FOR MEN AND BOYS.

May 11-10m

July Evening. BY WM. ROSS WOLLACE.

Sleep not, sleep not -for, O, too bright, . Too beautiful the time! It seems the very crowning hour, The ecstasy of the clime, When stars and moon look in a trance Of bliss in yonder blue expanse,

So pure, so broad that only Love

Seems God's sweet minister above.

Sleep not, sleep not-it is the hour Cold thought should slumber still, And only warm emotion float At her own angel-will; Even as the gentle bird that flies, Like music, through those Southern skies, So softly that she seems to be Of Earth and Heaven the melody.

Sleep not, sleep not-it is the hour For love, love, only love, When every human pulse should more To Heaven's own pulse above. In such an hour warm Sappho thrilled, And all the wood with passion filled; In such an hour young Petrarch told His rapture on Love's harp of gold; In such an hour-come, bathe in bliss, By turning song into Love's kiss!
