

BALTIMORE CLIPPER

SATURDAY MORNING, FEB. 20, 1841.

PUBLIC LANDS. It is extraordinary that party discipline is brought to bear upon every subject, from the most insignificant to the most important. Whether the dispute be about straws or matters of the weightiest concern, it is conducted with equal earnestness. It is unfortunate that men should be bound so fast in the fetters of party as to become mere machines or puppets, to be worked as others may draw the wires. By this rigid party discipline, all freedom of action and of thought is sacrificed; and when a public measure is proposed, it is not canvassed upon its intrinsic merits, but is seized upon as a bone of contention, over which a party battle is to be fought. In this ridiculous strife, the real interests of the country are neglected or forgotten. The proposition to distribute the proceeds of the sales of public lands among the several States, is a subject which is not necessarily connected with party, and is of sufficient importance to be examined with reference exclusively to its justice and propriety. To the citizens of the old States in particular, it is a matter of vital consequence, and among them we should hardly expect to hear a dissenting voice to its adoption. But, instead of the unanimity which should, and would exist under a different condition of things, we have an array of party on one side to carry, and on the other to defeat the measure. Some oppose the distribution bill on the ground that it is unconstitutional, and yet they have no such scruples when it is proposed to cede the lands to the States in which they lie. Others, again, affect to think that the receipt of this money by the States, would have a corrupting influence, and lead to a dependence by the States on the General Government, if not to the assumption, by the latter, of the debts of the former. But these are shallow pretences, as unwise as they are unpatriotic, and form not the real motive of opposition to the measure. That is to be found in party dictation; and, as with wild geese, the leader guides the flock, so with parties. We wish that we could see party men so far unmanacled as to use their own limbs, see with their own eyes, and speak with their own tongues. It is "a consummation devoutly to be wished," but, we apprehend, not speedily to be witnessed.

In this question of the public lands the people of Maryland have a deep interest. The sum annually received from that source would relieve them to a considerable extent from taxation. And shall they reject so great a benefit? Will they consent to relinquish their interest in these lands, because it may suit the ambitious views of the misguided policy of this or that individual? Their right to a participation in the proceeds of the public lands is undoubted, and would be undoubted in this state but for party—then why permit this to be made a party question? It would be better to annihilate party spirit altogether than to make so great a sacrifice. But, say some, if you withdraw this fund from the public treasury, a compensating amount must be raised by an increase of duties. Agreed. This is the very effect which we wish to see produced. We are running in debt to the amount of millions annually for articles of luxury and other things with which we could dispense; and when it is asked how this debt is to be liquidated, echo answers, how? and we should like to see the man who can give a better reply. An increase of the tariff should be no obstacle to the passage of the distribution bill. Some of the states (and among them Maryland,) are largely in debt, and have no means of raising money except by taxes. The general government is comparatively free from embarrassment, and may increase its receipts to the desired point by additional duties, without aid from the public lands. But, if the proceeds from the sales of these lands were necessary to the general government, events show that they will not long be available, as the cessation project must succeed in the course of a few years, if a final disposition of the matter be not previously made. The distribution bill would prevent the further agitation of the subject by dealing out to all the states even-handed justice.

GAS COMPANY. A correspondent has sent us a forty-four pounder against the Gas Company. He complains of the incorrectness of the metres in construction and running—of the inferior materials of which the gas is made—of the enormous cost of the light, and of the increase of this cost without cause. The remedy he recommends is, to have sworn inspectors appointed to examine the construction of the metres and attend to their regulation; and to inspect the manufacture of the gas. We have heard considerable complaint on this subject, and we know that the expense of gas light has increased four-fold since the adoption of metres. We have no confidence in their accuracy, and should be pleased if the company would cause such corrections to be made in the premises as will quiet discontent, at the same time that justice is done to all parties.

We are informed that the suggestion of our correspondent in relation to the appointment of inspectors, is based upon the practice in other cities, where the same exceptions were taken to the metres as in Baltimore; and we have heard the opinion expressed, that great frauds may be committed in the construction of these machines. However this may be, we deem it our duty to comply so far with the request of our correspondent, as to call the attention of the company and the public to the subject.

