on things that might be. In order to give locality | Fratt streets, Baltimore, advance money upon GOODS to our hero, we shall place him in a city distinguished for its monuments, beautiful ladies, commerce, office-seekers, and numerous other things too tedious to mention. Our hero may as well have a name, so we shall call him Jerry Solicisous. Jerry was an individual who had not forgotten the important study of human nature. lived during the Jast war—longer as 11—and, as:

One thing which attracted the attention of our hero New York Daily and Weekly Herald, &c. &c. more particularly than any thing else that had No. 12 NORTH STREET, near the Post-office. recently come within the compass of his observation, was the fact that he had witnessed a large AGENT & COLLECTOR, N. The paper was dreadful croup, I called in medical aid—in spite of generally headed -"To his excellency the Presi- pound Byrup of Heathound and Boneset was recomdent of the United States." Then came the pre- mended to me by a friend-the child has taken two amble, too tedious to read, and the signatures, too | valuable Syrup has my child been snatched from the numerous to count. I observed, also, that re- hand of death. Should any person be destrous of seesponsible gentlemen would affex their names to streets, Fell's Point, and I will testify personally to the these papers, frequently for the purpose of getting above facts. Yours truly, rid of the pest, and almost universally without reading the long, tiresome preface. This gave ene an idea that I could play off a grand hoaxso at it I went. I procured ten pages of foolscap my Syrup, than can be shown in favor of any similar paper—scaled them together—and on the first | medicine. Remember—I warrant every case, and rethree, wrote, in rather a difficult hand to read, a long rigmarole of stuff, to look at which would tire the patience of Job. The sequel of this story is soon told. Jerry had studied human nature, and had learned how racily men might be duped, and led into error .--He therefore placed, near the close of the preamble to which he had gained so large a number | _ ceased, are hereby notified to file their claims of signatures, a sentence which expressly stated that the Chief Magistrate of the United States should, in their (the signers') opinion, be hung, or exchange places with Queen Victoria, and that no man whose name was found attached to the petition of Jerry Solicitous, was capable of discharging the duties of any responsible office.

The moral to be drawn from the above hoax is, that men should not act precipitately in important matters; that they should know who they recommend to office; and that their names carelessly given, may promote an unworthy object, hoax the President himself, and finally throw a formidable stumbling block in the way of a triumpliant and glorious cause.
