
BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 18, 1841.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. We congratulate the country that the House of Representatives has at last organized. We hope that the agony is over for the session, and that there will be no further attempt at agitation. The resolution adopted by the House is as follows:

Resolved, That all the rules and orders of the last House of Representatives, not superseded by any rule or resolution adopted at the present session and now in force, be, and the same are hereby adopted, for the regulation of the House at the present session; and that the select committee upon the rules, heretofore raised, proceed to revise and amend the rules hereby adopted, and that they have leave to report at all times.

A resolution which passed the House some days since, restricts the action of the House to such measures as are mentioned in the President's message, laying aside all other matters during the present session: so that the House can proceed at once to the consideration of the business for which Congress was convened. It is possible that the abolition question may be again started. It certainly will, if the select committee upon the rules make a report, which we hope they will not do during the extra session.

It is high time that this abolition business should be permanently settled. We cannot believe that Northern members design to interfere with the rights of the South, as they must be aware that any attempt on the part of Congress to legislate on the subject of domestic slavery, would be productive of dangerous consequences, if not an immediate dissolution of the Union.—We confess that we do not think that the course pursued by Southern members generally is the most judicious. Instead of wrangling in the House and getting into high excitement on the subject of abolition petitions, we would say to the Northern members, "bring forward your petitions by the cart-load, if you please—we will refer them to your own consideration for report—we are fearless on the subject." Is there a Northern member of the House who would dare to affix his name to an abolition report? Not one. They know that the action of Congress on the subject is prohibited by the constitution—they know that the South would not submit to legislative interference—and, besides, we do not believe that the disposition exists among intelligent men of any section of the country, to disturb the institutions of the South. We believe that a strong report adverse to abolition would be made, and agitation cease—for fools and knaves would be rebuked for their impertinence; and the cry about abolition would die away and be forgotten. It is partly because Southern members are so sensitive and excitable that these abolition petitions are forwarded to Congress; and the denial of their right to petition, being considered as an infringement of the constitution, it affords a pretext for what they do. But, let them be met boldly, and challenged to touch the subject of slavery, and we shall hear nothing more from them.

The House having now organized, (or rather re-organized,) we indulge the hope that there will be no unnecessary delay in proceeding with the public business. There should be no speaking against time. We would not desire to have free discussion prevented; but, members should be confined strictly to the question under consideration. This is essential to the despatch of business. We entertain a high opinion of the ability and decision of the Speaker, and therefore rely with confidence, that he will keep members within the rules of the House. Should he do this, the House will be saved from a repetition of the riotous and disreputable scenes which disgraced the late House of Representatives, and from the disorders which have so far attended the proceedings of the present House.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES AND LITERARY ASSOCIATIONS. We are always well pleased to see good examples followed. For many years Baltimore was without a public literary association. Frequent attempts had been made to establish them, which succeeded for a time and then failed. The Baltimore Lyceum has the credit of having been the first institution of the kind which succeeded. It went into operation many years ago—obtained a charter from the State, and by the subscriptions and donations of members, procured a tolerably extensive library, which was unfortunately destroyed by fire when the Athenæum was burnt down. Since the commencement of the Baltimore Lyceum, various similar institutions have been originated, and a more general taste for literary pursuits has been introduced. This is a subject of felicitation, for it augers improvement in the condition of society. We therefore hail with pleasure the design of the "Young Men's Social Literary Society," to commence a library with their institution, and sincerely hope that the committee appointed to solicit contributions to the object, may be eminently successful. Beyoung men can be induced to read they will reflect, and reflection will work moral reformation. The library and literary associations, by creating a spirit of emulation and giving a proper direction to ambition, are producing great benefit, and they cannot be too extensively multiplied.

THE EXPLORING EXPEDITION. The New York Courier announces that the U. S. Naval Lyceum, will forward Letter bags for the U. S. Exploring Squadron in a few days. Letters, postage being paid to New York, will be taken from the post office and duly forwarded.

THE FISCAL AGENT. We observe in some of our exchange papers, that the Fiscal Agent as proposed by the Secretary of the Treasury, meets with little favor; and we have strong doubts whether it will receive the approbation of Congress. We have heretofore expressed ourselves adverse to the intermixing individual with government and state subscriptions, for the reason that we would place the Fiscal Agent entirely beyond the control or influence of brokers. We have had enough of expansion and contraction, and the rise and fall of stocks, produced by stock-jobbers and speculators; and would much rather leave things to settle down by themselves, than to have a new Bank of the United States organized, which could, by possibility, be wielded by brokers. If the stock be owned by the general and state governments alone, it will be of permanent value, (not being transferable,) and the institution might become of great public utility. To insure this, however, it will be absolutely necessary to prevent officers (including directors,) of the Bank and speculators, from using its capital. Have few directors and let them be sworn and paid; and prohibit them, under severe penalties, from obtaining loans, directly or indirectly, to any amount, from the institution.

