CARRIERS.

We desire to say to our friends that we have now a complete force of carriers to furnish subscribers in any part of the city. The persons in this employ have been carefully selected, and no fear need be felt of miscarriages, accidents or exceptions. Orders can be left at the office.

THE LETTER OF LIEUT. MAURY AND THE ADDRESS OF MR. BRECKINRIDGE.

In consequence of the very great demand for the letter of the eminent seaman, Lieutenant Maury, setting forth his views upon the subject of Secession, we shall republish it on Friday next in pamphlet form, and as it originally appeared in the London Athenaeum, without abbreviation. We shall couple with it the eloquent address of Hon. Jno. C. Breckinridge on the same subject, making a pamphlet of 16 large octavo pages, neatly printed. Price per copy five cents, for sale at this office. Orders will be received per mail.

BRAGGING IN ADVANCE.

The Yankee has not incoherently been accused of an extraordinary tendency to brag. His rivers are longer, his mountains higher, his catarsis grander, his soil richer, his progress greater and his intelligence more expanded than any where else upon the habitable globe. The Americans and the Chinese are the only people who approach him in bombast, and, like them, they do not always, or even often, justify the high sounding terms of his manifesto. No one can forget the extravagant predictions of the New York  Herald Tribune and  Times, last spring, of the rapid and certain defeat which was to crush out the Southern rebellion. Unmindful of the lessons of the past, these profligate and unblinking journals are again indulging in rhodomontade, and are boasting with praise officers, who would infinitely prefer their course. The Times, on the highest authority, says:

Gen. McClellan has the rebels caught in their own trap. They are like a fox in a burrow with one hole (Manassas) where they meant to come out, and the other (Washington) where they are now being driven out. The public will not then complain of his want of energy. I tell you it will be no fearful as to have waiting and mourning go up from every Southern household. Know what I do, and having this but barely hinted at the great plan of the campaign, I repeat that the rebels are doomed, and secession will never again raise its Hydra head in the land. The folds of the giant condor are now tighter. And the rebellion, and its coming death will be crushed out completely and forever. Again I say, look out for a "short war and a desperate one."

Jackall like, this editor cannot suppress a howl of greedily and premature gratification over the losses of the slain and the prospective "waiting and mourning" in every Southern household.

The Tribune not behind its contemporary joins its voice in the general chorus, thus—

The armies of the Union are on the point of advancing on all quarters on the Appomattox, the rebellion, which is half finished, lies on its side, and is evidently conscious of its swiftly approaching doom. Its soldiers are trying to escape from their manifold miseries on any possible terms. Substitutes are eagerly sought at exorbitant rates. No new recruits are coming in to fill up their diminished regiments. The term of enlistment of a large portion of their force approaches its close, and the frantic appeals of the rebel journals prove that few of them can be persuaded or bullied into serving farther. And the soldiers of those journals are now clamoring for a general conscription as the last hope of their expiring treason.

Let Unionists everywhere rejoice and take courage. A few days will bring us tidings of heavy defeats on all sides at the defenses of rebellion. They may not all be successful—some of them may be failures—but the preponderance in men, arms and resources on the side of loyalty and the Nation is so decided that the general result cannot be doubtful. Within two months—unless all signs fail—the Kingdom of Jeff. Davis will be a thing of the past. Let every one do his utmost to strengthen the arms and animate the hearts of our brave patriots in the field, and the gigantic treason of 1861 will soon be but a hideous, guilty dream.

Now it is undeniable that the preparations of the Government are formidable, its armies vast, and its navy by no means contemptible—elements implying the possibility, at least, of success.—But it would be more modest for journals who predicted that Gen. Scott would dine in Richmond on the 15th of July, and sup in New Orleans during the early frosts of autumn, who assured us that Gen. McDowell would sweep the "rebels" from Manassas like chaff, if they would restrain their exultation until events should justify its indulgence.

FROM WESTERN MARYLAND.

A gentleman lately from Cumberland points a deplorable picture of the condition of the Federal troops who retired so hastily from Romney and took refuge in Cumberland. These "braves" did not await an attack from Gen. Jackson, but fled with precipitation, leaving behind them everything but the clothes upon their backs. Gen. Jackson captured the balance of their effects, consisting of arms, ammunition, camp equipage, &c., without firing a gun. The fugitive Federals were scattered about the streets of Cumberland, half starved, and destitute of arms, rowing on a small scale the scenes witnessed in Washington on the day succeeding the battle of Manassas. Hampshire and Morgan counties, as stated by us the other day, are now completely in possession of the Confederates, who were threatening Cumberland, in which city the greatest alarm existed, and many were quietly removing their effects.

