

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

MONDAY MORNING, APRIL 26, 1841.

From respect for the day, and in order to enable all persons in our employment to participate in the funeral ceremonies, the Clipper office will be closed after 9 o'clock this morning, and remain closed during the day, consequently no paper will be issued to-morrow.

To Advertisers. The press of very important matter received by the mails of yesterday afternoon, which will all be found in this morning's paper, has compelled us to leave out a number of advertisements, which shall receive particular attention hereafter.

Our readers in Washington, Georgetown, and Annapolis cities, Md., will receive no paper until Wednesday next, there being a general suspension of business here to-day, in consequence of paying funeral honors to the late President of the United States.

FUNERAL CAR. The funeral car in which General Harrison was conveyed to the grave was deposited at the coach-house of Mr. Child, N. Gay street, on Saturday morning, where it was examined by numbers. We give the correct representation of the Car in the programme published on the fourth page of to-day's paper.

THE MALEK ADHEL. The crew of this vessel appeared in Court on Saturday last, and were discharged by Mr. Chief Justice Taney, from confinement, as participants in the piratical acts committed by the vessel, it appearing that the captain who escaped at Bahia with a confederate, was alone guilty, and that the seizure of the brig was altogether owing to the information given by the crew, voluntarily. They were however detained as witnesses to testify before the District Court, in the matter of the libel for condemnation, filed by the District Attorney, against the Malek Adhel. A claim, it is understood, will be put in by Messrs. Harmony, of New York, the ostensible owners—and we are likewise informed that the seamen will claim for capture and wages. N. Williams, Esq. District Attorney for the U. S. Jonathan Meredith, Esq. counsel for the Messrs. Harmony, and Z. Collins Lee and S. Teackle Wallis, Esqrs. for the seamen.

ARRIVAL OF THE GREAT WESTERN. In another part of our paper of to-day will be found full and complete details of foreign intelligence by the steamer Great Western. We have not room for comment at present. The news, however, is of a pacific order. The non-arrival of the steamer President had created great excitement and much uneasiness. Serious doubts are being entertained of her loss, she having been out twenty-seven days.

We shall have the pleasing spectacle presented to-day of a people perfectly united in offering their testimonials of respect and affection for departed worth. All party feeling will be buried, and the political elements will repose in tranquillity. This is the spirit which should always prevail on so melancholy an occasion, as it shows, that, however American citizens may differ in their appreciation of men as politicians, they are willing to honor them as patriots, and to award to their memories the just measure of fame.

Our countrymen, says the Biographer of Alexander Hamilton, "although often hurried by their passions into acts that a cool reflection disapproves; although fickle in their affections to the living, whom they alternately exalt above and depress beneath their true level, still they have rarely failed to awaken to a just sense of their duties and interest, and to render finally to the departed patriot the praise to which his acts, while living, ought to have entitled him."

ARREST OF ROBBERS. Police officers Zell and Ridgely, who have for some time been on the alert for the perpetrators of the robberies lately committed in this city, have succeeded in arresting three persons whom they suspected of robbing the store of Messrs. Marriott & Hardisty. Their names are Thomas Scott, alias Thomas Walker, George Wilson, alias Alexander Dugan, and Harry Brown. Thomas Scott, alias Walker, was arrested on Thursday last in Pratt street, and George Wilson, alias Dugan, was arrested on Friday morning in the house of Brown in Franklin street, above Cove-st. Brown made his escape through the back way. The two, after a hearing before Squire Snyder, were fully committed. On Saturday evening Brown was seen in Camden street by Mr. Sheldon, a city constable, who immediately gave information to Mr. Ridgely of his whereabouts. Mr. R. instantly started in pursuit, saw Brown on horseback, who, when he saw the officer, started at full speed. Mr. R. borrowed a horse of a gentleman who was passing, and after a hot chase succeeded in arresting him and brought him before Squire Snyder, who committed him for a further hearing. We understand that notes and negotiable paper to the amount of about $50,000, and $1,257 50, identified as part of that stolen, have been recovered. Twelve hundred and fifty dollars of money was found in Walker's house, situated in an obscure place in the eastern part of the city, and $37.50 was found on the persons of Walker and Dugan. The notes and papers were found in the Catholic burying ground at the western extremity of the city. Too much praise cannot be bestowed on the officers for their untiring and successful exertions in ferreting out and arresting these daring villains who have so long infested the community.