RESCUE. A man named Madison saved a boy from drowning who fell through the ice at the Battery, New York, on Wednesday last.

USE AND ABUSE OF THE PRESS.

The use of the Press to diffuse correct information, to enlighten and instruct—to inculcate morality—to raise the standards, and to mend the heart. It is an abuse of the press to misrepresent facts, motives, or actions—to encourage immorality—to use abusive terms, or to expose the occurrences at the domestic fireside. It is not our intention to enter upon this wide field; we shall confine our attention to one point—the abuse of the press in dragging before the public matters which are entirely of a private character. Newspapers, in their eager search after novelty, do not sufficiently discriminate between that which is a proper subject for animadversion, and that which is of a strictly private nature; and hence we have events narrated, which, however they may minister to the morbid appetite, should remain secluded from public view. Petty disputes between individuals—the quarrels of lovers—domestic discord—runaway matches—disappointed hopes—every thing is now thought worthy of being paraded before the public. If the public morals could be improved by such publications, some benefit would result from the violation of propriety; but this is not pretended. The sole object appears to be, to create a demand for the paper in which such things are inserted; and this purpose is answered to a great extent. The press should be a terror to evil-doers, but it should disdain to resort to the family sanctuary, to drag forth and publish its secrets.

A SERENADE. A few evenings since, a young gallant, who had become enamoured with the loveliness of a fair form in one of the fashionable parts of our city, slung his guitar around his shoulders, and repaired to the spot where dwelt his beautiful ideal of beauty, for the purpose of waking up her sympathetic heart with the soft tones of plaintive melody. He commenced with "Wake from thy slumbers." Sure enough, while in the midst of his impassioned strains, a female form approached the third story window. "That," said he, "must be the divinity of my soul—I'll sing 'Young Love's Dream.'" No sooner was this thought of, than a soft tone broke from his guitar, accompanied by a voice almost celestial. We can imagine the secret, incomprehensible transmission of unalloyed affection, under such circumstances, to the form at the window, whom the minstrel's fancy had painted as the magnet of his heart. After a few more love-sick ditties had been disposed of, and the devoted youth was about making his exit, a voice from the lattice cried—"Massa, Massa, don't stop dat are music—jis gib me Jim Crow or Zip Coon, before yer gwine." The knight of the mustache was struck with awe. He found that his minstrelsy had been wasted upon the ear of Dinah, the young lady's chamber-maid, and that his devoted one had been out that evening, attending a soiree given by her neighbor.

INSTRUCTIONS. Mr. Williams, senator from Maine, has been instructed by the legislature to give certain votes or resign. We dislike this peremptory mode of proceeding; and as the doctrine of instruction has been practically carried out, the intention of the constitution in requiring U. S. senators to be chosen for six years, is defeated. It is not always that the legislature represents truly the wishes of the people; and unless delegates are chosen with express reference to the matters about which they undertake to instruct senators, we do not consider the latter bound to obey such instructions. We object to recalling senators upon every change of party in the legislature, because, where the popular vote is close, as in the state of Maine, senators might scarcely take their seats before they would be ordered back.

THE LAND OFFICE REPORT. The Philadelphia Ledger says. The annual report of the Commissioners of the Land Office, states that the sales of Public Lands during the year 1839 amounted to 4,976,352 87 acres, and the net proceeds from this source paid into the United States Treasury, during the same period, were $7,076,417 35.—The sales for the first three quarters of the year 1840, amounted to 1,696,617 42 acres, and the payments into the Treasury to $2,630,217 25. During eight years, from 1833 to 1840, both exclusive, there were sold 56,842,506 acres, and the receipts thereof paid into the Treasury, were $72,269,749 53. There will be prepared for the market, during the ensuing eighteen months, thirty-one millions and a quarter of acres.