As we go to press we hear a rumor that General Jackson has actually taken Cumberland, but we put no confidence in it. We simply mention it as we yesterday referred to another report, which should have been credited to the Cyprian, to show upon what unreliable grounds many of the street canards rest.

THE "EFFICIENT" BLOCKADE.

It is quite evident from the statements contained in the Northern papers that the blockade of Southern ports has proved a failure. The Havana correspondent of the Journal of Commerce writing under date of the 9th inst., furnishes a list of 30 vessels who have run into Havana, 7 into Matanzas and 2 into Cardenas from Southern ports. Also a list of 48 vessels who have sailed from Cuban ports and safely entered Confederate ports. In a postscript the correspondent remarks:

Since the above was put in type, one steamer and four schooners have arrived with cotton and naval stores at Havana and Matanzas from Confederate ports; also 6th inst., the Confederate steamer Cuba, M. Connell, New Orleans, 3 days, 700 bales cotton.

The enclosed list of vessels, which have been or are still engaged in trade with the Southern blockade ports of the United States, is the work of Col. Chas. J. Helm, who is active in getting forwarded to Europe all such data, in order to sustain his party, entitled "European Cabinet," and induce action which will tend to recognition. There is no one here, in relative official position, who will take the pains to refute such documents, and the consequences are prejudicial to the cause of the Union. The Confederate steamer Cuba, M. Connell, commanding, arrived yesterday, with 700 bales of cotton—making, with the list furnished, 101 vessels.

Commenting on the above, the N. Y. Express remarks:

These facts are certainly deserving the immediate attention of the Navy Department. It may be impossible to prevent small schooners of light draught from running the gauntlet occasionally, but it ought not to be impossible to shut up steamers of the draught and tonnage of the "Calloway" and "St. Wary."

The necessity for increased vigilance on the part of the navy is still more clearly shown in the use which the rebels intend to make of these frequent passages of the blockade. Certified lists of the aforesaid vessels, with names, dates, &c., have been forwarded to the Rebel Commissioners in Europe, who will doubtless use them as arguments to show that the blockade is only a paper one, and thus furnish a plausible pretext for European interference with it.

MORE ROMANCING.

The New York Tribune has a correspondent, nominally at Port Royal, but really up stairs in one of the Tribune garrets, who draws largely on his imagination for his facts. As a specimen we give the following purporting to come from Port Royal:

It is plain that the arming of the slaves will now become general, on one side or the other.—In addition to the accounts heretofore received from different parts of the South, here is the statement of a negro who came into camp on New Year's day. He knows that at a point not far distant from Port Royal, not less than 200 slaves are under arms, organized and officered mainly by whites, and forming a part of the regular force under command of the General of that Department. They are treated very much like whites, that is, like the common white soldiers—for whom South Carolina aristocracy has little more respect than for the blacks. Other companies were formed in which the proportion of black soldiers was considerably larger. This negro was asked to take command of a company already raised, the recruiting being probably about as near the volunteer system as elsewhere in the South. When he declined, he was ordered to take it, and threatened with punishment if he refused. Indisposed to fight for the perpetration of the tyranny that sought to compel him, he fled to our camp, where there seems small chance of his being either compelled or permitted to fight for the Federal cause. His statements are confirmed by another slave from the same district, who neither knew the other before, nor has seen him since.

All this sort of stuff is manufactured to induce the Government to derive the emancipation of the slaves, and is enforced by such sort of editorial appeals as the following:

Which is better in a Rebel State, and which ought we to make much of, a white Rebel, or a black Unionist? A relentless white enemy, or a faithful black friend?

Not only is the rebellion confined to the Slave States, but in those States it is confined in the districts where Slavery continues the principal political power. Western Virginia, Northern Kentucky, and Eastern Tennessee are loyal to the Union because the "sum of all villainies" has not existed there to such an extent as to deprave the majority of the people. If there had been no Slavery, there would have been no rebellion anywhere.

A GALLANT REPLY.