FUNERAL ORIBERS. From time immemorial it has been a custom to pay funeral honors to the distinguished dead—a custom no less salutary to the living than respectful to the departed. That man must be destitute of the finer feelings of human nature, who can be indifferent whether his memory be venerated or despised; and hence the respect they to the dead begets a motive in the living to subvert themselves as to leave an affectionate collection of them when they shall have been deposited in the tomb. The citizens of Baltimore will this day commemorate the virtues, the talents and the patriotism, of the departed hero and statesman, William Henry Harrison. And is the ceremonies which are about to be performed will be mingled, not simply the respect which is due to a distinguished public agent, but the warmer feeling of attachment to the memory of a good man. Upon such an occasion, if it is not deemed inappropriate, to say a few words of the Christian character of the deceased Patriot, for when men in the most elevated places openly adopt the meek principles of the Christian religion, they add a lustre to their dignity and present a spectacle of unsurpassed moral grandeur. On the subject of General Harrison's religious feelings, we make the following extracts from a recent publication by the Rev. William Hawley, Rector of St. John's church, Washington. After having given a brief account of the late President's inauguration, he passes to HIS RELIGIOUS CHARACTER.

The next morn'g (the 6th of March) Gen. Harrison waked down on the avenue and purchased a Bible and Book of Common Prayer, which he carried home with him, and directed the servant to place in his bedroom, where I saw this on the night of his death—thereby indicating that he had chosen that Holy Book for the rule of his faith and guide of his life in the execution of the important trust committed to his charge. This Bible he was seen reading early every morning and late every evening. In his first letter to Mrs. Harrison after his inauguration, he states that, after he had returned from the Capital on any time, he retired to his room and fell down upon his knees before his Maker, thanking him for all his mercies, and supplicating his gracious guidance in the faithful discharge of the duties of his high station to his country and his God. On Sunday morning, the 7th, BENJAMIN HARRISON, Esq. of Virginia, at the request of the President, called at his house, desiring to know whether he could be accommodated with a pew for himself and family for that day, and expressing a wish to obtain the one recently occupied by Mrs. Madison—which the owner accorded to him. In the public worship of the church he conformed to all her rituals in the audible responses of his service, and with that humility so expressive of devout feelings and humble devotion, bowed himself on his knees before the Majesty of Heaven, and supplicated that mercy of which as sinner, however highly exalted his station, he stood so much in need. Thus following the example of the pious rulers of Israel and illustrious men in every age who have adorned the doctrine of God their Saviour.

THE CINCINNATI TIMES of the 19th states that a most unfortunate accident happened at the Theatre, during the performance of the last piece at Mr. Conner's benefit on Saturday night. By the accidental discharge of a gun, in the hands of one of the actors, during the play of Paul Jones or the Pilot, Mr. Altemus received a severe injury. Being immediately behind the weapon at the time of its going off, the charge, (which, we learn, fortunately was a light one, or the consequences might have been more serious,) took effect upon the upper portion of his face. The sight of Mr. Altemus is seriously injured and fears are entertained that it is destroyed. No blame is attached by the parties to the person who was the accidental cause of the unfortunate occurrence.

FIRE. An alarm of fire was given about three o'clock yesterday morning, which proceeded from the burning of a mill belonging to Messrs. Joseph White & Sons, about two and a half miles from the city, on the Falls road. The mill, with the contents, was understood, was entirely consumed. There was, we learn, an insurance to cover all the loss, with the exception of about five hundred bushels of grain, on which there was no insurance. Supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

NATIONAL BANK. The following gentlemen, says the N. York Journal of Commerce, composed the Committee appointed by the Chamber to prepare a petition to Congress for the incorporation of a National Bank, and to report to the Chamber at a subsequent meeting: John R. Hurd, James D. P. Ozden, James Brown, Jonathan Goodhue, William H. Aspinwall. All of them are understood to be in favor of a National Bank. The vote of the Chamber for the appointment of such a committee was 34 to 18.

RESIGNATION. We learn that James Murray, Esq., who was nominated a few days since a candidate for Congress for the fourth congressional district, has resigned the office of Secretary of State.
