

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 12, 1841.

THE TIMES. We are too apt, generally, to attribute our embarrassments and misfortunes to any other than the right cause. We look abroad, instead of at home. A man will make a display of silver plate, lounge on costly ottomans, and give parties which cost some three or four hundred dollars each, and yet complain of hard times and the scarcity of money. With such men, the most prosperous times would be hard; for, as they always spend more than they earn, they must necessarily be constantly in debt. We do not speak at random when we say, that nearly one-half of the money that is usually spent by what are termed fashionable persons, could be saved without inconvenience; and the misfortune is, that the spirit of imitation is so great, that the same extravagant disposition extends throughout society. Franklin's precepts and examples have ceased to have influence, and most persons disregard the cost of the whistle, provided it can be purchased on credit. It is the abuse of credit that produces so much evil and such loud complaints against the hardships of the times. Bank accommodations are made to supply what ought to be procured by productive labor; and men resort to expedients to sustain a fictitious style, instead of living comfortably by the reduction of expenses. This introduces vice and immorality, particularly among the younger portions of society; for the youth who has been raised in luxury, and with a contempt for honest industry, will not relinquish his habits, though they have to be maintained at the expense of reputation.

The frog in the fable, being envious of the size of the ox, foolishly thought that he could swell himself to his dimensions, and burst in the experiment. In like manner, persons of moderate circumstances, who attempt to maintain an equal style with their more wealthy neighbors, are sure to fail in the effort, and to bring ruin, if not disgrace, upon themselves and families. The extraordinary disposition to display, which so universally prevails, would be a just subject of ridicule, if it were not productive of more melancholy results; but much of the distress and misery that exists, can be traced to this source. It is an easy thing to get into debt; and many take advantage of the facility to launch into folly and extravagance. The pride of dress, the desire to be in the fashion in all things, become a passion which must be gratified, though bankruptcy be the consequence. To clothe a fashionable son or daughter, is now an expensive undertaking; and yet the humblest parents have the ambition that their children shall make a figure. The ambition is laudable, but the mode of gratification is wrong. "An honest man is the noblest work of God;" and the most desirable figure is that which can be honestly achieved. Every parent should be anxious to give to his children such training and such principles as will enable them to occupy this enviable position.

PHILADELPHIA LETTERS. If we were, in compliance with the injunction, "to answer a fool according to his folly," we should deal harshly with the editor of the Ledger, who has taken occasion to give us a short lecture on currency, a subject upon which he seems to fancy himself fully equal to Mr. Washburn. If low abuse could compensate for fair argument, we should fear to encounter the "learned Theban" of the Ledger—but as we are not in the habit of descending to the level of every one who may throw dirt at us, we must be excused from a controversy with said editor. Whenever we may stand in need of advice on the currency or any other subject, we shall at least seek it from those who can give it in decent language. Notwithstanding the "fog" by which he supposes us to be enveloped, our vision is not so obscured that we cannot see precisely where "the shoe pinches." "What is one man's meat is another's poison;" and so we dismiss him to his kennel.

The first number of the fourth volume of the Baltimore Clipper, one of the very best papers in the country, came to us yesterday, considerably improved, with new heads, &c. The above complimentary notice is from the Philadelphia Chronicle, a handsomely printed and well conducted paper; a paper whose approbation will outweigh the censures of a dozen such vehicles as the Philadelphia Ledger. We are happy to inform our friends of the Chronicle, that the citizens of Baltimore duly appreciate our exertions to render the Clipper acceptable; and that they have extended to us a patronage exemplified for the short time that the paper has been published.

The "Honorable" James Palfre, the owner of the unfortunate steamboat Home, has commenced suit against the different insurance companies in New York, with which he had effected insurance on that vessel. Against the American Insurance Company for $10,000. The defendants in the other cases are, the Atlantic Insurance Company for $10,000; the Jackson-Marine Insurance Company for $10,000; and the New York State Marine Insurance Company for $5,000. The trial commenced on Wednesday, and it is probable will occupy the court for ten or fifteen days.

PARDON. William Gwynn Jones was pardoned by President Van Buren, a few days before his presidential term expired, and was released from the Penitentiary some day last week. Mr. Jones has been in confinement about six years.

