HENRY R. COSTAR.

My Trundle Bed; OR, RECOLLECTIONS OF CHILDHOOD.

As I rummag'd through the attic, Listening to the falling rain, As it patter'd on the shingles, And against the window paine; Peeping over cheets and boxes, Which with dust were thickly spread, Saw I in the farthest corner

So I drew it from the recess, Where it had remained so long, Hearing all the while the music Of my mother's voice in song, As she sang in sweetest accents, What I since have often read-"Hush my dear, lie still and slumber, Holy angels guard thy bed."

That I thought had been forgot,

As I listen'd, recollections,

What was once my trundle bed.

Come with all the gush of mem'ry, Rushing, thronging to the spot, And I wander'd back to childhood. To those merry days of yore, When I knelt beside my mother, By this bed upon the floor. There it was, with hands so gently Placed upon my infant head, That she taught my lips to utter Carefully the words she said : Never can they be forgotten, Deep are they in mem'ry riven-"Hallowed be thy name, O Father !

Father! thou who art in Heaven."

Years have passed, and that dear mother, Long has moulder'd 'neath the sod, And I trust her sainted spirit Revels in the home of God. But that scene at summer twilight, Never has from mem'ry fled, And it comes in all its freshness When I see my trundle bed. This she taught me, then she told me Of its import, great and deep-After which I learned to utter "Now I lay me down to sleep;" Then it was, with hands uflifted, And in accents soft and mild, That my mother asked-"Our Father !
