"Vainly Fair" has the following terrible hit at that clerical Bombastes Furiosus, Rev. Dr. Tyng:

If newspaper reports the news are stating, Stay, Tyng! And list a while to our expostulating, Lay, Tyng! Are monkey tricks—low jokes on the care grain, (Treat, Tyng! The proper sacred patriotic rage for sailing, Pray, Tyng! In line of ribaldry and silly prating, Pray, Tyng! Or if you must behave like a bombasting, Am, Tyng! The sarcasm doff—to where the foe's awaiting, Am, Tyng! The soldier's trade is one much better sailing, Low, Tyng! Than lowering God's mission and disgusting, Us, Tyng.

SECOND EDITION.

BY THE PHILADELPHIA TRAIN. From New York. A letter of late date, from New York, to the Philadelphia Ledger, says: All the noise about the so called peace movement, in regard to which so much is said, but of which so little seems to be actually known, undoubtedly proceeds from the State Convention of Democratic editors, held at New York, on Thursday, in order to insure a full and frank interchange of opinion on the part of the delegates to that body, its deliberations will probably be held with closed doors. A number of the most influential members of the profession from distant parts of the State are already here. An effort will be made by the Albany Argus and New York Daily News people to impress their peculiar views upon the Convention, but it will scarcely succeed.

The absorption of the Courier and Enquirer, by the World, on Monday next, is something more than a mere rumor now. It is a fixed fact. Some people attach to it a political significance which is not known. It is true that the Courier has for a long while been an organ of Mr. Seward, and it is no less true that the World has passed for an organ of Mr. Cameron—but it does not follow that because the organs fall as they do, the political positions of the editors will be affected. The Board of Underwriters of this city have fitted out the famous "Iron Horse," Henry H. Johnson, of the coast of Florida and the Bahamas, for the protection of our commerce. Her armament consists of two rifled cannon, carrying twelve pound balls. She will be commanded by Captain Moses Hoyt.
