National Union Nominations. FOR PRESIDENT: ABRAHAM LINCOLN, of Illinois. FOR VICE PRESIDENT: ANDREW JOHNSON, of Tennessee.

HENRY TAYLOR & CO., NEWS AGENTS, AND THE CLIPPER. In order to facilitate the circulation of the Clipper at certain points out of the city, we have made arrangements with the above enterprise, and will know from, to act as our Agents for the large towns in this and the adjoining States, and the District of Columbia. With them, therefore, Sub Agents can confer who wish to procure the paper for distribution to its old patrons.

This arrangement greatly simplifies matters for all concerned, as the firm in question has long been noted for its enterprise in being in advance of the regular mails, and we trust, therefore, that the arrangement will meet the approbation of those interested.

For such as reside out of the great railroad routes and thoroughfares, the paper can be mailed as hitherto.

THE WEEKLY CLIPPER.

This week's number will be ready at the counter this morning put up in covers for mailing—price three cents. The Weekly contains all the war news of the week, the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention, the political news of the day, with miscellaneous intelligence, local items, markets, etc. There have friends in the country who find the Weekly Clipper a valuable medium of keeping them advised as to the stirring events of the times.

THE LINE DRAWN AT CHICAGO BETWEEN TREASON AND PATRIOTISM.

The Chicago Convention has done that for which all loyal men should be glad—it has established the position of almost every prominent sympathizer with treason in the land, so that henceforth no honest supporter of the Government in its conflict with traitors need be misled. From the time the great traitors in Congress seized their per diem and left Washington to take their place in the rebel armies and councils, there were those left behind whose business it was to retain official positions for the purpose of embarrassing the Government, and in every way possible to aid traitors by a showing of patriotism. Vallandigham, Cox, Voorhees, the two Woods, Brooks and various others, who might be instanced have been unceasing in their treacherous endeavors, not to mention Breckinridge even, who lagged behind Jeff. Davis in the Senate, and ventured with the vilest treason in his heart, to take Baltimore on his way to Dixie, for the purpose of haranguing our people to their duty in the great crisis.

But, thank Heaven, all that is past and done with this period in the great conflict, there has been no wholesale test like this of the coming Presidential election, to tear the mask from the foul lineaments of treason—With no call to take that stand which places such men as some of those named, prominent on one side or the other, they have hitherto skulked behind questions concerning doubtful infringements of the "constitution," they have braided loudly of devotion to human rights, of the need of restricting power in the hands of our rulers. And whilst they could discourse fluently enough upon the tyranny of Mr. Lincoln, in taking needful measures to prevent the Government from being overthrown, they had not a word of condemnation for the murderous assassins who have clamored of the need of laying Washington in ashes, and of subjecting the country for years to come to conflicts as deplorable as those which visit it now.

We say again, the sitting of the Chicago Convention has had the effect of making every thing plain for the future. Covetous of the possible rewards of treason, and blinded by political rancor to such a degree as to prevent them seeing the defeat and disgrace involved, every prominent traitor in the loyal States hurried to the treasonable gathering, made haste to range himself on the side of those, who, after the old manner, were ready to bow in the dust before the cotton lords of the South. Stimulated unduly by the noise, the tumult of the occasion; inspired by the music, the presence of other enemies of the Government, and emboldened by the license permitted, free scope was given to treasonable expressions, no scruple prevented most of them from given vent to the enmity of the Government which lurked in their hearts.

The result of all this is before the country. One of these choice spirits intimates that the assassination of the President—"the infamous Lincoln"—should surprise nobody, wonders that the Executive and those of his Cabinet "who have ordered outrageous military arrests should be allowed to cumber the green earth!" Another, in certain contingencies, undertakes to pledge his State as against the Government "to the biggest fight the world ever saw!" "Tyrant!" "usurper!" "despot!" "tyrant!" were the mild appellations dealt in, when speaking of the President of the United States; and one reverend copperhead ventured to inform his delighted congregants, that—"as sure as God lives there is a knife in preparation that will sever his (Mr. Lincoln's) political head from his lean, lank, lying political body"—that he had "petit larceny" written all over his body, from the crown of his head to the sole of his foot.

And these are the men who ask to be entrusted with power, and who propose to reform the Government; these are they for whom the American people are expected to give up those who have been their defenders against a bloody and vindictive rebellion South, and who have thwarted treason in the States of the North.

