"STATE SOVEREIGNTY" BECOMING A FEW THE BANE OF ITS ADVOCATES.

In the multifarious troubles which have come upon the rebel leaders from disorganements, and the dissatisfaction of their people, growing out of invasions by the national troops, there is one great danger which imminently threatens them as the fruit of these invasions, and that is, a total breaking up of the whole concern, in the eagerness of each State to take care of itself. Whilst, as yet, no State has, as such, made any formal proposition to give in, to make peace with the Federal Government, there are plenty of individuals in them all, who are doing what they can venture upon to lead in that direction; and the result is, that at last the leaders at Richmond have come to believe in "unity," in the concentration of all powers in their own hands, and will not—as when the States professed to "secede" separately,—hear of their acting for themselves now, even under the terrible pressure that is coming upon them.

And so many have been these demonstrations in State Legislatures and in the rebel Congress, that we might easily name members who are known to be ready to do almost anything for the sake of "reconstruction," convinced after four years of wholesale bloodshed and waste of means that the whole thing is a bad speculation. And however they were clamorous at first of the largest liberty in allowing States South to speak for themselves in order to break up the old Union, now that the rebel Confederacy, the sham unity is threatened, they can parade any number of unanswerable reasons why the "State Rights" doctrine of four years ago never ought implanted where it is aimed for it at present. Abounding in ingenious logic to show this, it is really amusing to go over their arguments, now. The Richmond Sentinel—described as the organ of Jeff Davis—besides its constant "watch that they are not blown up with their own magazines" and as a specimen of the reasoning employed against the right of "separate State action," we propose to quote briefly from a late issue. It says:

"In truth, nothing could be more fatal than the adoption of the plan of ... That it would be flagrantly ... is not to be affirmed, ... it really admitted."

Who would suppose now, that this argument came from a set of men, who insisted that the old Constitution contained within itself provisions for its own dissolution? Some there who could see in the old Union only a mere temporary compact, to be dissolved at the mere dictum of any member of it? They have come now to see things quite from a different stand point; in fact, they have wheeled short around and when the evils of disunion come to bear on themselves. As viewed from Richmond, "States Rights" is fast becoming what the principle of "secession" is with those around it is getting rapidly cleared in regard to fallacies once so attractive. Soon there will be a revolution was to be set on foot.

At how little further in regard to this matter. We have heard, in brotherly, that ... of officials for "reconstruction" ... sentiments in this regard has become so distant for at Richmond that he has quite lost caste with the other conspirators.

The Jeff. Davis organ seems to make this quotation from what follows: We ... from referring to the "plan of State ... "

Mr. Stephens, in fact, looks to the ... of Congress and the President ... the Union, but it is a new ... with every appearance from those who ... are constantly championing States ... to teach that Congress ... the limits of the Constitution, ... the usurpation or abandonment ... powers, and that the Confederate Government, the mere creature, can confer ... and privileges upon the sovereign States. If State sovereignty were ... now it would be from ... with caresses."

Now all this would be laughable, if it were not sad, when we think of what the ... misery concerning "State sovereignty" has cost both sections, but especially the weaker, yet attempts to keep the dead embers to the flame. Impossible to make of it meat and poison at the same time, the object of them begin now to see the gross folly of which they have been guilty, and propose to make of that fallacy which has been so fatal to the peace of the whole continent a means to disintegrate and break up the infernal despotism which has been the product of it at Richmond. The loyal engineers of the rebel ... see this now plainly enough, and they cry out at the administration of their own contrivance. Making use of "State sovereignty" to bring about division, they at once discard it when it had served their turn, as witness their tyranny over North Carolina; but now when such rule can no longer be tolerated, when ruin impends over them, if they permit longer the guillance of Jeff Davis, why "State sovereignty comes" in once more when the "reconstructionist" practically says to them:

"The villainy you teach me, I will execute."

Well, we see plainly at last the upshot of all this; we discern what was only conjectured four years ago. Building their fabric of despotism on the sand, or rather undermining it with powder, we appreciate the efforts of the duped amongst them to blow it into the air along with those who were most active in attempting to re-establish it. We all know it would soon have perished had it been left to itself, unless its fate could have been postponed by the institution of a military despotism: but with the latter crushed from the outside, broken up by the national forces, why the whole perishes only a little sooner, and goes down a pitiable and revolting spectacle for the whole earth.

[COMMUNICATED.]

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

We are gratified to learn that our citizens are to have an opportunity on next Tuesday evening, of listening to the distinguished pulpit orator, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, in the Maryland Institute.

The reputation, character, and public services of this man, we doubt not, will fill the Institute to its utmost capacity with the most intelligent and refined of the citizens of Baltimore.

It is proper that it should be known that Mr. Beecher comes to favor us with an address under circumstances most creditable to himself. The most urgent solicitations and the most liberal offers of compensation had failed to induce him to ... this burden upon himself, in addition to the many heavy ones he was already bearing; but when an association without means, struggling to accomplish a most needed work, appealed to him for aid, he at once responded favorably, and comes to their assistance without fee or reward.

Mr. Beecher's reputation as an orator is world-wide. There is no man in our country who for the last fifteen years has been so constantly in the public eye, and who has so seldom disappointed the high expectations of the country. But aside from all his labors for freedom and humanity with voice and pen at home, he became a national benefactor, in the widest meaning of that term, when he visited England as America's champion in 1862. At that most critical period of our fate, threatened as we were by foreign complications, he threw himself with his great reputation and ability into the breach, and with a courage and a power which all the rebel emissaries combined could not resist, he triumphantly vindicated to England and the world, the justice of our country's cause, the certainty of our country's final success.

