I Kick Him When He's Down. When the sun of prosperity's shining, And a man's growing rich every day-When in case and comfort reclining, And golden success crowns his way-How friends will then flock around him; But if fortune should happen to frown, How quickly be'll get the "cold shoulder," And be "kicked because he is down." How kindly the world will smile on him

103- 0 210110 - 1022

When life with successes abound; How cordially, blandly twill greet him As in pleasure he's riding around! But then let reverses o'er take him, . And his friends, both in country and town, Have not a kind sentence to cheer him, But will kick him as soon as he's down.

Let a man get position and wealth, Matters not if by intrigue or fraud, The world nods approvingly at bim, And his acts will loadly applead; What though he be a great villain, With the simple, the wise and the clown, While be's up he's a "tip top fellow," But they'll "kick him if he ever gets down."

When a man has planty of "greedbacks," Was pan postepl) and posten said Sol. He's counted a "bully good chum" then, And the crowd approves all be may say, But just let him lose his treasure, Perchance, too, his health may be gone, He'll get to be nobody quickly, And sure to be "kicked when he's down.

What's the use of being moral or honest, Or strive to be apright and true; For, unless a man has "lots of money," The world's bound to 'put him right through; They'll 'go for him' certain and surely, From the jockey to priest in his gows-And all stand ready to 'snub' him, And "kick him because he is down."
