SHEEP.

Mr. R. Parkinson's receipt for the cure of the Foot Rot:-A speedy and easy remedy for both prevention and cure. To prevent it, take lime from the kiln, spread it on the floor of a barn two or three inches thick, or in some convenient house, large enough to hold the Bock likely to be affected, first cleansing the feet by paring the superfluous hoof, and with a sponge or an old rag dipped in chamber lye, wash the foot clean, then let the sheep stand on the lime six or seven hours, if twelve the better. The

the same, and of the meales deposited | cure, the same as above, but the parts affected, after paring and being washed with chamber lye, should have lime applied to the quick or wounded parts, rubbing it on, and leaving as much on the hollow or fore part as it will contain, then let the sheep stand on the lime as directed above.
