

The South.

PACEM, PEAGRIM, PEACAMOR.

Oh dear, your inopportune Peagrim, It's enough to give any one megrim,
To think of the row you may get us in now,
By your conduct, inopportune Peagrim!

The ship Harry Birch on the sea grim, You might board and might burn, Captain Pea-grim,
And we only should say, in a casual way,
That we wish the met Captain Peagrim!

But when in Southampton you see grim,
The prisoner you're caught, Captain Peagrim, We are placed in a fix, to pronounce if your tricks Are a hero's, or pirate's, oh Peagrim!

If a pirate we hold Captain Peagrim, The Confederate States they will be grim;
And again, if we don't, the United States won't Be disposed to take one view of Peagrim!

Thus placed betwixt two fires by Peagrim!
Mr. Punch is afflicted with megrim, He would fain be impartial in any court-martial That's held on the states Peagrim.

A lieutenant's commission holds Peagrim, But that won't on the wall stick the sea, grim, Though lieutenant he be, that's no warrant at sea Giving powers of capture to Peagrim.

Yet as a pirate we can't give up Peagrim, At the yard arm straight run up to be, grim; Which Adams I fear, will decline "tis quite clear,
Is the right sort of treatment for Peagrim.

Yet to make even bills of Peagrim—Lose the warlike, by land and by sea, grim;
For a man with that name, on the annals of fame To inscribe, not Britannia, but Peagrim!

Then let's all pray for peace spite of Peagrim:
May we declare pass off like a megrim,
And by hook or by crook may we live to rebuke Those who feel apprehensions from Peagrim.

OLD FOGY DOCTRINES.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall appear most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established, should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have recourse to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuse and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security."—Declaration of Independence.

"Yet the majority of Congress, scrupulous not to outrun the convictions and sympathies of their constituents, and pleasing themselves by confiding in the speedy restoration of the Union, not only refused to sanction the institution of Congressmen in their several counties. The hesitancy was expressed by members, especially of Dickinson, incensed John Adams, who maintained that the "fifty of sixty men composing Congress should be sent from a constitution for a great empire, provide for its defence, and in that safe attitude, await the decision of the King. His letters to New England, and little were the central colonies prepared for the bold advice, they were published by the royalists as the surest way of destroying the Union, and the heaping obloquy on his name." —Bancroft's U. S., vol. 8, p. 32—year 1775.

Yes, sir, we wish for peace, but how is that to be preserved? I shall repeat here, in sentiment, what I have had occasion to express. In my opinion there is nothing worth fighting for but the national independence. I think that a State may and should in such circumstances, and that it should force a new government to be formed, and that it should be the duty of the people to support it. And when that time and chance, which happens to all, shall have passed, and the small evils which are now afflicting the Union, shall have passed, and the people shall have recovered their former tranquillity, and the Union shall be restored, I think that the people should be contented with the present government, and should not attempt to alter it. —Patrick Henry, Speech in the Virginia Convention, June 6, 1775.

"Here too, as every where else, preparations for resistance had been frequently called for. While Washington was borne toward Cambridge on the agonizing confidence of the people, and the chiefs of the army were in the midst of their struggle, the people were in the midst of their struggle. We have counted the words of Patrick Henry, in the Virginia Convention, June 6, 1775.

Upon the whole it has been the policy of the British to oblige us to supply our wants from their market, which is the most in the world, and to keep us in a state of dependence, and to keep us in a state of dependence. —Chief Justice Jay, Charge to the Grand Jury, Charleston, May 23, 1775.

"They closed their statement in the words of their new member, Jefferson: 'These Colonies now feel the complicated calamities of fire, sword and famine. We are reduced to the alternative of submitting to an unconditional submission to their ministers, or resistance by force. The latter is our choice. We have counted the words of Patrick Henry, in the Virginia Convention, June 6, 1775.

"A town meeting of Boston had been called at the Old North Church, in the month of June, 1775.
The meeting was held on the 17th of June, and the following resolutions were passed: 'Resolved, that the people of this town do hereby declare their independence of Great Britain, and do hereby pledge themselves to support the same, to the last gasp of their lives.' —Samuel Adams, Memoir in American Biographer, Vol. 1.

"It was a maxim of the Roman people, which eminently conducted to the greatness of that State, never to despair of the commencement. That a man should be so far from despairing, as to despair, is a maxim which is not only a maxim,
