Er: evening : h ides come on. There we have fondly cherished-Clasped to our bosom tight, And mourned as they have perished And vanished from our sight.

But oh! a hope much surer Now lights our weary way ; And here's a faith still purer, That points to endless day.

What though this life be clouded And sorrow's tempest come? With God there's rest and comfort, And He'll soon call us home.

What though the weak flesh shiver 'Neath His chastising rod? What though our poor hearts quiver, Since He is now our God?

Our Hope is pointing upwards-"Prrss on: O, rest not here." Our faith cries, guiding bearenward, "Press on ! your God to there !"
