The position of the enemy, his strength, his natural means for defence, and in fact, the most minute information-all of which is of the utmost importance for us to know-has been revealed to the Commanding General through the agency of the balloon. This is certainly an age of triumph, and no one can accurately estimate the saving, both of life and capital, to Government since Prot. Lowe has connected himself with the army. It is presumed that the balloon was visible to every inhabitant in Richmond, and the Rebels must have been forcibly reminded of our object in prosecuting the war when they saw the word "Constitution" painted in large letters on the side that was designedly turned toward
