FRONT STREET THEATRE. The above Popular place of Amusement will Re-open on WEDNESBAY BYENING, 17th inst. 1811, under the exclusive Management and Direction of Mr. WARD.—who is proud in observing that he has received such promises as will enable him to offer to the public, the builliant productions of modern genius, in addition to careful selections from the admificient Spectacles and Melo-Dramas, calculated to Nos. Md. State Lottery, drawn yesterday-lowest $5: mise this establishment in the esumation of the drama's patrons, and render it one of the most useful theatres in the states. And, in order to the combining of a company which shall possess every claim to public approbation, the Manager will, shortly after the opening, preseat, in addition to many established favorites, several new candidates for their approbation. In the hope that a few remarks may not be deemed imperticent or isappropriate in his opening bill of fare, the manager in respectfully submitting them, takes leave to announce his intention of using every exertion and adopting every precaution in striving to reader his stage not merely attractive, but beneficial also, and worthy the approbation of every wise, talented, good and benevolent mun in the community. The drama is very frequently abused by those who never enter the walls of any of its temples, but who judge it from the permist of obsolete plays and such works as are seldom placed before the theatrical public, without being first subject to curtailment, and the language of the seventeenth century altated to the more pure taste of auditors of the present day. It ought, therefore, to be the business of the drama's professors, to explain these attacks and defend their art, and not to shrink from the wild and interested . beervation of the hypocrite and the fanatic. Next, to the pulpit, the stage is the best place to teach those moral rules which our higher perceptions point out as the most pure and persuasive. It is its duty to instil into the mind the best principles of moral rectitude in their most pleasing forms, by decorating its most rigid i maxime in an allumng dress -and by infusing them, as it were, into our very pleasures to make us enamored of them in proportion, as they are divested of austerity. breathes in the soul of a Cato, without feeling pity and who is about leaving the uneasy track of barren celi-Whoever witnessed the towering magnanimity which | admiration? or the deliberate villany which lago dewelopes without detestation and contempt! For the diama is a direction which wears out of our thoughts every thing i which is mean and little, cherishes and cultivates that \ humanity which is the ornament of our nature, softens insolence, coothes affliction, and subdues the mind to the dispensations of Providence: it is not surprising, therefore, that all civilized nations of the world are encouragers of plays, but amazing that so many, otherwise good men, should oppose and abuse what they

FIRE AND MILITARY COMPANIES. It has often occurred to Mr. Ward that such public ! bodies, to whom the city is so much indebted, as the Pire and Military companies of Baltimore, should frequently have invitations tendered to them to attend the theatre, as a slight tribute of respect by the Manager, for their untiling zeal and unwearied energy in the cause of humanity whenever their suffering fellow citizens require their assistance; and Mr. Ward bega to assure them, that he would have long since cheerfully communicated with them on the subject, if star arrange. ments had not interfered to prevent his carrying his ] wishes into effect. It now, however, affords him great pleasure to state that, in future, he proposes to give an invitation at least once every week, to a Fire or Military company, commencing with the oldest and terminating with the last established. On the nights i question, every effect will be exerted to render the eu- \ tertainments satisfactory, and the Manager will strive to gratify his friends and fellow citizens, by making the performances worthy the presence of the guests invited. ) ORDER IN THE THEATRE.
