and the second s FOREIGN EXTRACTS.

The Paris correspondent of the London Guar-) dian writes as follows to that journal: Yesterday a continuous stream of carriages, accompanied by a still broader current of pedestrie) aus, began to set towards the lakes of the Bois, which were known to have been for some days ; previous solidly frozen. It was a gay sight to see the entire population, high and low, in splendid turns-out and best attire, wending its way in a blaze of sunshine along the superb avenues glittering with hoar frost. But the vast thoroughfares were unable to meet the demands of the un- able terms, real and expeditions usual tide, and even in the broad expanse of the Avenue de l'Imperatrice itself the thousands of Tehicles came to a dead lock, and afforded ample to the Circuit Court for Baltimore city, the undersigned, Trussee, will sell by Public Auction, the undersigned, Trussee, will sell by Public Auction to their occurrents, male and female. opportunities to their occupants, male and female, the and existent berein named, on the 2th day of FREEL' for mutual examination and criticism. Even the Empress, looking as charming as \ she always does, in short petticoats and a chapeau al' Anglaise, figured on her skates with no small degree of dexterity. The party was completed by the De Mornys and other Court intimates, and by a considerable muster of Americans, male and fee made, who excel in the exercise, and who are favorites in the Imperial circle. The new Minister, Mr. Dayton, looked on with his usual bonkommic. evidently greatly amused and interested at the sight of a group of which the features and fortunes were evidently so strange and novel to his republican intelligence.

There is not a word of French news to add by way of ballast to the above Christmas couserie; and as to America, there seems to be a general assent that it is better to wait with patience for the certainty which must arrive speedily, than to worry ourselves any longer by fruitless conjec- | tures. The impression is, that there are still good grounds for hope of a peaceful issue; and this impression is shared by many moderate and sensible Americans. An official gentleman, highly placed in the War Department at Washington, and who has just arrived in Paris for his health, broken down by hard work, expresses himself very frankly in the following terms: "We have clearly acted wrongly and done what we had no right to do, and all Europe has declared itself against us. It is my wish and my expectation that we shall have good news from Washington." There is an im- i pression, too, among well-disposed Americans that) if President Lincoln wants the power to act right in this matter, General McClellan is prepared to ! give it him. The Emperor has done more than gain the good [will of England by the way in which he has acted) in the above matter. He has won the admiration) of many even of his own subjects who have hitherto refused it to him. The French are proud of i the man who has so evidently and undeniably shown himself superior to all petty interests and national jealousies, and withstood the strong temptation held out to profit by the difficulties of t a rival. He has entirely epurned the somewhat i mean policy, so strenuously advocated be the De bats, of thinking only of the "rich harvest" which "such a war" would open to France, and has come forward resolutely both in favor of peace) and of peace on our own terms. The feeling bere is that such conduct ought to do much to cement ! the alliance between, not only the two Govern-) ments, but between the two peoples, and they have a right in France to hope that such expectstions shall not be marred either by our acts or a language.

_____ The Religious Deputations and Earl Russell The London correspondent of the Boston Recor- 1 der, under date of London, Dec. 28, gives the only report we have seen of the interview between Earl | Frice $1 per battle or all ladden for $5. Russell and a deputation from "the three denomipations," a body composed of Congregationalists, Baptists and Presbytegians, from the Baptist TIVE, and take none other. Union, from the Congre, ational Union, and from the Presbyterian Board. The several deputations included the most prominent ministers and laymen, and their of ject was to state to the Government the strong aversion which, they felt to war with America, and to urge the propriety of resort being had to arbitration. The Recorder which it is recommended. Offenda ea one bottle has been to correspondent says:

"Their respective addresses having been read, Earl Russell said that the sentiments advanced by the gentlemen who had done him the honor to wait upon him, were exactly such as he should have expected from Christian ministers and gen-themen strongly imbued with Christian truth, and STEAM MARBLE WORKS, he fully sympathized with them in their aversion a to the war. That being so, the Government would do everything in its power, consistent with the i honor of the country, to bring about a peaceful) solution by the difficulty. As to arbitration, the not le Lord intimated that there would be no in- Monuments, Grave Stones, Mantles, disposition to resort to it, but the request for artatration must come from the American Government if they decline to comply with the British i demands. England could not propose it. "With reference to the article of the Paris Conference, proposing that differences should be setthed by the mediation of friendly powers, he said it did not apply to questions of national honor, rates but only to boundary and such like disputes. "This is a faithful account of what took place at the interview. Reporters were rigidly excluded and no statement has as yet appeared in a any of our journals. I may add further that there ! was but one impression among the deputations on a this point, that Larl Russell very seriously appre-
