WASHINGTON, March 13, 1841. Gentlemen: Should you be disposed, you can give these few incoherent lines a place in your invaluable little sheet otherwise unoccupied. The penny press already shines very bright in the galaxy of literature: And for the easiness of access to its columns, from all quarters, it is getting to be the most powerful engine for the diffusion of useful and practical knowledge. A man who does not take a paper at all, will from the | days. cheapness of this press, be induced to take one: or else he is hooted at by all, as too grovelling and sordid to live: a man who cares neither for the welfare of others nor himself (in a literary point of view.) There is a good deal of news to be gleaned in the Federal City at this time:

This Society has organized a committee to take subscriptions, of our citizens, for the erection of 4 and for sale by a suitable hall to hold their subsequent meetings in: and in this they are to be aided, I understand, by the committee appointed by the Metropolitan

Lyceum for the same desirable object. By the by, I attended this Society a few evenings since, [] when they had "were the Roman conquests juslifiable" under consideration. In this debate, I could but admire the amazing progress of some of its members in Roman history, and in ancient lore. In the discussion of this subject, Messrs. Hoover, McCarty and Allen, took a conspicuous part and showed great tact in debate, (for I may | have been heretelore conducted, he has therefore taken | fula; Balt Rheum; Tetters; Canker, and all Impurities say novices in the art of oratory.) But to the great pains to conduct mis establishment in such a lof the Blood. subject of procuring a hall for these institutions:-Lthink I would be justifiable in saying that the generous, literary, and magnanimous people of Washington, will not be deaf to the appeal on behalf of the institutions noticed. They recollect the insight they derive from the establishment of these institutions: that they are beacons to direct our course in debates and fire the mind with a laudable ambition for the attainment of this most essential of qualificationsan education.

I recently attended a Soirce given by Mr. Fill, at his dancing academy. It was conducted with a good deal of that courtesy which characterises this gentleman, and gave general satisfaction to all. I am with sentiments of respect, yours, &c. Domesticus.

STOLEN PROPERTY RECOVERED. A few days ago, it was noticed in this paper as a most singular and andacious piece of villany that a clergyerection of an eddy in Jones's Falls, to prevent man of this city had been robbed of his horseland gig in open daylight while he was performing Divine service on the previous Sunday. We are glad to learn that the sufferer alluded to (the worreported favorably relative to the Baltimore and thy Pastor of St. Matthew's Church) has recovered his horse and gig—the former almost driven to death, the latter a good deal worse for wear. The audacious villain had driven away the spoils into Montgomery county, and had thought it prudent to abandon them at or near Brookeville .-We understand that hopes are entertained that the thief may yet be overtaken, or caught in or about the Monumental city.—Nat.
