THE HEART'S GUESTS.

When age has cast its shadows O'er life's declining way, And the evening twilight gathers Round our departing day-Then we shall sit and ponder ()n the dim and shadowy past;

Within the heart's still chamber The guests will gather fast. The friends in youth we cherished. Shall come to us once more, Again to hold communion

As in the days of yore. They may be stern and sombre, They may be young and fair. But the heart will have its chamber, The guests shall gather there.

How shall it be, my sisters? Who, then, shall be our guests? How shall it be, my brothers? When life's shadow on us rests? Shall we not 'midst the silence, In accents soft and low, Then hear familiar voices, And words of long ago?

Shall we not see dear faces, Sweet smiling as of old? Till the mists of that still chamber Are sunset clouds of gold? When age has cast its shadows O'er life's declining way. And the evening twilight gathers Round our departing day?

Old South Church, in consequence of some new ag. 1778 gression upon the rights of the people. The different orators of the patriot party had in turn addressed the meeting, loud in complaint and accusation, but guarded and cautious on every point which might look like an approach towards treasonable expressions, or direct exhortations to resistance. Our liberties and safety cannot be depended upon if the King of Great Britain should be allowed to by bold our forts and cannon, of to have authority over a single regiment in America or a single ship of war in her ports. For if he holds our forts he of troops among us, even if we raise and pay them. shackles will be fixed upon us-witness ireland and her national army. The most express act of Parliament cannot give us security, for acts of Parliament are as easily repealed as made. Royal proclamations are not to be depended upon, witness the disappointments of the inhabitants of Quebec and St. Augustine. Even a change of ministry will not avail us, because, notwithstanding the rapid succession of ministers, for which the British Court has been famous during the present reign, yet the same ruinous policy ever continued to presail against America. In short, I think it my duty to declare, rates. " Here, said Maybew, so he lamented the cold adbesion of the timid good, and for himself, trod the thorny path of resistance to the grandeurs of the world-bere, there are many who see the right, and yet the wrong pursue. But it is my fixed resolution, notwithstanding many discouragements, in my little sphere, to do all I can for the service of) my country, that neither the republic nor the churches of New England may sustain any injury.