We say we are glad to have the lines at last drawn between treason and patriotism, so that the man who reads. And if the American people allow themselves to be deceived hereafter as to the purposes, the evil purposes of any of these men, it will be their own fault. Whatever may have been Gen. McClellan's record, even supposing that his conduct had in the past savored more of the inspiration of honest patriotism that it was, the very fact that he has shown himself willing to be made the instrument of a vile and treasonable faction, determines his position and his fate. The head and front of last of a gang of disorganizers—of men who for their endeavors to cripple the government in a life and death struggle for preservation, do the condemnation of all loyal men, he has pronounced his own deserved sentence—his future must be theirs.

Then we say—in conclusion—let all patriots, all true lovers of their country rally to beat back the disorganizers, who, to obtain power propose to punish the true champions of the nation's unity for their devotion to it; and as the sequel, would bring about division and endless war upon the ultimatum of the infamous traitor who presides at Richmond amidst the frightful ruin he has created. Let him not extend his evil influence hither to legis with domestic traitors, for ever destruction. The Chicago Convention has made the duty of all patriots plain—let every one be prepared to strike a final blow for the integrity of the Government.

The fact is notorious that on every occasion since the war began, where the proposition has been made to allow the soldiers to vote, the spoils Copperhead Democracy have steadily refused them the privilege—or rather the right. The friends of free government may lay down their lives for it, or shed their blood to perpetuate it, but the cowardly gang who stalked at home were determined they should not, in a civil sense, have a word concerning the control of its destinies. But the measure has been carried by the friends of the Government despite Copperhead opposition; and in the coming Presidential election the disorganizers will be made to feel it. Meanwhile, we give below from one of the camps, a "straw" to show which way the wind blows.

Know ye our friends, honorables, } Gen. Beaumont, Sept. 8, 1864. } Editor Baltimore Clipper—Sir: I send you the following result of an election held on the 6th of September, at this post, commencing by the worthy and energetic Major D. N. Lowe, 8th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry:

"Historic Remarks Israel."—In the days of the ancient republics of Rome and Greece, there were home traitors and conspirators who were endeavoring to throttle their country, if necessary, to obtain place and power as is now the case with us. The Cataline conspiracy at Rome has been imitated here by Jeff Davis and his followers—and Athens had her Lichines, longing for the success of the arms of the enemy of his country, as we have our Vallandighams, Voorheeses and Woods, whose every aspiration, if their real sentiments were proclaimed, would be shown to be in favor of the success of our enemies in arms, as were those of the Athenian sympathizer, with the enemy of his country. How applicable was the rebuke of the great orator of that State to this same secret conviver at treason, to our home traitors at this very moment. "The Washington Chronicle brings these things to timely notice, and as follows:—

The following question, which Demosthenes puts to Lichines, would be very hard to answer by a great many American demagogues in the days of rejoicing over victory. "And here I would gladly ask Lichines the question: 'Whether in the course of these events, when the city was one scene of unbounded joy and acclamation, he did not see in your eyes, in your countenance, and in the general festivity, or that himself in his chamber, grieved, afflicted and provoked at the success of his country?'

If he did not appear, is not that man worthy of a thousand deaths who looks with grief on those events which fill his countrymen with joy?"

And which of the Copperhead leaders can say with Demosthenes: "From first to last, I have uniformly pursued the just and virtuous course of exhorting the people to the honor of the patriot, and the glory of my country; studious to support them, zealous also to advise them, my whole being is devoted to this glorious cause. I was never known to march through the city with a face of joy and exhilaration at the success of a foreign power, embracing and announcing the joyful tidings to those who, I supposed, would transmit it to the proper authorities. I was never known to receive the successes of my own country with trembling, with sighing, with eyes bending to the earth like those of the traitors who are the defamers of the State, as if by such conduct they were not defamers of themselves who took abroad, and when a foreign potentate hath established his power on the calamities of Greece, applauded the event, and tell us we should take every means to perpetuate his power."

The heritage of immortal infamy which Demosthenes gave to the domestic enemies of Greece, will be paralleled by that which awaits the American Copperheads.

The infamous Wixom.—The ever-to-be-remembered rebel keeper of those horrible dens in Richmond, "Castle Thunder" and "The Libby," where so many of our brave soldiers were tortured to death by abuse and starvation, has been removed by the rebel authorities from the control of the prisoners about Richmond in Georgia. The "chivalry" about Richmond could witness with pleasure the barbarities of this kind in human shape, but a purer atmosphere exists in the far North, and no doubt the indignantly remonstrances of the gentlemen who took abroad, and when a foreign potentate hath established his power on the calamities of Greece, applauded the event, and tell us we should take every means to perpetuate his power."