LOTTERIES. It will be seen by the legislative proceedings, that a bill to regulate the drawing of lotteries in this state, has been reported by Mr. Nisbet. We have heretofore spoken of the necessity of some legislative regulation on this subject; and whilst Mr. Nisbet has his hand in, we hope that he will embrace a most material part of the lottery system, viz: the formation of the schemes, and the deduction that is to be taken from adventurers. Under the present arrangement, the gross discount upon the lottery schemes is from thirty to forty per cent., whereas the law never designed that the discount should exceed fifteen per cent. The paltry sum received by the state treasury offers no justification for this palpable injustice; and we have apprehension in asserting that a fair system could be more productive to the state, and advantageous to lottery dealers. If Mr. Nisbet will carefully examine the full scheme of any lottery, he will soon see the deception which is practiced. We presume that the legislature would not knowingly countenance unfairness; and members cannot be fully aware of the principle upon which lotteries are drawn under the contract with the state.

This subject will, we hope, be brought forward at the extra session; and we consider it the duty of the legislature to give it an attentive examination. If lotteries must be drawn by authority of the state, the benefits of them should be confined, as far as practicable, to our own citizens.

ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND. We yesterday attended the Annual Commencement of the Faculty of Physic at the above institution. There were present a large number of ladies and gentlemen to witness the imposing ceremonies. After a short prayer by the Rev. Dr. Wyatt, the students (twenty-four in number,) were regularly called up, and received from the President their respective diplomas. Degrees of honor were also conferred upon four gentlemen, not members of the institution. Some of the graduates were particularly flattered. We observed upon two occasions, after the parchment had been received by the newly adopted sons of Esculapius, beautiful bouquets descend from among the fair auditors, and fall blushing at the devoted shrine of young ambition.

A very beautiful and appropriate address to the graduates was delivered by Wm. E. Aikin, Dean. It contained much wholesome advice, and no doubt left an impression on the minds of those to whom it was particularly addressed, which will be lasting even as life. The Rev. Mr. Hamner pronounced a benediction, when the imposing scene closed, and the auditory dispersed much delighted. The names of the graduates will be given in the regular report of the Faculty.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL. Our correspondent "Jupiter" pays some high compliments to Mr. Granger, the new Postmaster General, which are no doubt well deserved, but which we decline to repeat lest it be thought that we are among the "thousand and one" applicants for the office of Postmaster of Baltimore.

The communication of "Jupiter" contains one fact which is worthy of record. He says that the clerks of the post office, on being paid for past months, were "induced to stand against them." He who pays his debts as soon as he has the means, is the next best to him who never purchases on credit.

"Jupiter" thinks that the "Metropolitan Lyceum" will, ere long, present to the world some bright and daring spirits. Mr. McCarty, for instance, is destined to fill a high and important "trait." We are rejoiced to hear of improvement, and hope that Mr. McCarty and other members of the Lyceum may receive the credit due to their literary excellence. And, as intellectual competition is honorable, we would respectfully suggest, that the Lyceum of the District challenge those of Baltimore to a discussion, each side selecting a given number of debaters. What think you of this proposition, "Jupiter?"

POLITICAL CONVENTIONS. The administration and opposition members of the legislature have had meetings, and recommended that conventions be held for the nomination of candidates for Governor of the State of Maryland, at the election to take place next fall. The convention of the administration, or whig party, is to be held in Baltimore on the first Thursday in June next; and that of their opponents, in the same city, on the second Thursday in May next. There will be an abundance of aspirants on both sides, for, wherever there is money there will be flies. We hope that respectable and intelligent gentlemen may be nominated on both sides, so that the people of Maryland may not be ashamed of their governor whichever party may succeed.

NEW YORK CITY. The number of buildings in the compact part of the city of New York, is 33,416; of which there are used as breweries, distilleries, tanneries, and the like, 46; as dwelling houses exclusively, 15,455; as dwellings with shops, 6,614; as stores and offices exclusively, 3,555; as taverns and private boarding houses, 726; as baths, 9; as factories, with engines equal to 1100 horse power, 74; as large factories, with labor-saving power, 172; as private stables, 2,603; as livery stables, 137; as dairy stables, 57; miscellaneous, 1,355.

The number of pupils in the New York Deaf and Dumb Institution, embraced in the catalogue of the present year, is 152. During the year 35 have been admitted, and 52 have left. The receipts for the year amount to $31,171 23, and the drafts upon the treasury to $25,119 64, leaving a balance in the treasury of $6,052 64.

