BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

A COUNCIL SKETCH-(BY SNAPS.) The poet hath heard a debate in the F. B. of C. C----l, on a resolution offered by Mr. P. to remunerate Mr. H. for killing and burying thirteen mad dogs.

Sir P. arose, and gravely said, That the dog-catcher should be paid; He therefore would sustain the bill, Twas justice now and would be still. Dogs may snarl and bark and bite, But barking much don't make things right-The man you all can surely see, Has killed the dogs-and here's his plea:-Our laws do plainly on their face, Wage war against the canine race, Then every pointer, bull or pup, That strolls the streets should be used up-Here with the rights that I've been granted, I'll war, for justice sure is wanted.

Another P., the biggest P., Arose, and spake his mind quite free. Now, hark you, Mr. President, To me this matter has been sent; The man I find was not employ'd To kill the dogs he has destroy'd; He was a common volunteer, Who gather'd in from far and near Bulls, pups, lap-dogs, for all that I know, Then killed the critters for the rhino-I therefore have his claims assailed, And think that they should be cur-tailed.

Sir K., a liberal man is he, And ditto is his friend Sir B. K. thought that H. should have his dues, And he for one would not refuse To give the petty sum required, For of the matter he'd grown tired. He made a move that H. be granted The quid pro quo his honor wanted-B. thought his friend's a clever notion, Arose and seconded the motion.

Sir G., a squire of much repute, Got up and quickly followed suit; He made a speech, perhaps the best, His eye flash'd fire, he smote his breast, Out rolled the words in accents free-A mighty, mighty man is G., For scarcely had he said his last, Until the self-same bill was passed.

If we examine the nature of the above i consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Buch being the case there can be no duobt but such a remedy as Valier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their opquanty as that of the screw botts.
