MY EXPERIENCE.

Who praised my curls and hazel eyes? And said I was a treasured prize? Who lauded me e'en to the skies? My lover.

My lover.

Who said that I should never know What 'twas to suffer want nor woe; That blessings round my path should flow?

My lover.

Who said he gave me his whole heart, And that in life we ne'er should part? Who caused love's happy tears to start? My lover.

Whose boasted love soon fled away?

Who made me slave from day to day?

Who caused me oft for death to pray? My husband. Who sneered at my "big, ugly eyes?" Who said I was a worthless prize?

When sick, who wished me in the skies?

My husband. Who never tried to make home bright, But drank and gambled every night? Who made my very life a blight?

My husband.

Who from his children did depart? Who cast from him a loving heart? Who caused most bitter tears to start! My husband.

I work and toil for children three, And sign myself, as you may see, . A widow.