McLEOD. The New York Express mentions a rumor received from its Washington correspondent, that the President has sent a communication to the Governor of New York, relative to the McLeod arrest.

U. S. SHIP POTOMAC. The following letter from the U. S. Consul at Montevideo, to the Editors of the American, contains the gratifying assurance that the Potomac has received no injury whatever by having been aground in the river Plate:

CONSULATE OF THE UNITED STATES, MONTVIDEO, Dec. 30th, 1840.
Gentlemen:—Fearing that reports may be circulated in the United States, calculated to alarm the public for the safety of the United States Ship "Potomac," Lawrence Kearny, Esq. Commander, bearing the broad pendant of Commodore Ridgely, I beg leave to state that she got under way from the outer roads of this harbour on the 13th inst. having an experienced branch pilot on board, and proceeded up the river for the purpose of watering, and that she grounded the same day on the banks of Lago Gregoria, about eighteen leagues to the westward of the Mount.—Captain Kearny immediately dispatched a boat to Buenos Ayres with the information of the circumstance to the Commodore, and another to this Consulate, when vessels were sent from each place without delay to her assistance. The tide being very low, she remained a ground until the 24th inst. when the river became high and she was hove off, and I am happy to say, (using Captain Kearny's own words) "without having sustained the slightest injury." During the time she was a ground, the weather remained uncommonly mild, and the river remarkably tranquil. We look for the return of the "Potomac" so soon as the wind changes, which is now blowing strong from the eastward.
Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
R. M. HAMILTON,
U. S. Consul.

LATE & IMPORTANT FROM FLORIDA. The steamboat Gen. Taylor, Capt. Peck, arrived on Saturday night from Florida. We hasten to lay before our readers the following letter from an esteemed friend, giving an account of a recent skirmish with the Indians.

[Savannah Republican.]
FORT RUSSELL, E. F. March 2d, 1841.
Gentlemen—I hasten to inform you of the express starts for Florida, of the re-appearance of the Indians this evening at Orange Creek, within three miles of this Fort. Lt. Albertis, of the 2d Regiment of Infantry, who was detached from Fort Russell some few days since to garrison Fort Brooke, about five miles distant, was startled about eleven o'clock this morning by hearing the wild cry of the Indian Bandits in the direction of Fort Russell. Taking with him twenty-four men of his small command, Lt. A. immediately left Fort Brooke, and following the direction of the cries, encountered the Indians in force at Orange Creek Hammock, only three miles from Fort Russell. On perceiving the Indians, Lt. Albertis opened a heavy fire upon them, which continued for an hour; but as the Indian force continued to increase, numbering about one hundred, and Lieut. Albertis being fired away all his ammunition, he was compelled to retreat back to Fort Brooke, bearing with him five of his men severely wounded. Having deposited the wounded in a block house, together with the females of the post, and established a guard with orders to fight or die should the post be attacked during his absence, Lieut. Albertis again issued forth, accompanied by only seventeen men, with the determination to cut his way through the Indians in order to communicate to Capt. Barrum, the commander of Fort Russell.

On arriving once more at Orange Creek, the Indians emerged from the hammock, and offered Lieut. Albertis battle, in the broad pine barren. That officer, with bravery almost unparalleled, with only seventeen men, again fought the enemy nearly an hour, and at times although hemmed in by him, made his way through the whole force of Alex. Tustenugge to the post of Fort Russell, losing along the gauntlet of fire only one man.—The commanding officer of Fort Russell immediately left in pursuit of the enemy. Our wagons have already brought into Fort Russell 2 killed, 1 Corporal and 1 Private—6 wounded, 1 Sergeant, 1 Corporal and 4 Privates, and one is missing. Killed—Corporal Lang, Co. G., 2d Inf.; Private Hook, Co. H., 2d Inf.

Wounded—Norman Luke, Orderly Sergeant, Co. K., 2d Inf.; Corporal Hanford, Co. K.; Privates Holmes, Co. K.; Newton, do.; Bowden, do.; McQuilling, do. Missing—Private Metic.

The loss of the enemy cannot be ascertained, as the Indian warriors were seen to drag off their dead and wounded as fast as they fell. Yet my word for it, Alex. Tustenugge at the head of his hundred warriors, while contemplating his slain, cherished at this moment feeling more bitter against Lieut. Albertis and his "seventeen men."

P. S.—No Indian news from Tampa. The Indians come in have not yet gone West.
