

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

"THE UNION, THE CONSTITUTION, AND THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAWS."

VOLUME XLIX.

BALTIMORE, SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 29, 1864.

NUMBER 102.

Latest News by Telegraph
TO THE
BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

GLORIOUS NEWS.

FROM THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC

OFFICIAL DISPATCHES.

A RECONNAISSANCE IN FORCE.

The Enemy Repulsed and Captured of 900 Prisoners.

OUR LINES ADVANCED.

Later from Gen. Sherman—He is all Right.

The Rebels under Price Defeated with Heavy Loss.

IMPORTANT TO PRISONERS

Mutual Agreement to Alleviate Their Sufferings.

THE N. Y. ELECTION FRAUDS

The Confession of M. J. Ferry

Other Startling Developments.

ETC. ETC. ETC.

Official Bulletin.

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, 9 P. M.,
October 28.—Major General John A. Dix,
New York: Dispatches from General Grant received this evening, inform the Department that an advance in force for the purpose of a reconnaissance was made yesterday by General Warren and General Hancock. In the evening the enemy attacked General Hancock vigorously, but were repelled. The purposes being accomplished, the troops were withdrawn from the advanced positions to which they had been pushed to near their lines of former occupation. The following telegrams of General Grant give all the details received:

CITY POINT, 9 P. M., Oct. 27.

To Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War: I have just returned from the crossing of the Boydton plank road, with Patcher's Creek. Our line now extends from its former left to Armstrong's Mill, thence by the south bank of Patcher's Creek to the point above named. No attack was made during the day, further than to drive their pickets and cavalry inside of their main works. Our cavalry has been light—probably less than 200 killed and wounded and missing. The same is probably true with the enemy. We capture, however, seven loaded trains on their way from Stony Creek to the enemy, about a dozen head cattle, a traveling forge, and several hundred prisoners.

On our right Gen'l Butler extended around well towards the Yorktown road without finding a point unguarded. I shall keep our troops out where they are until towards noon to-morrow, in hopes of invading an attack. (Signed) U. S. Grant, Lieutenant-General.

CITY POINT, Oct. 28.—E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War:—The attack on Gen. Hancock—now that a report is received—proves to be a decided success. He repelled the enemy and remained in his position, holding possession of the field until midnight, when he commenced withdrawing. Orders had been given for the withdrawal of the Second Corps before the attack was made.

We lost no prisoners except the usual stragglers, who are always picked up.

Our capture for the day on the South Side foot of 900.

The rebel Gen. Dearing is reported killed.

General Meade, in his report, says: "I am induced to believe the success of the operation, which was most decided, was mainly due to the personal exertions of Major General Hancock and the conspicuous gallantry of Brigadier General Egan."

(Signed) U. S. Grant,

Lieutenant-General.

Reports from General Sherman's Department to G. O. C. this evening, indicate that the rebel army is again threatening a demonstration against Tennessee, but there is no reason to doubt that Generals Sherman and Thomas will be found prepared for whatever movement takes place.

The report from Missouri and Arkansas concur in stating the defeat of Price with heavy loss.

(Signed) Edwin M. Stanton,

Secretary of War.

The Rebellion in Hayti Suppressed. New York, Oct. 28.—President Johnson, of Hayti, proclaims the full suppression of the rebellion and the restoration of order there.

An Important Arrangement.

[Special Dispatch to the New York Times.] Washington, October 28.—It will gladden the whole country and carry joy and pleasure to hundreds of thousands of homes to learn that an arrangement has been made whereby those who linger in Southern prisons will henceforth receive adequate supplies of food and clothing. In the impossibility of a general exchange of prisoners, it is a matter of relief to the authorities that will be thus facilitated, and they will be enabled to do as it is possible for man in captivity to do. The agreement, looking to this beneficial end, has just been concluded between Gen's Grant and Lee, and only awaits the settlement of practical details to take immediate effect.

The proposition, it is said, to the credit of the rebels, came from themselves, and was first communicated to the Union authorities on the 6th instant, by Dr. M. Old, Chaplain Agent of Exchange, to Major General Hitchcock, Commissioner of Exchange for the United States. Mr. Colle's communication in substance recited that as there is a prospect of a large number of prisoners being held by both sides during the coming winter, it is desirable that each belligerent, without being compelled to make any concession, and thereby placing the prisoners held in their respective hands, should be allowed to furnish them with care in the other's hands, with such additional comfort as humanity may prompt. He therefore proposed that we shall be permitted to send to the South clothing, blankets and supplies for our prisoners in the hands of the Confederates, but those allowed to do the same by their prisoners in our hands. He further proposed that we shall be allowed to exercise, abroad the articles intended for our prisoners held by us.

Gen. Lee on the following day, Oct. 19, replied to Gen. Grant, acknowledging the receipt of his communication, and stated that he was an acceptor on the part of Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 20, Gen. Grant replied that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 21, Gen. Lee again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 22, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 23, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 24, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 25, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 26, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 27, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 28, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 29, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 30, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Oct. 31, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 1, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 2, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 3, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 4, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 5, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 6, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 7, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 8, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 9, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 10, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 11, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 12, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 13, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 14, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 15, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 16, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 17, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 18, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 19, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 20, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 21, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 22, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 23, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 24, Gen. Grant again replied, that Gen. Lee had rightly understood his communication, and the same was accepted; Mr. Old's plan. He suggested further that the articles sent to the prisoners should be sent to the agents of the Union, and comfort, clothing, blankets, etc., coffee, sugar, pickles, vinegar, salt, soap, and proposed that an officer from each side should be specially detailed and派去 to see the initial expediency of the arrangement.

On the following day, Nov. 25, Gen.