Por the Bathmore Clipper.

BUMMER. Day's host golden tinte have faded, Far behind the western hille; Burgoone evening's veil has shaded Mountains, valleys, brooks, and rife.

From the distant orient merging, See fair Cynthia's silvery disk, Sodest Beains, from thence diverging, O'er the landscape play and friek.

Through the star-deck it hall of heaven. See the Night-queen wend her way: Many a Mushing star is driven Out of eight, by her fair ray!

Swiftly o'er the Moon-lit water, Bec you gallant vessel glide; Eastern breezes, now have brought ber, By McHenry's gun-deck'd side.

Lovely prospect, I could ever Watch the fair enchanting sight; See the Fart, the hills, the river, Bathed in streams of silvery light?

Thus at life's declining story, May the beams of heavenly love, Light up fadeless scenes of glery, In you brighter world above.
