GEN. GRANT AND THE PRESIDENCY Washington, Bept'r 3, 1864 - [Epecial I)is patch to the Philadelphia Press ]-It is stated on good authority that there is a letter in h Washington from General Grant, in which he either takes decided ground against the Chicago platform or decided ground in favor of the re-election of President Lincoln. I have not seen the letter, but it is dembiles; in exist exce. All my information is to the effect that the Army of the Potomac, and nearly all its leaders, regular and volunteer, feel that a great sligh, has been put upon them by the resolutions of the Chicago Convention, and especially by the numination of Pendleton, o. Obio, the steady enemy of the war, as a candidate for Vice President. And this feeling extends in a greater degree to our armies in the other Departments. General McClellan, emphatically the elowest General of the war, not excepting Buell and Fitz John Porter, both of them now cut of the service, and both rank exemies of the Administration, cannot be put forward as the man to finish the rebellion on such a platform as he now occupies, even if he were a better ! military leader than Grant, Sherman or Canby. And yet it is to him and l'endleton that the clusing of the war is confided by the is felt intensely in all the columns of the arwith the Chicago leaders or their candidates. And this does not grow out of dislike to General McCiellan, for many of these men have been among his friends, but they naturally realize that he occupies a most anoma of such a party, or such a platform, and in | great. association with such a politician as the autiwar leader, the Copperhead chief, Pandleton | arrested last night on the charge of attemptof Ohio.