A National Bank, having no individual stockholders, and operated under rigid rules, would have the immediate effect of compelling the state banks to either pay specie or wind up their concern. Mushroom or rotten institutions would no longer disgrace the country with promises which they are unable to fulfil, and those that are solvent would be restored to public favor. We doubt whether this result would be as soon or as effectually produced, if individual subscribers be received for the stock of the contemplated Fiscal Agent. It would probably fall under the control of men who would manage it for their own purposes.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

GENTLEMEN: Knowing that your columns are always open to defend the cause of virtue and decency, I would call your attention to a set of rowdies who congregate at the corner of Pitt and Exeter streets to the great annoyance of the citizens in that section of the city, and to any decent person who may happen to pass that way. This evil has been running on for a great while, and I think it is high time that it should be remedied. It is coming to a pretty state of affairs in an enlightened community like this, that a female cannot walk the streets of an evening (especially in that part,) without either being insulted, or having to listen to the most indecent language. It is a pity that the police and watchmen are not a little more vigilant to aid in the cause of DECENCY.

[We would advise the fair writer, or any other female who may be insulted, to call for aid if any one be near, and if not, to mark well the person who may offer the insult, so that he may be arrested and punished—or punished at all events. These gatherings of impertinent striplings at the corners of streets are a positive nuisance; and if they cannot be compelled by legal means to forbear using indelicate language to females, perhaps they can be quieted by the cudgel, and that should be freely used wherever the offender is identified.

The frequent complaints of insults such as our correspondent speaks of, demonstrate the falsity of the charge that respectable females of this city encourage assignation houses.]

DISASTROUS EXPLOSION. At Quincy (Ill.) on the 6th inst. the steam boiler in a mill of Dr. Rodgers, exploded with great violence, instantaneously reducing the whole building to a heap of ruins. Mr. Cavill the engineer was severely wounded. Mr. Benson, the lessee of the mill, was blown out of a two story window and is very badly hurt. John and James Wilson, who were standing near the mill, received much injury; John having his shoulder blade broken. Another person is missing. It is supposed that three of the sufferers cannot survive.

Next to the mill was a brick store, which was greatly damaged and set on fire.

The mill was of brick; and Dr. Rodgers's loss is set down at $6000—no insurance.

RESCUE OF A SLAVE. We learn from the Lancaster Intelligencer that on Wednesday last two of the police of that city, in company with Mr. Gambrill, the brother-in-law of Dr. Shields of Maryland, proceeded to arrest a female slave of the latter, who had absconded in Lancaster county, and was secreted in Salisbury township. They succeeded in capturing her, placed her in a carriage, when they were attacked by eight or ten colored men with a shower of stones. Gambrill and Lewars, one of the officers fired upon the mob; the ball of the latter struck one of the men, who it is rumored has since died. The mob however rescued the woman and carried her off. Mr. Gambrill was considerably hurt; and Messrs. Myers and Lewars considerably bruised. The attack was made in an unfrequented spot and at an early hour in the morning.

A DREADFUL ACCIDENT. The Lancaster Union states that a most painful accident occurred on the 9th instant at the raising of a barn on the farm of Mr. Martin Pfautz, two miles and a half South-east of Strasburg. The skull of Mr. Heckman, one of the persons injured, was so terribly fractured, that he expired on the following day. Mr. Long had his back broke and is otherwise hurt. Several other persons, whose names we have not heard, were considerably injured.

☞The Pennsylvania Inquirer is over run with invitations to exchange. We do not wonder at it, for the Inquirer is a most valuable and interesting journal.

Two count riders, one of them named Hewitt, were last week arrested and committed to the jail of Atlantic county, N. J.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

WASHINGTON, June 17, 1841.

Last evening after I closed, the debate as to whether the previous question should be ordered on the resolution of Mr. Stuart, was continued until six o'clock. The previous question was then recorded and the resolution adopted by a vote of 119 to 103.

The effect of the resolution is to postpone all further discussion on the abolition question until the next regular session of Congress. And the only rules by which the House at the present session is to be governed are as follows:

"Upon the presentation of petitions or other papers on subjects not specially referred to the consideration of the House in the message of the President at the opening of the present extra session, objection to the reception shall be considered as made, and the question of reception shall be laid on the table. This rule to be considered only in force during the present session. Petitions either for or against a bankrupt law to be excepted from the operation of this rule."

"The action of all committees on all subjects not specially referred to the consideration of the House in the message of the President, shall be suspended during the present session; this suspension not to apply to business before the committee on elections, ways and means, accounts and mileage, nor, if the House shall so determine, to the subject of a bankrupt law."

The first business the House transacted this morning was to adopt a resolution requiring the daily hour of meeting to be hereafter 10 o'clock, A. M.

