EYES. Oh, give me the blue ones! The hazel and black May be just as true ones, I know not, alack!

But none shall persuade me The favorite buc In the heav'n that made me Is other than blue!

I love them! I love them! I've made up my mind---The azure above them Less pure do I find! Less radiant its brightness, Transparent its dew.

Eyes moisten'd in blue. Cast down in confusion. Half fear, half delight, With love's own-suffasion To brighten the bright.

Than smiles wrapt in lightness,

Oh, blue eyes, and true eyes, And blushes and blisses-Begone sense—hail nonsense— What this is—a kiss is!