When the privilege of an extension of his term of parole was proffered to Major Howell, of this city, by the Federal authorities, his reply was— "At the request of my friends, and not at my own solicitation, I accepted my first parole, and will give my second, on condition that I shall be allowed to return to the city of Baltimore and resume my official duties of Mayor." It is needless to say that this was declined, and that the Mayor is again an inmate of Fort Warren.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

[Compiled from our London Files.]
Mr. Brey has gone to Madrid to see to it that he does not appear to have awakened the curiosity of the Catalans, who possibly consider their knowledge of horse-flesh superior to his. He gave a performance before Queen Isabella and her Royal Consort, and having successfully calmed the fiery temperaments of two half wild Andalusian colts, received a donation of $1000. A letter from the Spanish Capital says "Mr. Brey has challenged the lovers of the bull ring to a culture, without the aid of master weapon or Toledo blade, the widest bull they can produce." If he succeeds, it is very likely that he will incur the ill-will of those who delight to attend the bloody bull fights and combats which so disgrace the Spanish nation and people.

The civil war in America has not a little influenced our theatrical amusement for people on the other side of the Atlantic, being too busy to bestow much patronage on the drama, the importation of artists into this country far exceeds that of any former occasion, and scarcely a fortnight elapses in which the appearance of some new star is not recorded. Under these circumstances a very favorable impression has been made as to the condition of the histrionic talent in the United States. Mr. Southern is acknowledged to be one of the most original humorists of the day, and his Lord Dundreary has for many weeks remained the leading attraction at the Haymarket. The Media of Mrs. Zanna Jones at Drury Lane, is one of the most striking performances of high tragedy that have been seen for some time.— Mrs. Bowers, who made a good debut as Julia, in the "Hunchback" at Sadler's Wells, is now established as a general actress of leading parts at the Lyceum. To this list it now to be added Mrs. F. Conway, who has appeared at Sadler's Wells as long, in Sir T. L. Tallboys tragedy. Without being remarkable for intensity of feeling, her representation of the devoted Greek boy is in the highest degree graceful and elegant. Conceiving the character in that sculptural spirit which almost necessarily is awakened in the play, takes great pains with her attitudes, but never falls altogether in a statuesque stiffness, for which, indeed, she is preserved by the animation of her countenance, and the expression of her very penetrating and noble eyes. Altogether, Mrs. F. Conway has made a very promising commencement.—London Times.

East street, owned by Andrew D. Jones. The cause of the fire was investigated. The building was insured in the Fireman's office. At 15 minutes past 5 A. M. this morning flames were discovered issuing from a two story unoccupied frame building No. 312 Mulberry street, owned by John Bain. This was the first fire of an incendiary. The loss on the building is estimated at $50—not insured. At 30 minutes past 6 A. M. still another alarm was sounded from four story brick building No. 76 East Baltimore street, owned and occupied by Wm. E. Hooper, Esq. This fire resulted from a furnace, and before the flames could be subdued the building and furniture were damaged to the amount of $300—insured in the Equitable office. At all the above fires the Department were as usual very prompt, and succeeded in confining the element to a very small space.

How to Prevent Broken Legs.—The snow and ice which covers our pavements are particularly dangerous. During the day they melt and great quantities of water flow from the roofs, which at night congeal and render the walking after nightfall and during the early morning exceedingly difficult and dangerous. All danger may be avoided by calling on Saml. Jackson, No. 194 W. Baltimore street, near St. Paul's, and obtaining one of his "Creepers" which, applied to the boots, will enable any one to walk in safety over the most slippery pavement.

Departure of Confederate Prisoners.—The following named gentlemen having obtained the proper passports, who were detained from going on the steamer Georgia last evening for want of passenger accommodations left on the steamer Adelaide this afternoon for Old Point, from where they expect to leave for Norfolk by flag of truce to-morrow, and when they reach Richmond will be exchanged for Federal prisoners of equal rank. They are: Capt. Tansill, Capt. Johnson, Lieut. Poole, Lieut. Lasselle, Capt. Sulton, Surgeon Jeffrey, ass't Surgeon Hindsay and ass't Surgeon Page. The above gentlemen have been here several days, and had the opportunity to leave for their homes, and whilst here have been most hospitably entertained by their friends and relations.

A Dastardly Outrage.—About 2 o'clock this morning, as Mr. Jas. W. Ward was going to his home, he was captured by a party of five or six men, in a central part of the city, a man wearing the Federal uniform stepped out from the sidewalk and threw a brick at the head of the gentleman, and came upon striking one of the glasses, and Mr. Ward jumped on his back and pursued the rascal, overtaking him a short distance from where the affair occurred, when a policeman stepped and said he would take Ward to the Station House if he did not immediately leave the soldier. Mr. Ward refused to go, and the parties inside having left, he afterwards found the coach at his stable.