Mr. Waterson asked leave to offer a resolution calling upon the President and Heads of Departments to furnish the names of all officers removed from office by them, with the reason for such removal.

After much debate, the resolution was objected to.

Mr. Waterson then moved a suspension of the rules in order that it might be received; but the motion to suspend was rejected.

A resolution offered by Mr. Gilmer was then adopted, appointing a select committee to inquire what number of clerks and officers are in the employ of the government, and to report whether the same cannot be reduced, without injury to the public service.

A resolution in relation to the abuses by members of their privilege with regard to stationery, &c. was offered.

On motion of Mr. Adams, the House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, and took up the bill providing for the relief of the family of the late President Harrison.

Mr. Adams, after setting forth the great expense the late President was at for various purposes, moved that the blanks in the bill be filled up by inserting $25,000.

Mr. Snyder moved to amend by adding a similar clause providing for the relief of the family of the late Charles Ogle, of Pennsylvania.

A long debate on the constitutional power of Congress to make an appropriation took place, and was pending when this was closed.

In the Senate, after the preliminary business of the morning hours, the consideration of the motion to print 15,000 extra copies of the Report of the Secretary of the Treasury was resumed.

Mr. Evans replied at great length to the remarks of Mr. Woodbury on yesterday, and defended the report.

Mr. Wright followed and criticised the report.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

PLEASURE EXCURSION OF THE INDEPENDENT BLUES. This favorite corps have chartered the steamboat Columbus, in which they propose to make an excursion, this afternoon. The splendid band attached to the company will accompany the party, and there will also be excellent cotillion music in attendance. To those who love to glide through the witching mazes of the dance—those who delight in watching the beautiful evolutions of the dancers, where beauty and grace combine to make the scene attractive, or those who love to sit enwrapt by the power of music as it floats upon the wings of the night zephyrs around—to each and all of these, the trip here noticed must bring gratification and enjoyment. We trust there will be a goodly company of our citizens along; and we venture to predict, although the prediction may seem paradoxical, that, while they go with the Blues and return with the Blues, they will not have the blues while away.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT. We observed yesterday, in passing along Gay street, near the engine house, a trench opened down the middle of the street; and, upon inquiry, learned that a sewer was about to be constructed to carry off the water from the different cellars in that street. Similar sewers have been placed in the adjoining streets, each communicating with the main sewer on Gay street, which is intended to empty into the Falls, and thus, by a very simple mode, the proprietors of houses are rid of a serious inconvenience, and the neighborhood of a great nuisance. We learn that the public are indebted to Mr. Frelk Crey, long known as one of the principal pavers of our city, for this improvement—and we advise all those who are subjected to the annoyance of wet cellars to give him a call.

AS LARGE AS THE SIDE OF A HOUSE. Yesterday, the enterprising Taylor, No. 12, North St. left at our office, a number of the twice double Universal Yankee Nation. It is to all intents and purposes a nation within itself, and a curiosity unsurpassed in the literary or newspaper world. We did not take time to ascertain its precise dimensions, but any one who can form an idea of the size of a large house, or of eight barn doors spliced together, can imagine within a fraction of its appearance. Those wishing to purchase the wonderful of all wonders, can be accommodated by application to Mr. Taylor.

EXPLANATION. We understand that a certain initial used by us, a day or two since, in the publication of an article headed "Diamond cut Diamond," was understood as applying to a person who was not concerned, because it chanced to be the first letter of his name. This was not the case, and we offer this explanation now for the purpose of having it understood, that in any case where the reporter of this paper may see proper to publish an account of a transaction without naming the parties, initials contrary to those appertaining to the real name will always be used.—We have no desire to confound the innocent with the guilty.

VERY MYSTERIOUS. We learn that, yesterday, about one o'clock, p. m. a great commotion, accompanied by loud cries of murder, was heard in a certain large three story brick house in South Howard street, near the Catholic church, and which house is said to be in the joint occupancy of a certain lady, not of the most spotless reputation, and a gentleman holding an official station in this city. By the time the officer, who was sent for by some one in the neighborhood, reached the spot, all was still as the silent grave. What meant those outcries at such an hour? Can any one tell? Don't all speak at once, now.

BOUND OVER. Neale Davidge, colored, was yesterday bound over by Squire Wright, upon the complaint of John V. Emich, to keep the peace. Released on security.

John Drondfeld was on Wednesday held to bail by Justice Snyder, to keep the peace, upon the complaint of Francis Hosey.

Grace Brown, colored, was, on complaint of E. Duff, also colored, bound over to keep the peace by Squire Blair.

