MAY SONG.

Month of bursting buds and flowers, Springing grass and vernal showers; Welcome to thy cloudless skies, To thy garb of brilliant dyes; Welcome to thy loosened rills Leaping willly from the hills. Spring-time's latest, loveliest child. Gladly we come thy steps to greet, Grateful for thy breath so mild, And for all thy edors sweet.

Time of singing birds and brooks, When the tair earth lovliest looks; Glad we had thy welcome hor re. Per uned with the breath of flowers, Down the green bill's sloping side. Grassy ripples smoothly glide, And the sailing clouds above Cast their shadows o'er the scene, While the sun, with eye of love, Shows over all his face serene.

Blossoms white as drifted snow, Float down silently and low, Sheduing odor everywhere On the waves of dewy air. In the wood and by the river Tender leaflets shine and shiver; Out and in, beneath their shade, Flirt the birds with plumage gay, Sweetly through the everglade Warbling all the livelong day.

Throbs our hearts with rapture high As we meet thy beaming eye. Flora comes thy steps to greet. Strewing flowers 'neath thy feet; Zephry, with his gentle sigh, Woos thee as he passes by. Charming, flowery month of May, Hey-day of the fleeting year! Basking in the sunny ray, Care and sorrow disappear.
