The South.

Correspondence of the Delaware Gazette.

FROM MISSOURI.

St. Louis, Jan. 1st, 1862.—Dear Johnson:—It has been a long time since I have dropped you a line, and as this is rather a dull holiday here, I shall try and give you a bird's eye view of the whole state of affairs as they exist at the present time.

I see a great deal in the Eastern papers about the "battles" in this State, and I shall set your own readers right on that score at the start. In the first place all those great battles, in which hundreds are killed and taken prisoners on a side, are the basest fabrications, gotten up by some upstart Colonel or Brigadier for newspaper notoriety. Since the battles of Belmont and Lexington there has not even been a good sized skirmish on the soil of Missouri, and none killed or captured by either party, except in squads of a few men; nor is it likely that there will be a battle for some time to come. From present appearances it looks as though the Confederate General Price is going to winter in the southwest, and watch the movements of Major General Halleck, and to take advantage of any weakness that the latter may present in his movements southward.

The principal part of Price's army has been sent in small squads from 200 to 1,000 men each to quarter in each county; and no sooner are they driven from one place than they turn up in another, and it would take an army of 100,000 men distributed all over the State to check their operations. If sent out in small parties they are at once surrounded and captured; for it is in this way that the Confederates have accomplished the most and secured in the aggregate an immense amount of arms, &c.—some say as much as 20,000 stand of arms—since the war began. Almost every county has in it a Marion with his followers, and they know every cow-path and swamp, and by their rapid movements and concentration of purpose, they present an invincible army of guerrillas. The more stringent the measures taken to punish them, the more severe is the recoil on the Federal operations; and it may well be said that the campaign in Missouri has cost the Government more men and money than all the rest beside, and accomplished less, with a good prospect of continuing so. The Government holds this city, and some of the principal towns out on two of the railroads down the river to Bird's Point; beyond this the whole State is debatable ground, with the advantage leaning to the Confederates.

The fortifications at Bird's Point, Cairo and Cape Girardeau are in good order and well garrisoned; below these all Federal movements are checkmated by the Southerners holding New Madrid, Columbus and Bowling Green, until the "forward to Memphis" looks about as difficult as the next "forward to Manassas."

I suppose you have heard of the ubiquitous Jeff. Thompson. Well, Jeff. does not appear to have any particular mission to perform, except to do about just as he pleases, and after a thousand and one attempts to catch him, Uncle Sam appears to have given him up. Whenever Jeff. gets hungry he comes to the river bank below Cape Girardeau to feed, and the other day he came near "confiscating" the fine Government steamer Alton, and she was only saved by an accident; as it was she was well riddled with balls. Where Jeff. was three hours after would puzzle a Texan Ranger to find out. The telegraph lies are so abominably inconsistent that it is reallly hard to tell anything about affairs east, but from all we can gather by the mails, our European affairs look "mixed." From our last despatches, it would seem that England, not satisfied with getting Mason and Slidell back, are going to make us dig up those stones we have just dropped at Charleston harbor; and from the letters received here from our old French citizens from France, I think that Couz. Louis N——— is as much in the game as Jeff. Davis could desire. There is also a rumor on the street that France is going to insist on a free navigation of the Mississippi river, according to the treaty of the Louisiana purchase and that the subject has already been presented at Washington. So we go. "It never rains but it pours." Where in the name of conscience this whole affair is going to wind up at, no one seems able to guess, and I rather think that even the Cabinet don't know.—Our money affairs, in the way of eastern exchange, is much easier, owing to the suspension of eastern banks, which makes our money as good as theirs. Treasury notes are not in much demand, owing to the unsettled state of Wall street, and the antiquity of Mr. Chase's plans for raising the next loan. What his scheme is for raising the other several hundred millions, and securing its payment, is the all engrossing question among our property holders and tax-payers; and if Congress fiddles away awhile longer on the eternal nigger, instead of providing ways and means for the war, no one can tell where the provisions and transportation for the army is to come from. More anon. G.

The Source of Disease and Death in New York.—The annual report of the Board of Police Commissioners of New York has been laid before the Legislature of that State. Among the duties of this commission is the examination of the tenement houses within the limits of the city.

The rapid deterioration of the public health has, for some years past, created alarm among the Gothamites, and although it was generally believed that the increased mortality originated in the manner in which a large number of the residents lived, huddled together in these contracted abodes, it was not until a recent date that that belief was ascertained to be correct.

The population of the city of New York is estimated to be about 800,000 persons, and from the report referred to we ascertain the astounding fact that 404,000 of this number reside in tenement houses, or houses, containing four families and upward. Were it not that the statement emanates from such high authority, we would hardly believe that nearly one-half of the population of the "Metropolis" were deprived of the necessities of life to such an extent that they were compelled to reside in these illy-constructed and illy-ventilated structures. Health, comfort and safety have been sacrificed, and disease engendered in these pest holes affects the atmosphere of the whole city, and sends each year to untimely graves thousands of citizens.

The Report contains several equally startling developments, among others the following:—There are in the city 1,900 houses having 63,337 inmates, each inmate being allowed from 100 to 300 cubic feet; 2,991 houses having 103,371 inmates, each inmate having between 300 and 400 cubic feet; and 2,517 houses, having 79,462 inmates, each inmate being allowed between 400 and 500 cubic feet.

Of 12,210 houses, it was discovered that in case of fire the means of escape in 3,791, occupied in the aggregate by 126,582 persons, were devoid of the proper means of escape. The large increase in the number of these buildings, and the enormous addition to the mortality list, caused by their occupation, should induce the Legislature to eradicate the nuisance at as early a moment as practicable.

You Can't find an Article that suits as well as

HANCE'S

CHEMICAL HAIR RESTORATIVE.

IT IS THE ONLY RELIABLE ARTICLE FOR THE BALD AND GRAY.

"IT IS NOT A DYE,"

But restores gray hair to its natural or original color, and imparts to it a silky softness; it also prevents the hair from falling out, and where the roots are not dead, it will accelerate the growth.

It combines the double property of a Hair Restorative and Dressing, thus presenting two articles in one. A trial of a single bottle will do more in a majority of cases to convince a person of its merits than page upon page of printed or written matter.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5.

Where age or sickness has turned it gray, and that it will render it soft and glossy.

"ANYBODY" who may try it will find that it does not color the skin, but by stimulating the natural secretions at the roots, gives new life and strength to the Hair, and thus restores its color and freshness. It can be used as freely as water upon the scalp, and with as much safety—is composed of oil and stimulating spirits, and as an article for the toilet has no equal.
