HAIR RESTORER. This celebrated Hair Restorer is the most effective in restoring gray hair to its natural color, no matter how long it has been on the head. It will, in a short time, thoroughly restore it, and besides it is an elegant hair dresser, making hair soft and silky. It is sold in bottles of six, twelve, and twenty-four cents. It is used in, and takes pleasure in recommending it to my friends. W. M. WALES, 124 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

MAKING IN RICHMOND.—Going to market in Richmond, you will find an agreeable business. A family man, going the rounds to make his purchases for an ordinary dinner, has some time to spare. He can get his first inquiry for beef. He is told he can have an excellent article "as low as three dollars per pound," which was the rate on the same day. He purchases, say, six pounds, discharges eighteen dollars, and goes on his way. A beef peck of tomatoes he thinks must be very cheap, and, "regardless of expense," he buys that quantity, paying therefore five dollars a quart, or twenty dollars in all (food green corn, which he finds on the same day, costs six dollars a dozen, and for a "mess of beans" ten dollars.

THE MASON PRISONERS.—The Hartford Courthouse publishes letters from officers, sailors, and in open hostility to our Government. Erastus in the Union is represented here, and a party crowd of it. One hundred of four acres, enclosed by a board stockade twenty feet high. The location is healthy, well supplied with water, and the soil is one thousand of us, as comfortable as can be for prisoners. All the officers who were in prison at Richmond are here now. Important from Gen. Grant. A Force from Bermuda Hundred Recross the James River to the North Side. The Rebels Oppose the Crossing and are Repulsed and Driven to their Entrenchments—Their Works Carried—Four Guns Captured and Many Prisoners.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, July 26.—Quite a brisk fight, both of artillery and infantry, was kept up nearly all the day. It commenced at 10 o'clock, and was continued until 4 o'clock. The rebels opened with a sharp fusillade of their batteries, and a sharp fusillade of their musketry. The Union batteries replied, and the musketry firing along the line of General Sherman's Corps, where our regular constant vigilance on either side. There have been few exchanges of papers of late between our lines and the rebels, and the latter, for some days past, have not been disposed to exchange at all.

When the news is such as they consider good they are usually ready enough to offer us the opportunity of trading. We have had another good trade, continuing all Sunday night, and early Monday morning. The weather is quite cool and agreeable. JAMESON HARRISON, July 27, via Fortress Monroe, July 25.—An important movement is in progress from this point, and this morning our troops were crossing the James River, and were on the north side of the river, a rebel force came down and attacked our men on the bank before having had time to organize.

A spirited engagement took place and the enemy were driven back to their entrenchments. Our troops still arriving, organized and attacked the rebel works, carrying them and capturing four guns, marked "captured from the Yankees at Drury Bluff." We also captured many prisoners, and the rebels were finally driven from their position into the woods far beyond, where skirmishing continued when our informant left.

The guns captured ago no doubt the same that were captured by Captain Belger's battery by the north side of the river, and these guns are now at City Point. A Movement on the North Side of the James River—A Sharp Engagement—The Enemy Defeated. WASHINGTON, July 29.—A letter from the Army of the Potomac, dated July 29th, says: "The arrival of some troops in the vicinity of Bermuda Hundred, a day or two ago, attracted the attention of the enemy, and he sent down to check the movement. A counter-attack was made on the part of the enemy, a rebel force was detached and sent across the James River, and at 6 o'clock yesterday morning the advance of the rebel skirmishers in an open field, opposite Jones Neck.

Their battery was in position at the edge of the woods on the further side of the field. A long line of skirmishers was thrown out at once from our force, who soon drove the rebels back to their entrenchments. They were hotly engaged, while a brigade of the First Division moved around on the left of the rebel line, getting on the left of the rebel line, charging the rebels on their flank, and driving them into the woods, capturing fifty or sixty prisoners and four guns, and a number of small arms. The enemy fell back on their reinforcements, who occupied some strong works built there some two years ago.

General Grant rode the front in the afternoon and in company with Hancock, he seemed well pleased with the morning's operations. General Foster's command had a lively time with the enemy yesterday at this place, but his force being weak he fell back some half a mile to a stronger position, which he

From General Sherman. Our Lines Drawing Closer Around Atlanta. REBEL RAID. Interesting Statement—Negro Rebel Soldiers—Death of Col. Mulligan, &c. Mr. John K. Hill, of Mill Gap, Berkeley county, Virginia, arrived in Washington, and gives some interesting particulars of the recent rebel demonstrations towards Martinsburg and the Potomac. He says that after the fight at Winchester last week, although the rebels were defeated, they were not so badly repulsed but that they could collect a considerable force.

There is no doubt of Early being in command, and he is leading the rebels. He has with him about two hundred negroes, as well as a number of white men, and a number of negroes and white men. Among these negroes he recognized a number who had been slaves in the neighborhood of Winchester. It is reported to be pointing out the way to the rebel camps, and indicating the best road to be taken.

DEATH OF COL. MULLIGAN. The Potomac correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer gives the following account of the death of Col. Mulligan: The particulars of the fall of Colonel Mulligan have come to light. He was killed on the 26th inst., while leading a charge of his brigade, with the hope to break the enemy's center, at Winchester, on Sunday, he fell seriously wounded, being shot through the chest by the enemy's fire. He was carried to the rear, and died on the 27th inst. He was a brave and gallant officer, and his death is a great loss to the Army of the Potomac.

THE GULF DEPARTMENT. General Sherman's Expedition and the Capture of the City of Savannah, Georgia. Savannah, July 18.—(Special to the Clipper.)—The city of Savannah, Georgia, has been captured by General Sherman's Army. The city was taken on the 21st inst. after a hard-fought battle. The rebels were driven from the city, and the city was placed under the protection of the Union Army. The capture of Savannah is a great victory for the Union, and it opens the way for the advance of the Army of the Potomac towards Richmond.

A passenger who arrived from Richmond on the steamer Chesapeake, which reached this city on Tuesday last, states that the rebel force which captured the city of Savannah, Georgia, on the 21st inst., had not been in possession of the city for more than a few days. He says that the rebels were in a state of confusion, and that they were being driven from the city by the Union Army. He also states that the rebels were in a state of panic, and that they were being driven from the city by the Union Army.

Rebel Accounts. Alleged Rebel Victory before Atlanta—Twenty Pieces of Artillery, Five Stands of Colors and Two Thousand Prisoners Captured. Death of Major General Walker Contingent on the Battle of Atlanta. [From the Richmond Enquirer, July 25.] The glorious news from Northern Georgia absorbed the public attention on Saturday and Sunday. It was a day of high excitement, and even the grim savans, who are wont to see an almost interminable war, grew bright with hope. The fate of Sherman, and the result of the military operations, were the subject of general discussion, and it was generally accepted, that should the effect of the military engagements be maintained and culminate in a decisive victory, no fear, not even a momentary, need be entertained as to the result of the campaign in Virginia. Grant, having expended the force of numbers at his command in vain, strategic force may then employ by his own army, and the result may be the following: The official despatch of General Hood:

Atlanta, July 27.—10.30 P. M. Hon. Secretary of War.—The Army shifted its position from Peachtree creek last night, and the result of the battle of Atlanta was a decisive victory. The Army captured twenty pieces of artillery, five stands of colors, and two thousand prisoners. The result of the battle was a decisive victory for the Union, and it opens the way for the advance of the Army of the Potomac towards Richmond.
