HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. Mr. Conway, rising to a question of privilege, alluded to a dialogue between himself and Mr. held in $10,000 bail. Foulke on Thursday. The former had included the battle of Belmont as in the series of defeats to our arms. Mr. Foulke has ineffectually asked Mr. Harding, who has the floor, to yield to him, but probably will be this week. that he might, in his own language, nail the falsehood to the counter. Mr Conway had explained that he obtained his information from the newspapers, and said that he did not at that time hear the offensive remarks with distinctness. He now desired to know whether Mr. Foulke intended to make the charge of falschood personally applica-

Mr. Foulke replied that he never heard of any newspaper paragraphs to that effect, excepting in the Chicago Tribune, which was afterwards contradicted. He then made a brief statement of the battle of Belmont, to show that it was a victory to the Federal troops, concluding by saying that it was nukind in Conway to insist on characterizing it as a defeat. He would permit the gentleman to make the application of the language he had heretofore uttered, as he, Mr. Conway, was the Butler's expedition, which were heretofore reported as having gone to Port Royal.

The troops were all landed next day, 4th inst., in the short space of four hours, by means of some Consederate steamers which had been conveniently captured by our fleet in the Gulf. After stopping at Ship Island four days, the Constitution sailed for Key West and Havana. She remained at Havana two days, and thence proceeded to this point, whence, after coaling, she will sail for Boston to-morrow evening; and, as is supposed, take on board thre more regiments for the South. The whole trip of the Constitution, from the time she left New York on the 16th of November, and thence to Boston for the troops which she conreyed to the Gulf, has been accomplished in 29 days. She carried 800 tons of freight in addition to the troops, and has thus proved a valuable transport. She reports the weather as delightful during the entire trip.
