration of speech, or the means of assisting the distressed doctor. (London Paper.
