

The South.

THIRTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.

SENATE.

The report and resolution of the naval committee in regard to the Secretary of the Navy, was taken up.

Mr. Folsom, of Vermont, said that the resolution stated that in a mode of making purchases by commission...

Mr. Blair, of Missouri, said that the resolution was not in the character of a censure, but in the character of a reproof or condemnation.

Mr. Blair, in further explanation, said he had never seen any man who would assert that General Patterson had yet put himself in danger, or would.

Mr. Blair said that the information was received here. Mr. Corvode—You said that Gen. Patterson sent the despatch.

Mr. Crittenden, of Kentucky, from the Select Committee, reported on the joint resolution of the Senate, passed on Saturday, the 22d, and in their presence the Farwell Address of Washington.

Mr. McKim, of Pennsylvania, said that Mr. Wickoff having appeared before the Judiciary Committee and answered the question propounded to him, that purging himself of contempt, he moved that Mr. Wickoff be brought before the bar of the House with the view that he may be released from custody by the action of this body.

Mr. McKim, of Pennsylvania, expressed his profound hatred of the agents, promoters and sympathizers with the rebellion—the declared principles on which it rests—the perfidious apostasy in which the deep duplicity was developed, and the violence and terrorism by which Secession was forced on an unwilling people, and the accused machinations of crafty men, who, while singing the praises of the Union, were plotting the destruction of the Government, and for the purpose of more easily attaining their ends sought entrance into all political parties, and alarmed the State interests, and prepared to combat against the Union, State sovereignty, he explained, as a Democratic doctrine, had assumed the position of armed rebellion, and to resist this, men have resorted to politicians and acted like men.

The committee then arose. The House concurred in the Senate amendment to the bill for the suppression of the Conlie tract. The Senate's joint resolution providing a stenographer for the committee on the conduct of the war, being read.

Mr. Lovejoy, of Illinois, called him to order on the ground of irrelevancy.

Mr. Wickliffe had merely to say that the committee were not fit to examine into the war. He had heard a great deal about their proceedings.

Mr. Vallandigham reminded the gentleman that Napoleon drove out the deputies and subverted the Government.

Mr. Blair, of Missouri, said that General Patterson telegraphed to Washington that General Johnson had eluded him the night before, and Johnson, it was known, was thus enabled to participate in the fight.

Mr. Blair, in further explanation, said he had never seen any man who would assert that General Patterson had yet put himself in danger, or would.

Mr. Blair said that the information was received here. Mr. Corvode—You said that Gen. Patterson sent the despatch.

The committee then arose. The House concurred in the Senate amendment to the bill for the suppression of the Conlie tract. The Senate's joint resolution providing a stenographer for the committee on the conduct of the war, being read.

Mr. Wickliffe, of Kentucky, said that Congress had, through that committee, undertaken the command of the war.
