The poet hath attended a supper gives by members of the City Council, and hath enjoyed himself much.

According to the previous motion, Which was a buncum, first-rate notion, The epicures did all agree, To join and have a council spree, Or if you please, a jovial supper, And sure enough it was a whapper. On Thursday night, at eight o'clock, To Richard's went the chosen flock, Prepared for prompt, immediate action, On bills which gave great satisfaction; Fifty strong were there assembled, All of whom quite much resembled Wise counsellors or men of state. Who sure are destin'd to be great.

Some members, so report hath said, Had caten nothing but dry bread ... For day's before the wonted least, And that they had their stomachs greased; Those liberal minds went for expassion in In all things of a small dimension; They're fond of good things, fond of mirth. And sure to have their money's worth. A few there were for lacking out, Who had a kind of serious doubt, That suppers might beset with sin, And kinder-sorter suck 'em in; They urged an excellent desence, The argument of temperance.

The host produced no common board, With plenty were the tables stored; Terrapins, oysters, canvas-backs, Trimmings, etc.; and such nick-nacks, Turkeys well roasted, turtle soup, And pullets from the chicken-coop; Yes, every thing that man could wish, Of vegetable, fowl, flesh or fish, Were placed before him all complete, So that he could not help but eat.

The cating done, champagne was brought, The corks went pop as quick as thought, And ere the bubbles ceased to rise, Its spirit peeped through many eyes. Wit, sharp and keen, went round the board, And if our head had been a gourd, It surely would have been elated, To see grave counsellors animated.

Come, fill your glasses, here's a toast-"Our sixth ward member, friend and host, May he live long to legislate, In council-chamber or in state."

"Well now," says B., "I guess I'll try And make to this some short reply: I find you want from me a speech, Then here's to one, to all and each, .Who now surround this festive table, May they be always hale and able To stand with boldness to the rack. And take a good, substantial snack."

A rap was on the table made, When Mr. C. arose and said— "Here, by my coat and by my button. I'll give a toast to member Hutton; A man is he of judgment strong, Whose vote is seldom ever wrong."

"I'm not accustomed much to speaking, But sure as I'm alive and kicking, I can't withstand this compliment, Then here's to all, with one consent, A good, fat supper every year, Such as you see before you here." This toast went off with much eclat, And some were struck with silent awe, To see the member stand so bold, When from his lips the words were told.

Friend B. did kindly tout the Clipper, "That's good," said J., "let's have a nipper," And so, in fashion, touched our glasses, Then made some compliment'ry passes: "Here's luck to you," said J. to B., "And while your bark is on life's sea, May prosperous breezes still be given, To wast you to some genial haven.

That story of the humming-bird, Was told in spirit, word for word, Each action suited to the point, Which seem'd to nimble every joint Of him who shew'd how great a pest, Was that thing call'd a hornet's nest; Struggling then, 'mid hopes and fears, He gain'd himself three hearty cheers.

Various sentiments were given, In number more than thirty-seven: Enjoyment reigned throughout the scene, A modest though delighted queen; Till time stole;on with steady pace, And bade each guest his steps retrace For that bright spot where pleasures beam; The home of pure contentment's dream.

WARRINGTON TRAPERANCE MOCIETY. The unexampled success which has crowned the exections of the Washington Temperance Society of Ballimore, the extraordinary increase of members, and the general interest awakened in the cause of total abeliannes from intoxicating drinks, have induced as to apply for a charter to the Legislature of Maryland, that we might enjoy all the privileges of incorporated associations, and maintain an attitude of becoming dignity before the public.

We design to raise the money by stock, in shares of $10 each, for the particulars of which, and plan w the building, &c., we beg leave to re-Building Committees.

It is our carneet wish to dispose of this stock, and we appeal most confidently to the members of Temperator Societies generally, to aid us in this laudable enterprise. We shall furnish them with a most commodious place of meeting, and the very fact of many Societies convening at the | DOBINSON'S ACADEMY, 119 BALTIMORS same place, will tend greatly to concentrate our E. We appeal to the various Literary Societies of our city, who at present, have but limited or very expensive accommodations. The rooms we de- | es PEED and FLOUR STORE, opposite Lexingsign to furnish, will be admirably adapted to the purposes of such associations. We appeal to property holders and capitalists to come to our aid, believing that a safer investment of money could not be made. We appeal to the friends of public improvement, and to men of architectural taste, as we design to erect an edifice which will be an ornament to our city, consecrated as it will be to [ the cause of humanity, literature and science.
