SOMETHING ESPECIALLY FOR THE CONSIDERATION OF THE CITIZENS OF BALTIMORE.

A telegraphic dispatch to be found in this morning's Clipper announces a call for the people of Boston to meet at Faneuil Hall, to concert measures for the relief of the people of Savannah. New York had previously made a move in the same direction, and we next look for something of the kind from our nearer neighbor, Philadelphia. Let us ask—is it not all this sufficiently suggestive as to what is the duty of Baltimore?

Let it be noted, that if the cities named can be found taking active steps to relieve the suffering of those in the South who have become victims of the war, much more should Baltimore take measures to the same end, hitherto considered as she has been, the commercial metropolis of the South, the foremost city in this section in population and trade. From her very position she cannot be suffered to fall behind the cities we have mentioned without sadly compromising her established reputation for generosity, and all else that has been her boast and her pride in the past. Remembering also, that before the war, our relations with Savannah were direct and intimate, and that once permitted by circumstances, there must be no again, should not a meeting of our leading citizens be held at once, to inaugurate measures such as will not leave us behind with any in the good work contemplated.

Again—it is noted, that this movement should not be one that would seem of temporary importance. As the beaten section submits, as the leading mischief makers are displaced from power who have brought upon the masses such unutterable losses and woes, all must expect these appeals for aid to multiply; all must prepare to see such demands made upon the North as aid as never before known, such as hardly can even be conjectured at present. The last sufferers in the South who will be permitted to feel the severe pressure of want, of starvation, will be remissly sacrificed, and as the territory is broken back under the national flag, these must be relieved.

There are other and obvious considerations we might urge, but the action of the New Yorkers is sufficiently suggestive, and should be heeded by the people of Baltimore. Then we say, and urge, that no time should be lost in getting a vessel with supplies for Savannah. As to the best method of doing this, appealing to our citizens for means to do, we leave that to the action of a public meeting. The citizens here do it, but it must be no farce matter, to consult fully with the contributions from other quarters. Let a few of our prominent citizens at once get together, call a meeting, and so committee to work, and there can be no question as to a beneficial and honorable result.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

The Message of Gov. Bradford is especially welcome just now, when sound views, good advice are so greatly needed in regard to the new career just opening up. Refraining from burling over this document with profuse and abstract speculations on political topics, something to much in vogue before the era of heroic excitement for steam forts was stated, he has with excellent taste wasted no words, but taking up topic after topic, discusses and dismisses them, presenting all that is useful for the consideration of the Legislature and the people at large.

And yet, never before in the history of Maryland was such an important epoch starting off with a discussion of the leading points in the new Constitution, his views in regard to the encouragement of immigration should be particularly commended, because upon that we must hereafter rely for filling the void created by the events of the war.

A thorough survey of the State, and the appointment of a competent "State Geologist" are further suggested, and must meet the approval of an enlightened Legislature, inasmuch as something should be left undone to set forth all the advantages of the State in its mining and agricultural resources in the best light possible. We want capital and labor, and to get these in abundance, the people of other States should find no difficulty in coming at the true condition of things here.

The subject of the new Educational System is briefly but ably commented upon, and the precise point out that within the time limited, by law, the General Superintendent will be prepared with the plans needful to a uniform system of Free Public Schools.

Then comes the subject of the State finances, which are shown to be eminently in a good condition, and following these, we have a discussion in regard to State bonds, State militia, soldier's camp, etc., and other matters connected with the military and relief organizations created by the war. The public works, the oyster laws and charitable institutions of the State receive due attention, the whole winding up with various miscellaneous subjects such as the inspection of grains, appropriations for the support of the Government, &c.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE CHATHAM MESSAGE.—Up to date, we congratulate all concerned that the State had the benefit of an administration as firm and enlightened as Gov. Bradford's has proved to be, and that in giving up his office, his hands are over to one also noted for his administrative capacity, and eminently capable of appreciating the new condition of affairs. Under such rule, the splendid future of Maryland is already guaranteed, so that when the war closes, and we enter upon an era of peace, we shall have least to do in getting ready for a more progressive career.

THE NEW CONSTITUTION.—We are induced to Messrs. J. Murphy & Co., Publishers, 102 Baltimore street, for a full copy of the New Constitution of Maryland in book form, and we would call the attention of our readers to their advertisement in today's issue, in relation to the supplement to the Maryland Code to be brought out under their supervision forthwith, along with the debates and proceedings of the Maryland Constitutional Convention.
