A Kiss at the Door.

We were standing in the doorway-My little wife and I, The golden son upon her hair Fell down so silently, A small white hand upon my arm. What could I ask for more, Than the kindly glance of loving eyes, As she kissed me at the door,

I know she loves with all her heart The one who stands beside her, and the years have been so joyous Since first I called her bridel We've had so much of happiness Since we met in years before, " But the happiest time of all was When she kissed me at the door.

Who cares for wealth, of land or gold, For fame or matchless power? It does not give the happiness Of just one little bour, With one who loves me as ber life-She says she loves me more-And I thought she did this morning, When she kissed me at the door.

At times it seems that all the world

With all its wealth of gold, Is very small and poor indeed Compared with what I hold! And when the cloud's hang grim and dark, I only think the more Of one who waits the coming steps To kiss me at the door.

If she lives till age shall scatter Its frosts upon ber head, know she'll love me just the same As the morning we were wed; But if the angels call her And she goes to hearen before, I shall know her when I meet her, For she'll kiss me at the door.
