The Two Armies.

all Dr. Holmes' charming little poems : As life's unending column pours, Two marshall'd bosts are seen-Two armies on the trampled shores

That Death flows black between.

One marches to the drum-best roll, The wide-mouthed clarion's bray, And bears upon a crimson scroll, "Our glory is to slay."

One moves in silence by the stream, With sad, yet watchful eyes, Calm as the patient planet's gleam That walks the clouded skies.

Along its front no sabre shine, No blood-red pennous wave; Its banners bears the single line, "Our duty is to save."

For those no death-bed's lingering shade; At bonor's trumpet call, With knitted brow and lifted blade In glory's arms they fall. For these no clashing fa'chions bright, Nostirring battle-cry;

The bloodlees stabber ralls by night-

Each answer, "Here am I !" For those the scalptor's laurels bust, The builders marble piles, The anthemes pealing o'er the dust Through long cathedral aisles.

For these the blosomed-sprinkled turf, That floods the lonely graves, When Spring rolls in her sea-green surf, In flowery-foaming waves.

Two paths lead upward from below, And angels wait above, . Who count each burning life-drop's flow, Each falling tear of Love.

Though from the Hero's bleeding breast Her pulses Freedom drew, Though the white lillies in her crest Sprang from that scarlet dew.

While Valor's haughty champions wait Till all their scars are shown, Love walks unchallenged through the gate, To set beside the Throne!

Leap Year.

Brother ! 'Tis Leap Year, boys, Awful to think of it; Ruin is yawning, boys, We're on the brink ofit; Victims to woman's schemes, Each of us, all of us, Sure as we're living, boys, They'll be the fall of us. Fall of us, fall of us, Bachelors young and old; Maidens are planning, boys, Nothing their tongues can hold.

Planning all sorts of things-Awful to think of it! Ruin approaches, boys, We're on the brink of it.

Popping the question, boys, That's what they'll do to us, If we but give the plagues Half a side view of us; Red lips and sparkling eyes! Well, let me think of it! Heigho! sweet ruin, boys,
