From the Baltimore Saturday Night. "LOVE."

BY M. H. W.

"Oh! what is love?" the maiden cries, And ilrows a saucy glance, Has 'happened' in by chance.

The neighbor thinks the time has come To make a sweet reply; So gazing at the maiden fair, He utters with a sigh-

"When spirit unto spirit joins, Their bliss comes from above, A deep devotion unto death-That's my idea of love." Mamma lays down her knitting,

And looks in great amaze, At hearing such poetic thoughts. Then gives the neighbor praise. "That's very pretty, I am sure,

Though different from my time;

Then lovers used to speak out plain, Not talk around in rhyme." Aunt Ruth throws down the paper. And joins the conversation; Then gravely looks the neighbor-