Sally Jones, upon the complaint of Elizabeth Christmas, was also compelled to give security to keep the peace, before James Blair, Esq

"A LEG I SEE." Yesterday morning a mysterious looking bundle was observed floating in the basin, near Light street wharf, upon being picked up and opened it was found to contain a human leg, which had been amputated just above the knee. It was presumed to be the leg of a man, though some persons, connoisseurs, perchance, conceived it to be one of the lower appendages of a female form. How it came there remains to be discovered.

CHARGE OF THEFT. John Horaski, charged with stealing two books, the property of J. H. B. Latrobe, Esq., was committed yesterday by J. Barnard, Esq. This is the man whose singular appearance we noted yesterday. We knew he was a genius—and such he turns out to be—one of those who seek that kind of enviable fame only to be gained by purloining the property of another and appropriating it to self.

SINGULAR INSTANCE OF PRECOCITY. We were yesterday informed by a gentleman upon whose correctness we can rely, that he has seen a heifer, of a particular breed, belonging to a gentleman on the Hookstown road which is now but seven or eight months old, and gives milk already twice a day. Our informant saw the animal milked, so there can be no doubt of the fact.—What part of the world can beat this?

ASSAULTS. Wm. Austin, charged with assaulting Sarah Baker, was taken before Wm. Pechin, Esq., by whom he was released upon security to appear at Court.

James Leavy, charged with assaulting Amanda Melvin, was also released upon security, by Wm. B. Jones, Esq.

STABBING. James Bryan, a colored boy, was committed by Jas. Barnard, Esq. upon a charge of having, on Wednesday evening, between 8 and 9 o'clock, stabbed a white boy, named George Mitchell. Mitchell was, we learn, considered in some danger yesterday morning.

MATRIMONIAL. John Esick charged with assaulting and beating his wife, was, on Wednesday night, committed to the Eastern District watch house; but released in the morning upon the application of his loving spouse.

"Oh! 'tis love, 'tis love, 'tis love,
That rules us all completely."

SETTLING A DISPUTE. Two men, William Vinson, white, and Samuel Douse, black, on Monday evening at Fistland, L. I., quarrelled about some clams. Douse knocked the other on the head with a heavy stone, and then cut his throat. He was arrested, and will be made to answer for the savage act.

NAVAL. A detachment of marines, eight in number, left the Navy Yard at Philadelphia on the 16th, for Norfolk, Va., thence destined for service in one of our vessels fitting out for a cruize.

A LOT OF BLACK SHEEP. Ann Gay, Matilda Blackness, Joshua Johnson, Richard Taylor and John Seetus, charged with rioting, were committed by J. Barnard, Esq.

VAGRANTS. Sarah McDermott, white, and Margaret Curtis, colored, were yesterday committed to the Alms House as vagrants.

COMMITTAL. Napoleon Casler, charged with threatening the life of Wm. Chester, was yesterday committed by J. Barnard, Esq.

DRUNK. George Smith was taken to the watch house on Wednesday night, having been found in the street drunk.

FASTEN YOUR DOORS. One of the watch of the Middle District, found the door of Mr. Simond's store in Lombard street open, and secured it.

A span of horses, the property of David Clarkson, of New York, were struck by lightning a day or two ago, and instantly killed.

The Sovereigns of Spain, Portugal, Great Britain and Turkey, are all under 23 years of age; and the three former are females.

[COMMUNICATION]

"GREEN SPRING HOTEL."

☞MESSRS. EDITORS—Permit me, through the medium of your valuable paper, to call the attention of the citizens of Baltimore to this beautiful and healthy situation, on the Baltimore and Susquehanna Rail Road. It has been re-opened and fitted up for the reception of visiters and Boarders, by Mr. WILLIAM CRAFORDER, a gentleman every way calculated to take charge of such an establishment. It would be unnecessary to write a labored eulogy on the attractions of "Green Spring," for there are few, if any, in this city who have not breathed its pure air, fresh from its native forests and laden with the perfume of a thousand flowers, and drank its cool and sparkling water, as it gushes joyously from the bosom of the earth Added to the attractions of the place, is the pleasant ride along the wild and picturesque scenery of the Rail Road, running as it does, for a considerable distance, on the margin of the Falls, where the eye is constantly greeted with a succession of scenery beautiful and romantic in the extreme, and unsurpassed on any road in the country. To those who have the leisure to escape from the turmoil and heat of the city, I know of no place that offers greater inducements than "Green Spring." The Proprietor has his "Bar" well stocked with the choicest Liquors of all kinds—so that those who are not satisfied with "Nature's beverage," can "mingle strong drink" and tickle the palate to their heart's content. His table is sumptuously spread with all the delicacies of the season, and his affable and obliging manners render him a favorite with all who call on him. I would here ask, why the Railroad Company have discontinued the pleasure train on Sunday? The convenience of the citizens require it, and they will afford encouragement sufficient to remunerate the company tenfold. [je18 1t*] Y. G. W.