AMERICAN GENIUS. We saw yesterday, a new historical painting of much merit by a young American artist. It is called "the wise men worshipping Christ," taken from the 2d chapter 5th and 11th verses of Matthew. The subject is certainly one of great beauty, and according to our taste, delineated in a masterly style upon canvas. Those wishing to be gratified with a sight of it, can call at No. 153 Baltimore st. where they will receive the polite attentions of Mr. S. G. Gale, the artist. Mr. G. has gained considerable celebrity in Europe, where he has sojourned for some years, and bids fair to become distinguished in his native land.

EULOGY. A very appropriate eulogium was delivered yesterday afternoon, in the University of Maryland, by Dr. G. W. Miltenberger, upon the death of the late Professor of Anatomy, Dr. W. N. Baker. We are informed that Dr. Miltenberger has been appointed to fill the place of Professor Baker, and will lecture on Anatomy during the remainder of the season.

The bill providing for an increase of tolls on the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, has passed both branches of the legislature, and is consequently a law.

General Harrison was expected to arrive at Richmond on Wednesday evening last. Great preparations were being made for his reception.

R. M. Welsh, esq., has been confirmed by the Senate to the office of Notary Public.

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF THE MILITARY COMMISSION.

This morning the senate is quarrelling about the election of a printer to that body for the next congress. It is contended by the whigs that the joint resolution authorizing the election of that officer for a succeeding congress, is unjust, and ought to be repealed.

In the house, the chairman of the military committee stated, that a report, embracing a general plan of defence for the country, had been prepared, and was in readiness whenever the house should think proper to receive it. It will probably be taken up to-morrow.

Mr. Stanly having last night spoken rather harshly of certain resolutions passed by the legislature of South Carolina, Mr. Holmes of S. C. this morning wished to put a question to him on that subject. Mr. Stanly objected, whereon Mr. Campbell of S. C. advised Mr. Holmes to treat any thing Mr. S. might say against their state with silent contempt. Mr. C. also added that the puny arm of Mr. Stanly was not long enough to reach the state of South Carolina.

Mr. Stanly rose, and holding out his arm at full length, said it was long enough to reach the member from South Carolina, or any other member.

The house then went into committee of the whole, and took up a bill for continuing in force an act granting half pay to certain widows and orphans.

After some debate on this bill, the war with Mr. Stanly was again renewed.

Mr. Pickens of S. C. alluding to what Mr. S. had said against that state last evening, made some satirical remarks in relation to the "pigmy" arms of that member. Also that the efforts of the member to injure South Carolina were about as ineffectual as the arrows of the savage which were shot at the sun. The dreaded valor of the gentlemen, said Mr. P., reminds me of the surgery rhyme,

Who shot Cock Robin?
I says the Sparrow
With my bow and arrow,
I shot Cock Robin.

Mr. P. went on to hint that Mr. Stanly was about as much to be feared as a sparrow, etc.—[Mr. Stanly is the smallest man in the house in point of stature.]

Mr. Stanly replied, and assured the member from South Carolina, that he, Mr. S., small as he was, could kill a whole cowpen full of such cock robins as he. Mr. S. also likened Mr. P. to a "choked fish." After some further recrimination, the cham interfered, and the debate went on with more order.

I leave you to make your own comments upon such "parliamentary" proceedings.

HARPER'S FAMILY LIBRARY. We have received from Messrs. Cushing & Brother, Nos. 123, 124 and 125 of this popular work. The present numbers contain the "Lives of Distinguished Men of Modern Times." They are embellished with beautiful engravings of John Wiclif, Edmund Burke, and De Witt Clinton.

MAGAZINES. We have received the following from Mr. William N. Harrison, 174 Baltimore street and 23 N. Gay street:

"Graham's Lady's and Gentleman's Magazine," for March, 1841. Besides the plate of fashions, there is a beautiful engraving attached to the story of the "Lady Isabel." The contents are various and appropriate, and the work deserving of patronage.

"The Lady's Amaranth," containing tales, historical and biographical sketches, &c. It is published for $1.25 for 26 numbers—cheap enough in all conscience.

