National Union Nominations. FOR PRESIDENT:

ABRAMAM LINCOLN, of Illinois. FOR VICE PRESIDENT: ANDREW JUHNSON, of Tennessee.

INDUCEMENTS FOR ONE MORH BRAVE EFFORT ON THE PART OF LOYAL MEN.

There is much to encourage loyal men in their efforts to put to utter rout rebellion and Copperheadism in all their vile forms. proper are determined to push forward "Lit- contracted in the Gulf recently. On her way Whilst the cowardly home traitors in the loyal States are at present planning an elaborate political campaign, by which, whilst grasping at power themselves, they hope to set the exhausted and dying rebellion on its umn of "Old Line Whigs," transformed into lighting qualities to assure our readers that Lonard Hartzell. legs, the blows of Mr. Lincoln through the hands of his gallant Lieutenants-Grant, Sherman, Farragut and others-are falling heavily on the discouraged rebels, crushing out all real hope in their hearts, and at the [success! Let the "triangular duel" go forsame time disarranging and destroying all the nice cobwebs woven by the political spiders who infest the nooks and corners of the loyal States. To all such, every announcement of a new triumph for the glorious old flag, falls like a knell upon their ears to destroy their expectations and their hoper; and this fact alone, well understood by the patriotic American people, should at once consign traitors and their plots against war measures to utter condemnation and infamy. Aware that they have but little time in which to misrepresent and blacken those whom the people recognize as their champions, they will move fastthey will attempt in every way to depreciate the character of those splendld military and naval triumphs, which day by day are bringing ruin to the accursed Confederacy.

That there is no doubt of the rapidly approaching ruin of the infamous fabric of des. Itself that the campaign is virtually at an potism reared at Richmond, is becoming plainer every hour, even if we look alone to rebel sources for information. Within a little time they have by their mouth-pieces in Rich. mond admitted the critical condition of things both at Atlanta and Mobile; two cities that have been amongst their chief dependencies for supplies to carry on the war. Without Atlanta as their great workshop for the manu. facture of cannon, muskets, shot and shell, clothing, etc., for their armies, and without | Mobile as a place of export for cotton and the import of foreign supplies, they must long since have gone under; and as we may hear at any time of the yielding of both of these stronghold, with their fall, tumbles almost the last hope ever felt at Richmond of continuing the war.

What if it be true that the rebel rescurces have held out longer than was contemplated in the earlier periods of the wai? What the great traitors have abown more fertility of resource, more unscrupulousness in forcing their dupes to the front of battle than was at first supposed possible? Even to all this there must be—some day—a limit; and whilst they themselves are obliged to acknowledge their means of defence here and there as exhausted, [the Government itself never had so much of war material at hand as at this present moment, was never so formidable, really, since the war begun.

And let every loyal man in the country, every true delender of the Union note one thing, and that is that if the President of the Virginia with three huge armles all bound at | mend this firm to the favorable notice of all who United States was in nowise embarrassed by | sees for Richmond-the thing is over; Grant's | may want goods in their line. They sell at | S. Bernel, the traitors at home, the war would be finished army is rapidly going away from our front at small prefits, and deal on the square with every- Cir. J. Grissman almost at a single blow. The mere fact impressed upon the leading traitors at the Bouth, | that the Northewas a unit, that Mr. Lincoln had no home traitors to breed disaffection and treachery in his own camp, and the rebellion | would go out as a light is extinguished in an exhausted receiver; the chiefs of the rebellion would basten to offer terms in despair of get ting anything bottor from any one else.

And let it be noted, further still-that after what has occurred in the loyal Btates, showing that there are those tolerated here who are in open sympathy with them, is it any thing but natural that the rebellion should struggle onward through other seas of blood and flame, in the hope that McClellan, or Fremont, Seymour, or l'ierce, may yet be in a position to l stretch out a hard to plack them from the ruin which threatens them, to make casy terms with them as with men not guilty of great crimes, but as having made an unfortunate move for power, only.

With such facts patent to the world, with the knowledge impressed upon every mind the "maintep" grimly watching results, one that the defeat of Messre. Lincoln and Johnson means more than anything else, immunity, been at Charleston, instead, the "cracle of a complete excape from punishment for crimes that have appalled the world, is there not new and abundant reason why all loyal men, all just men and patriots, should join hands for a final endeavor to bring down the hopes of sympathizers with treason here, to bring to condign punishment the murderous crew who have deluged the land with tears and blood? Uan any one who have seen their sons, brothers, friends, go out to do battle, who have received thence by the hands of some loved spot of the rebellion. The nation would hail [J. Haknack, Sel'y. comrade only the token that tells of another grave dug by the hands of traitors?-can matien, and it would be another nail in the "such, we say, now consent to make terms with political coffics of Frement & Co. the guilty, to let them escape through the vile complicity of cowards and the false hearted and traitorous at home? ADVANCE ON RICHMOND .- Whilst the Richmond press is complecently congretulating ead; that Grant is withdrawing his army from before Petersburg; that "peace" is at hand: that the Confederacy is going to be acknowledged, and a copperhead elected over Lincoln—with various other notions of the same import, to endeavor to cheer up the spirits of the poor Dixieites, Grant is whirling around his forces, and presents himself in the vicinity of Richmond, no doubt to the utter amazement of all that is left of rebel- this city dem, and to the horror of their sympathizers with treason in the loyal States. In the face the fact that Farragut and Granger are destroying or capturing the forts and navy of iron-clade at Mobile by a victory and dash never equalled by Lord Nelson, in the very height of the glory of the English navy-in spite of the position of Sherman, who is expected every moment to capture Atlanta and Hood's | aged 5 years, 2 months and 16 days. irmy-and with the knowledge of the fact sefore their eyes, that Grant was holding which they could not extricate themselves, of herige. almost cutting those cities off from the outside world, hear what the Richmond organs
