

Daily Clipper

UNION PAPER. MORNING & EVENING.

W. M. WALKER,
No. 24 Baltimore.

BALTIMORE.

SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1864.

THE "PACIFIC" PHOBESSORS.—We alluded in our last, to the meeting of certain notables & politicians, on the border line of Canada, the ostensible object of which is represented to be, the introduction of some preliminary steps towards sheathing the sword of this civil war now upon us. Every patriot and christian in the land would most gladly hail the dawn of any event calculated to give the promise of hope to the shadow of the calamity, which in which we are engrossed—but when the names of such notorious politicians as Saunders and Jewell, on the one side, and Tucker, Clay and Thompson, on the other, are made the pretentious actors in the play, the initial naturally shrinks from any faith in the success of a scheme of such scope as those named—in the programme are the gratifiers—and we marvel much that Mr. Greeley could for a moment have entertained the idea, that the pro-predators or supporters of such a sot of unprincipled rascals as have induced him to write of President Lincoln, in their behalf, could meet with the slightest consternation—and the note of President Lincoln, addressed—"if when it may concern," was "doubtless penned out of respect to Mr. Greeley, and not because the writer had any other idea than that the whole thing was a plot for political effect, intended to catch or gall some one, and to be used for mere partisan purposes in the Presidential campaign.

"Mr. Lincoln, therefore, in noticing the matter at all, determined to do so in such a manner as to preclude the probability of any similar movements in the same direction—for he lays down most explicitly the only term upon which it is in his power to listen to any propositions of peace, and which have been time and again proclaimed by him to the world, viz: "the integrity of the whole Union and the abandonment of slavery;" and these propositions must seem to him through the authority that can enervate the arm of war against the United States. This robust son set forth the basis for his political career, and became the lengthy disciple of the tribunes, who had the supreme impulsion to thrust themselves forward as a kind of "commissioners" to propose items of peace, when it is evident, to all the shrewdness in the case, that they were not authorized to act in behalf of any party who had authority in the premises. These self-appointed diplomats prefer to be terribly abashed that Mr. Lincoln was not disposed to be trifling with them, and lowering the dignity of his position, by listening to propositions from a set of scoundrels, who have no sense or memory to acknowledge this, and who are like vultures birds of passage, flitting about from post to pillow, without a spot upon which permanently to rest their heads—for, singular as it may appear to the unformed, the two who may be said to wish to represent the North, Sanders and Jewell, are fugitives from their own section, for fear of arrest, in consequence of their complicity with treason, whilst Clay and Thompson have been obliged to flee from their home in Alabama and Mississippi, the Union troops being in possession thereof, their property subject to confiscation, and their negroes claiming to be freemen.

"The whole plot is intended to operate upon the Presidential election—to preface the trial upon the minds of the people, that Mr. Lincoln did not want peace, and therefore will not listen to any propositions from the South calculated to pave the way for a restoration of family. When any one approaches the President, duly authorized, to present terms, and avowing that their offers are predicated upon the "integrity of the Union," and an acknowledgement of the decision made as to the establishment of slavery, as one more ready than the President would heartily rejoice at his reception. Then, the interplay policy of the nation is a fixed fact, in regard to the two great questions indicated, and Mr. Lincoln cannot, if he would, deviate from it—an eternal shame and disgrace would rest upon him and the nation he represents, if we were to back down upon either of these subjects—which divided the contending political parties—had not a single thought a medical man and quackery. He has never had the slightest authorization to do anything of the sort; and he is quite aware of these provisions of law which prohibit any negotiations with public enemies. These powers are hereby approved, and is now inclined to violate.

"More than this he does not as yet feel at liberty to state, though he does well to. All that can add is his general interest in the welfare of our country, and the safety of the Union troops in its possession, their property subject to confiscation, and their negroes claiming to be freemen.

"The whole plot is intended to operate upon the Presidential election—to preface the trial upon the minds of the people, that Mr. Lincoln did not want peace, and therefore will not listen to any propositions from the South calculated to pave the way for a restoration of family. When any one approaches the President, duly authorized, to present terms, and avowing that their offers are predicated upon the "integrity of the Union," and an acknowledgement of the decision made as to the establishment of slavery, as one more ready than the President would heartily rejoice at his reception. Then, the interplay policy of the nation is a fixed fact, in regard to the two great questions indicated, and Mr. Lincoln cannot, if he would, deviate from it—an eternal shame and disgrace would rest upon him and the nation he represents, if we were to back down upon either of these subjects—which divided the contending political parties—had not a single thought a medical man and quackery. He has never had the slightest authorization to do anything of the sort; and he is quite aware of these provisions of law which prohibit any negotiations with public enemies. These powers are hereby approved, and is now inclined to violate.

"Upon these great questions and the propagation of the war null, they are fully and truly informed, the loyalists of the land have nominated Mr. Lincoln for re-election, they are prepared to go into the next Presidential election, and to stand or fall upon their merits; they know their own strength and the justice and the policy of their platform, and are prepared to bid defiance to the "spies of the South," the "opporessors," and the intrepid, true democrats, singly or combined, as soon as, and that, under the blessing of Providence, they must and will succeed, not only in saving the country from the peril which environed it, but also in re-electing the honest patriot who has guided the ship of state through the storm.

"Friends and foes—highly respectable friends journalists, a score of whom are upon the professional and other friends of the private business, for their future and ardent sympathies upon his "true"—and showed him anything approaching to the character of a chivalrous knight, prove him to be caught in a trap by the Karsarge, who, always avoided meeting him, and, as it is, mortal combat, but contented himself with decrying the rebels' cause to his satisfaction, and principled and unswerving men, are in doing destroying them on the high seas, much of the property belonging to Englishmen. The editor quotes from a journal kept on board the Alexander, by a friend and companion of

James, that most of the vessels captured by him were seized to his victory by his admiring British crew, and sometimes the flag of the Union—was in no case ever hoisted over the smaller vessel of iron, steel or wood.

Hearing. On one occasion, he is even, he captured a small gunboat, but he declined by holding the American flag until he had given her within his power.

The noted naval prophet, the facts related from those of his own vessel, and the details which were present, that the rebels were indeed the first to fire, in order to hold their own, and to defend the coast of the Atlantic, of the world—for as not only Lee is, in charge, upon Capt. Winslow that he had fired on the Alabama above the fortifications, but also is reported the Karsarge being an old plated ship.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser, this day, says that the Karsarge after the battle around her were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

The newspaper editor of Albion, New York City, it is said is about to express all newspapers there respecting those addressing the odds and ends of the rebellion. His authority.

He would advise all, that are in want of good paper, to go to Albion's printing shop, and buy Albion's paper.

He says, the rebels were used for a general protection, but occupied only a small part of the rebels' side, and, but, to at least two ships from the Alabama all these ships.

An English officer, under his own signature, writing to the Advertiser