"The Family Magazine, or Monthly Abstract of General Knowledge," illustrated with several hundred engravings. This publication is in imitation of the Penny Magazine, and abounds with useful information and a variety of subjects. It should be extensively circulated, the cost being only $1.50 per annum.

We have also received from the editor and publisher, G. H. Hickman, the "Juvenile Mirror," No. 8; designed for youth and well adapted to their improvement, the selections being chiefly historical, biographical and moral. We are glad to see Master Hickman thus putting forth his energies. "Tall oaks from little acorns grow."

BANK ROBBERS. An attempt was made on Saturday or Sunday night last, to break into the Railroad Bank, at Lowell. The thieves succeeded in opening the outer door of the vault by means of false keys; but the inner door was fastened by one of Andrews's patent locks, which they could not pick. They attempted to force it off, but did not succeed, although they appear to have been well prepared with instruments for the purpose, and they left the premises, having got nothing for their pains. $500 reward is offered for their apprehension.

SHIPWRECK. The schooner Margaret, Laurence, from Combahee for Charleston, with about 220 barrels rice and twenty bales cotton, went ashore on the South breaker, on the afternoon of the 12th inst. and is a total loss. The steamer Southerner, which left on the 13th inst. for Savannah, was alongside about three hours, and it is probable she took off the crew and cotton, and proceeded on her voyage.

NAVAL. We learn by the Norfolk Beacon, that Commodore Morris is to go out in the ship of the line Delaware, to take command of the Mediterranean squadron. It is rumored that Captain Connor is to be his flag captain. It is also rumored that Commodore Warrington is to succeed Commodore Morris as President of the Navy Board.

ELECTION. George W. Krebs, esq. was elected, on Thursday last, a member of the city council, in the place of Samuel Harden, esq. deceased. He was the whig candidate, and had no opposition.

The following is from the N. Y. Sun, which fully explains the great hoax and also proves that we were not far from the mark, when we pronounced it a made up story. We have been at Niagara and thought it would have been rather a tough job for eyes Nature herself to have accomplished such a piece of destruction of her own making.

LATEST NEWS FROM NIAGARA FALLS. A second express having arrived, we have the pleasure of informing our anxious readers that all is right again. Goat Island has lifted itself from the abyss into which it had fallen, and regained its old position: Middle Tower looks as large as ever; the spiral staircase is where it was before; the excellent hotel is re-opened for the reception of visitors; the wheels of the natural revolution have rolled backward; the rocks have again appeared "their everlasting barrier, and Niagara's eternal flood still flows and roars, and thunders as it has done since the world began.

Perhaps, kind reader, by this time you begin to think that we have been most deceivably hoaxed, and in truth we have strong suspicions to that effect ourselves. We had half a mind to be vexed at first, and were disposed to scold the scoundrel roundly; but upon second thought we remembered the "Moon Story," and concluded we might as well keep quiet. But really it is not pleasant to be laughed at; and if we only had the author upon the brink of Goat Island, we would punish him by holding him in the foaming flood by the heel, as Thetis did her immortal son Achilles. However, we would not let him "go over the dam," for we perceive something clever about him. Although he has told us a confounded lie, he has done it very plausibly, fortified as it is by the predictions of geologists.

There is no cruelty in his hoax, and we trust no malice in his heart. If he will only let us know his name, we will treat him to a capital dinner at the "Clinton," trimmed with some of Benoo & Hodges prime "old Stackpole" at $1 a bottle. What say you, nomenis unbro? As for our kind friend, Mr. C. McNorton, who came on by express from Buffalo, and immediately forwarded to us the "only extra that had reached the city," we are greatly indebted to him for his extreme politeness, and will give him a drink of "hard cider" the first time we meet him.

FROM FLORIDA. We learn by the New Orleans Picayune that Col. Riley with his detachment recently succeeded in surprising and capturing Cosa Tustenogge's band, numbering over 100, on the head waters of the Ochlawha. They had free papers from Gen. Armistead to proceed without molestation to Tampa Bay for the purpose of surrendering themselves, so that Colonel Riley, after achieving by far the greatest victory during the war, was obliged to let them go. Whether they will surrender themselves remains yet to be seen.

