Don't crowd; this world is broad enough For you as well as me; The doors of art are opened wide-The realm of thought is free; Of all earth's places, you are right To choose the best you can, Provided that you do not try To crowd some other man.

Don't Crowd.

BY R. E. BROWN.

What matter though you scarce can count Your piles of golden ore; While be can hardly strive to keep Gaunt famine from his door? Of willing hands and honest hearts Alone should man be proud; Then give him all the room he needs, And never try to crowd.

Don't crowd, proud Miss ; your dainty silk Will glisten none the less Because it comes in contact with A beggar's tattered dress; This lovely world was never made For you and I alone; A pauper has a right to tread

The pathway to a throne.

Don't crowd the good from out your heart By fostering all that's bad; But give to every virtue room-The best that may be had; Be each day's record such a one That you may be proud; Give each his right-give each his room, And never try to crowd.

> Summer and Autumn. BY GEORGE ARNOLD.

Gorgeous leaves are whirling down; Homeward comes the scented hay; O'er the stubble, sear and brown, Flaunt the autumn flowers; But alas!

Summers pass-Like our joys, they pass away ! Fanned by many a balmy breeze, In the spring I love to lie

Neath the newly burden trees, Gazing upward to the sky; But alas ! Time will pass, And the flowers of spring must die.

Oft my maiden sat with me, Listening to the thrush's tone, Warbled forth from every tree Ere the meadow hay was mown ; But alas! Summers pass-Now, I wander all alone !

Love, like the summer time is fair .. Decked with buds and blossoms gay ; But upon this autumn air Floats a voice, which seems to say, Love, alas ! Also pass, As the summers, pass away!
