BIENNIAL Syssions .- The last effort of the editor of the "Democrat" against Bichnial Sessions is puerile in the extreme. It does not at all remind us of a strong man in a moress when every exertion of his strength tends to involve him still more inextricably, but it tis puch more like the faint exertion of a mind opresed with dispair, amidst an accumulation of evils and wishing for relief yet knowing not what to do to obtain it. We venture to hazard the assertion that five intelligent and unprejudiced men cannot be found in the whole County who will not say that our answer to his objections to the bill was complete, and further that his last re narks we e the mear reiteration of his objection without reason or argument. If he is willing that his Democratic readers should judge of this Bill fairly, and vote upon it like ration I beings, why has he not published it. Does he prefer darkness ra her than light, or is the Democratic mind so a law that its eyes never beheld. The true the 5th year of his age. reason is and it cannot be disguised, that the whig party have in a constitutional mode, introduced a reform that will be highly heneficial to the people not to this party or to that party, of intellect, great kindness of temper and disbut to the great body of the people.