THE MOBILE JOURNAL of the 11th inst. says: A paragraph is going the rounds of the northern papers, stating that the Legislature of this state, previous to adjournment last month, "passed a law authorising the banks to suspend specie payments until the 15th of November next, when the Legislature meets again." This is an error—no such act passed, and the state in which the Legislature left that part of the bank question, is one of the gravest causes of complaint against them for neglect of the most obvious points of duty.

MAGNETIC HOAX. Some wag wrote a letter to the keeper of a lecture room in Massachusetts a few days ago signed "Wm. L. Stone," stating that he intended to lecture on magnetism that evening. The necessary preparations were made, but at the appointed time no lecturer made his appearance. It was not until the patience of the audience was pretty well tested that they found out that they were nicely hoaxed.

CANADA MILITARY FORCE. There are 20,000 regulars in the two provinces. In addition, each regiment of militia is required to have two flank companies in constant readiness. As there are 113 regiments in the Upper Province, this will give 16,000 men. A force of 36,000 would thus be called into the field at a moment's notice.

NEW LIFE BOAT. There is now building at the shop of Mr. George James, Philadelphia, a large life boat capable of carrying one hundred persons. It is intended for the steam frigate, at present on the stocks at the Navy Yard. This will be when finished the largest boat of the kind ever built in this country.

FOUND. A package of money ($1,400) was found in a yard in Boston on Tuesday night. It is supposed to have been the money stolen by James Gardner from Mrs. Wheeler, who was tried for the offence last week. Gardner was to have been sentenced the following morning.

GOING THE ROUNDS. We yesterday received several New York and Brooklyn papers of the 22d and 23d ult. by way of New Orleans; also, a lot of New Orleans papers of the 27th and 28th by way of New York.

STEAMBOAT SUNK. The steamboat Wilmington is sunk at Salaria. She was freighted with cotton, a part of which, it is thought, will be saved. The boat will be a total loss.

ANOTHER FIRE AT CHICAGO. On the morning of the 9th inst. a fire broke out in a house occupied by Alfred Root, which was partially destroyed. The damage was very small.

ALTERED NOTES. It was decided in the N. Y. Court of Common Pleas on Monday last, that a bank is not liable for the original value of a note that has been altered or defaced.

GRANT BEQUEST. A Mr. Bartlett, by his will, has left $50,000 to the Andover Theological Seminary. His estate is said to be worth half a million.

An English editor, with much gravity, says that the way they procure black writing ink in South Carolina, is by whipping the negroes until they cry, and then catching the tears!

APPOINTMENT. Wm. Roselius has been appointed Attorney General in New Orleans.

Harry Placide is playing another engagement at Charleston.

LIST OF APPLICANTS For the benefit of the Insane Law of Maryland, for the last week.

Christopher Kruger,	Richard P. Willing,
Michael Alter,	John Henry,
John M. Fisher,	Thomas King,

To appear before the Commissioners of Insane Deacons, 5th April, 1841, at 10 o'clock, a. m., to answer interrogatories.

Day of final hearing before the said Commissioners, 5th April, 1841, at 10 o'clock, a. m., and also before Baltimore County Court, to answer interrogatories, if any.

MARRIED.

On the 18th inst. by the Rev. Dr. Roberts, Mr. Geo. W. Akers to Miss Sarah Ann Coker, all of this city.

On the 11th inst. by the Rev. Mr. Schreiber, John Mullin to Miss Maria McCranny, all of this city.

On the 4th of October last, by the Rev. Mr. Renssler, John Durrell to Miss Ann Conolly, both of this city.

At Philadelphia, on Tuesday evening, 14th inst. by the Rev. Albert Barnes, William Roney, Jr. of Baltimore, to Rebecca, daughter of John Roney, of Philadelphia.

DIED.

On Thursday, 11th inst. Mrs. Jane Owen Miller, widow of John Miller, aged 40 years.

In Carroll county, Mrs. Clara V. aged 78 years.
