

The South.

HABEAS CORPUS.

"Next to personal security," says Mr. Justice Blackstone, "the law of England regards the liberty of the individual."

"The glorious spirit of liberty is extinguished and left without a spark," said Samuel Adams, "we have no more a free people, we have no more a free country."

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

FROM OUR SECOND HAND PAPER.

Arrests in Hartford County.

A gentleman just from Blair informs us that an early boat this morning 250 Pennsylvania troops arrived from White Hall station, and by order of Gen. Hanks, took into custody Archer H. Jarrett, Captain of the Light Dragoons, threatening him that if he did not give up the arms of his company he would be taken to Philadelphia as a prisoner.

Further states that Henry D. Faranadis, Esq., was arrested but subsequently released, and the military who had possession of Blair were left, were in pursuit of Gen. Herman H. Strump and Richard Mitchell, well known citizens of this county. A detachment had been sent to search Mr. Faranadis' house for arms.

We learn from gentlemen, one of whom left Martinsburg on Wednesday last, that no action had taken place, as reported, between the forces of Generals Johnston and Patterson, since the affair at Hainesville. All was quiet, but both sides were daily receiving reinforcements and a battle might at any moment occur.

The wife of Colonel Phipps is said to have been in the city of Washington, and to have been in the city of Washington, and to have been in the city of Washington.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

The Latest News.

We are indebted to Mr. Henry Taylor, San Building, for New York papers of this morning.

The Washington correspondent of the Herald says: A number of the members of Congress are indignant at the treatment of Gen. Wool, and will bring the question before Congress. It will no doubt be presented to both houses at the same time, and we do not think that Gen. Wool will be removed from the position.

The Federal troops, by order of Gen. Tyler, have arrested two young ladies, the Misses Scott, near Falls Church. They are detained on the charge of being secessionists!

A fact of fatal significance, reported from Washington, may well fill all thoughtful observers with alarm and anxiety. We learn that the officer, Tetcher, by name, who led the party of miners from the Garibaldi Regiment on Sunday night from Virginia, and who was killed at the battle of Bull Run, is reported to have been in the city of Washington.

There is no reason to doubt that West Point has long been a nursery for traveling traitors at public expense. The rebel chief, Jeff. Davis is a man who has long been in the city of Washington.

There is no reason to doubt that West Point has long been a nursery for traveling traitors at public expense. The rebel chief, Jeff. Davis is a man who has long been in the city of Washington.

There is no reason to doubt that West Point has long been a nursery for traveling traitors at public expense. The rebel chief, Jeff. Davis is a man who has long been in the city of Washington.

There is no reason to doubt that West Point has long been a nursery for traveling traitors at public expense. The rebel chief, Jeff. Davis is a man who has long been in the city of Washington.

There is no reason to doubt that West Point has long been a nursery for traveling traitors at public expense. The rebel chief, Jeff. Davis is a man who has long been in the city of Washington.

There is no reason to doubt that West Point has long been a nursery for traveling traitors at public expense. The rebel chief, Jeff. Davis is a man who has long been in the city of Washington.

Arrests in Hartford County.

A gentleman just from Blair informs us that an early boat this morning 250 Pennsylvania troops arrived from White Hall station, and by order of Gen. Hanks, took into custody Archer H. Jarrett, Captain of the Light Dragoons, threatening him that if he did not give up the arms of his company he would be taken to Philadelphia as a prisoner.

Further states that Henry D. Faranadis, Esq., was arrested but subsequently released, and the military who had possession of Blair were left, were in pursuit of Gen. Herman H. Strump and Richard Mitchell, well known citizens of this county. A detachment had been sent to search Mr. Faranadis' house for arms.

We learn from gentlemen, one of whom left Martinsburg on Wednesday last, that no action had taken place, as reported, between the forces of Generals Johnston and Patterson, since the affair at Hainesville. All was quiet, but both sides were daily receiving reinforcements and a battle might at any moment occur.

The wife of Colonel Phipps is said to have been in the city of Washington, and to have been in the city of Washington, and to have been in the city of Washington.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

Arrests in Hartford County.

A gentleman just from Blair informs us that an early boat this morning 250 Pennsylvania troops arrived from White Hall station, and by order of Gen. Hanks, took into custody Archer H. Jarrett, Captain of the Light Dragoons, threatening him that if he did not give up the arms of his company he would be taken to Philadelphia as a prisoner.

Further states that Henry D. Faranadis, Esq., was arrested but subsequently released, and the military who had possession of Blair were left, were in pursuit of Gen. Herman H. Strump and Richard Mitchell, well known citizens of this county. A detachment had been sent to search Mr. Faranadis' house for arms.

We learn from gentlemen, one of whom left Martinsburg on Wednesday last, that no action had taken place, as reported, between the forces of Generals Johnston and Patterson, since the affair at Hainesville. All was quiet, but both sides were daily receiving reinforcements and a battle might at any moment occur.

The wife of Colonel Phipps is said to have been in the city of Washington, and to have been in the city of Washington, and to have been in the city of Washington.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

Arrests in Hartford County.

A gentleman just from Blair informs us that an early boat this morning 250 Pennsylvania troops arrived from White Hall station, and by order of Gen. Hanks, took into custody Archer H. Jarrett, Captain of the Light Dragoons, threatening him that if he did not give up the arms of his company he would be taken to Philadelphia as a prisoner.

Further states that Henry D. Faranadis, Esq., was arrested but subsequently released, and the military who had possession of Blair were left, were in pursuit of Gen. Herman H. Strump and Richard Mitchell, well known citizens of this county. A detachment had been sent to search Mr. Faranadis' house for arms.

We learn from gentlemen, one of whom left Martinsburg on Wednesday last, that no action had taken place, as reported, between the forces of Generals Johnston and Patterson, since the affair at Hainesville. All was quiet, but both sides were daily receiving reinforcements and a battle might at any moment occur.

The wife of Colonel Phipps is said to have been in the city of Washington, and to have been in the city of Washington, and to have been in the city of Washington.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

Arrests in Hartford County.

A gentleman just from Blair informs us that an early boat this morning 250 Pennsylvania troops arrived from White Hall station, and by order of Gen. Hanks, took into custody Archer H. Jarrett, Captain of the Light Dragoons, threatening him that if he did not give up the arms of his company he would be taken to Philadelphia as a prisoner.

Further states that Henry D. Faranadis, Esq., was arrested but subsequently released, and the military who had possession of Blair were left, were in pursuit of Gen. Herman H. Strump and Richard Mitchell, well known citizens of this county. A detachment had been sent to search Mr. Faranadis' house for arms.

We learn from gentlemen, one of whom left Martinsburg on Wednesday last, that no action had taken place, as reported, between the forces of Generals Johnston and Patterson, since the affair at Hainesville. All was quiet, but both sides were daily receiving reinforcements and a battle might at any moment occur.

The wife of Colonel Phipps is said to have been in the city of Washington, and to have been in the city of Washington, and to have been in the city of Washington.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.

"The rights of the citizen are not to be taken away by the tyrannical power of the monarch," said John Adams.