The Release of Mayor Brown.—We stated in our 15th edition that the Federal Government had extended Mayor Brown's furlough to ninety days. Since then we have learned that Mr. Brown refuses the favor, because the conditions are that he shall not go further South than the Hudson River, and that he has returned again to Fort Warren. An order was sent from Washington for the release, upon taking the oath of allegiance, of Mr. W. H. Winder of this city, but Mr. Winder declined, and still remains in the hands of the Federal Government.

Front Street Theatre.—A very select audience visited Front Street Theatre last night to see Mr. McDonough, the eminent American tragedian. He will appear this evening in his celebrated character of Iphigene, in the grand four act play of Pizarro, or the death of Iphigene. Miss Charlotte Thompson will sustain Mr. McDonough in the character of Cora. The performance will conclude with the interesting drama of the Coiner's Cave, in which Miss Charlotte Thompson, Mr. McDonough's comedienne, Mr. Lamb will appear. Mr. McDonough's engagement closes on Saturday night, and it behooves those who have not seen him to do so at once, and secure their seats early.

Bryan's Curiosity.—These wonders are attracting great regard at Kunkel's Museum, and give satisfaction to all who have seen them. There is no humbug about them; they are really wonderful, and should not be permitted to leave the city without being seen by all who take an interest in the study of the animal kingdom. "What is it?" Albino Family and Living Walrus constitute the collection, and make up an exhibition well worth seeing.

Northern Central Railroad.—The General Freight Agent of this road gives notice, that all special rates on local freights over this road, made prior to or during the past year, (1861,) ceased to be in effect on the 31st December last. Hereafter all special rates will expire by limitation on the last day of the year in which they are made, except in cases where special agreements have been made to the contrary.

Released on Bail.—David R. Jones, charged with shooting with intent to kill John Shaney, was released on bail by Justice Nails on Tuesday last—Mr. J. F. Broadbent becoming his security in the sum of $1,000.

NOTICE.
Notice is hereby given that my private papers, as an abstract from some of my private papers, as an abstract from J. H. Whittier, 123 Baltimore St. Jan 16.

CITY ITEMS
Arrest on Suspicion of Going South.—Last night about 8 o'clock marshal Dodge received information to the effect that a large number of men were secretly in a house a short distance from the city on the Hill Air Road, occupied by a man named Russell, acting upon which, he immediately sent a posse of 25 policemen under command of Capt. James of the Eastern District. They arrived at the house about 9 o'clock, and surrounding the same, after quite a spirited resistance, succeeded in arresting the following named parties, charged with being about to leave for the State of Virginia—John Clark, E. J. Clark, Amos Thompson, Josiah Smith, W. H. Holman, H. W. Ford, Wm. Perry, John Watts, P. J. Swangler, John Gouldin, Richard Simpson, Wm. S. Gross, John Coleman, Heiman Stenz, J. S. Bradford, Pat O'Brien, J. T. Swain, Isaac Weaver, E. H. McCollum, H. L. Russell, John Fitzpatrick, David Summers, Jack Hays, Nicholas Kress. It is said there were a number of others who made their escape. During the excitement occasioned by the arrest, some fifty shots were fired by the two parties, without any injury either side. Policeman Riley was shot during the melee, but it was supposed to have been done by another officer accidentally. The whole party was taken to the Eastern Station House, where they are now confined awaiting the action of the authorities. We understand that so far nothing has been found to substantiate the charge made against them. As we go to press, we have a rumor to the effect that the number of men were arrested at 1 o'clock today in the western section of the city, upon the same charge.

Fire.—The Fire Department have been kept busy since 12 o'clock last night. At a quarter past twelve an alarm was sounded from box 15, which proved to have been a fire discovered in a two story unoccupied frame house, No. 32

An amphibious monster, known as the Walrus, the only one ever exhibited, captured in the bay regions of the North Pacific, weighing half a ton, and can be seen swimming in his aquatic trough at the Baltimore Museum.

THE WHAT IS IT?
A mysterious being, neither human nor animal, whose appearance is so singular, and whose nature is so mysterious, that it has attracted the attention of the most distinguished physiologists and anatomists of the world.

THE ALBINO FAMILY.
Particularly suitable for families and the curious of all ages. Comprising the most surprising living objects ever exhibited, which have just arrived from P. T. Barnum—New York Museum.
