HOW PETER FUNK DOES BUSI-

"Burleigh," the New York correspondent of the Boston Journal, writes the following leaf in the history of Peter Funk and his doings:

Some time since a rural colonel from the West came to New York to make a speech. He was met the next day by a gentleman who called him by name-knew him well-was charmed with the ferror of his Western eloquence, with the force of his oratory, with his unfaltering patriotism; to h all which the Western orator bowed in the lowest humility, arowed his sense of unworthiness, and a his institity to enlighten a New York audience. but expressed a warm appreciation of the manner in which the people listened to his poor remarks. A fellow feeling was at once created, and confi-) dence, that plant of slow growth, seemed to come torth as by a miracle. The pair reached a store in Broadway, the ownership of which the new acquaintance of the colonel arowed. It just popped into the mind of the i colonel that he had a lovely daughter at home, fair as a prairie reschud, which soon was to bloom | CABINET FURNITURE, | 1 COMMISSION MERCHANTS, in a conservatory of a waiting swain, who held in his impatitnee to make the fair flower his own i till the colonel should come home from New York. I Now the daughter needed a gold watch, and he l proposed to buy one. The new friend of the colonel allowed that he kept watches in his establishment, but had none that were worthy the attention of the distinguished gentleman and his fair daughter. He had some, it was true, but as they h could be sold for the paltry sum of $125 to $300, it was not worth while to look at them. And, moreover, the city of New York was a had place ! for strangers; men got cheated every day, and be } would do well to look stiarp at all men who wanted to sell him anything, and be especially careful of the company he got into. For all this he was | U U protoundly grateful, and persisted in going into the store and taking a look at the jewelry, as he knew a thing or two, and the man would rise up early in the morning who got the better of him.

Now let me say to the reader that this friend of \ the Colonel was one of the sharpest Peter Funks in New York, and his store the headquarters of mock auctions. So in the man went. WHAT THE EMPEROR MAY DO TO FEED HIS ARMY - Liven Napoleon, absolute as he is, cannot at a moment's notice turn all his workmen starving into the frosty streets. He has a cold winter before him and a deficiency of food. The evil system he has established of making the State responsible for the price of bread and the sufficiency of work cannot be suppressed at such a crisis without careful gradations. But there are things which he may do at once, quickly and eth leatly. He may cause to waste monthly milthous upon costly naval experiments and upon ships which can hever be wanted, except for a war of aggression-strips the very production of which cans other bostile ships into being to neutraitze them. He can also return to the industitions and productive classes some 200,000 active moults and tile right hands. If he would not IT is the only RELIABLE ARTICLE FOR THE BALL which the credit of France to that of Austria, Napaticon III, must disarm.
