From Hilton Head. PORT ROYAL S. C., Dec. 12 .- It is believed that | no Confederate force is now on Port Royal Island; on the night of its occupation one or two cotton EUROPE. houses were set on fire, but since then no indication of the presence of an enemy has been afforded. Opposite Port Royal Ferry (which is on Beaufort), the side of the island furthest from there, is supposed to be a large number of Confederate troops, perhaps two or three thousand.

this place they are entrenching themselves. Conrersations have even occurred between the pickets on different sides of the Broad River. Near bere are some of the stockades which the contrabands bave recently stuck into their river beds; they seem to have abandoned all idea of holding the coast, and now restrict themselves to intercepting our further progress inward. As yet, however, levery step we have attempted to take has been successfully made. The cotton has begun to come in from the adjacent island, and already lies ginned, and sometimes baled, in the storehouses at Hilton Head. On the first day after any attempt was made to eecure it, three hundred and thirty-three bales arrived, worth at least $68,000; all of this was brought in from Hilton Island. The whole of h Benufort District is now undergoing a severe search, the negroes are employed in the labor of picking, collecting and pinning, and soon palpable results of the capture of this region are likely to be
