For the Easton Gazette. A SONG FOR THE TIMES.

BY THE REV. J. RUTH.

Ye sons of freedom wake! And see the franchise bought By wise and holy sires, With their best blood, at stake, Gird on your trusty arms And to the rescue fly. Your Country's Cause sustain, Conquer the foe or die.

Rise, Freemen, strike the blow, Make traitors hearts to quail, And from their haunts of woe Send up the fearful wail Of deep repentant prayer, And then their God of Greed O'er throw—the nation's snive— To Conquest haste with speed.

The Victory is ours, Jehovah is our might, Invoke the nations powers,— With bayonets fix't and bright, Until the foe shall flee With holy arder fight. Make rebels bow the knee To Order, Law and Right.

Fair Freedom's Sons awake! Yea, let the son, and sire Alike their vigor take, And meet the traitors' fire. Let one sure blow be hurl'd From Sea-board to the Lake: And Freedom's flag unfurl'd Shali peace and Union make.

A Sailors Yarn.

An old salt, of our acquaintance, says that when he was in the guano trade, he sailed as mate of an old brig which might have been a tender to Noah's Ark. On a return trip, with a load of guano, the hatches were left open one A special committee was appointed by the night and a tremendous shower wet the guano

> The timbers of the vessel sprouted and grew penetrable thicket, and the cabin a beautiful arbor. The rudder post, being made of white oak, grew up into a "live oak" tree, which afforded a grateful shade to the man at the helm, though he was sometimes annoyed by the acorns rattling upon his tarpaulin hat. The masts became very imposing with their evergreen foliage, and strange to relate, the foretopmast, which had been carried away in a gale, grew out again, and the altitude of all the masts was so much increased as to render the brig exceedingly crank. The vessel had boughs on her stern, and the figure head a dancing master. They were obliged to prune the bowsprit and some of the spars twice a week. The quarter deck was covered with shrubbery, and the cook's caboose resembled a rustic sumcasioned by the stimulating and fertilizing influences of the guano was that the cockroaches on board became so large that they could get up the anchor and make sail on the brig. One of the owners of the craft tacettously remarked that she went out a full rigged brig, and came home half bark. There is nothing like guano for making things grow, and for strict truth and veracity give us an old sailor when he lays himself out