We trust he will have such an audience and such a greeting as shall satisfy him that Baltimoreans are not insensible to the obligations of the nation to him.

LETTER FROM FORT KEARNEY.

FORT KEARNEY, Nebraska Territory, Jan. 13, 1865.—For the last week great excitement prevailed here. On the 7th inst., about (1,500) fifteen hundred Camanche and Cheyenne warriors, attacked the garrison at Julesburg Colorado Territory, 165 miles west of this place, but in this sub-District. The garrison numbered 65 effective men, Company "F," 7th Iowa Cavalry, under command of Captain N. J. O'Brien. The fight lasted near two hours, when the Indians retreated to the Bluffs. The only thing that saved the garrison was their having two mountain howitzers, which they used with a telling effect. One loss, fifteen soldiers killed, and one wounded, five citizens killed. The enemy's loss thirty-five known to be killed, and many wounded—number unknown. The troops of this sub District are now organizing and concentrating at Fort Cottonwood, 65 miles west of here, Gen. Mitchell commanding. Most of the garrisons are evacuated.

And old hunter and "trapper" came here on the 10th inst. He states that he came across a camp of 1,500 lodges encamped on the Republican River 160 miles south west of this place—and according to the statements of "trappers" and men acquainted with the habits of the Indians, they number invariably between 4 and 6 warriors to the lodge. It undoubtedly seems to be their intention and object to get possession of this road and stop the travel going west. The Overland stages cannot proceed further than Fort Cottonwood. All mails stop at this place. There is near 25 sacks of mail marked for Utah and California here, which has accumulated in the last two or three days.

How soon the road will be open for travel I cannot tell. It is a question of time. It is the intention of General Mitchell to attack the Indians in their village and inflict a decisive blow on them. The Colorado Chivington's, of the 1st Colorado, (which I presume you have heard of ere this,) seems to have exasperated them, and they are seeking revenge. I will write you again and endeavor to keep you posted on the movements of the expedition. Very respectfully,

J. L. McK.

Repeal of the Paper Duty—Vote in the House.

A Washington dispatch, of the 23d, says: Mr. Washburne's motion to-day, springing the question of repealing the paper duty, took the House by surprise. Messrs. Kasson, Blair, Pendleton and Mallory had been at work in the Ways and Means Committee, trying to secure a report in favor of the repeal, or at least a modification of the duty, but Washburne determined to cut the knot of delay by bringing in an independent resolution and bringing the members square up to the question. The paper monopolists did very well, and after they saw the House was two to one against them, they still persisted in filibustering under the lead of Judge Spaulding, of Ohio, Farnsworth, of Illinois, and Bromall, of Pennsylvania, who, together with Rice, of Massachusetts, were the conspicuous advocates of this tax on knowledge, and defenders of the paper maker's monopoly. Several members voted against the repeal on the principle of opposing any important legislation forced through under the previous question. The vote does not, therefore, show the full strength of the House in favor of the repeal. The paper makers are in fine, and are exceedingly active in lobbying. They will now concentrate their whole force on the Senate, where the friends of the repeal will also need to last a especial attention. The vote for repeal was 97 against 40.

CIRCULATION OF NEWSPAPERS.—A recent article on the question of repealing the profitless duty on imported paper, makes the following remarks on the great increase in the newspaper business in New York:

The newspapers and other periodicals of our country have increased immensely within the last ten years, and most largely of all since the beginning of the war. Ten years ago, the whole amount of business done by the wholesale news agents did not probably exceed in amount the sum of $750,000 yearly. At present the cash receipts of the American News Company, in this city, for the sale of newspapers, magazines, books and stationery, for the eleven months ending with the 31st of December last, have reached the sum of $2,220,572 58. We learn from the office of that company that probably forty millions of newspapers were handled within that time by persons in the employ of the company, of whom seventy were constantly occupied in the getting them in, wrapping, distributing and shipping them. For wrapping paper and twine with which to pack this enormous mass, the company paid twelve thousand dollars.

☞ The sum of $65,043 has been received at the marble quarries at Lee, Mass., for material for the extension of the Capitol at Washington.

Expanding the Lungs.

Step out into the purest air you can find, stand perfectly erect, with the head and shoulders back, and then, fixing the lips as though you were going to whistle, draw the air through the nostrils into the lungs. When the chest is about full, raise the arms, keeping them extended, with the palms of the hands down, as you suck in the air, so as to bring them over the head just as the lungs are quite full. Then drop the thumbs inward, and, after gently forcing the arms backward, and the chest open, reverse the process by which you draw your breath, till the lungs are entirely empty. This process should be repeated three or four times a day. It is the best expectorant in the world. We know a gentleman, the measure of whose chest has been increased some three inches during as many months.

☞ The Poe's of Boston are annually full of permanent boarders and transient guests this winter. A large number of wealthy families from the country have taken up their winter residences in the city, and public and private accommodations of the first class are eagerly taken at nearly double the former prices.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF BALTIMORE, IN EQUITY.—Martha A. Bell vs. Edward Bell.—The object of this suit is to procure a decree to sell the real estate of which Lewis Bell died seized and possessed for the payment of debts. The bill of complaint states that on the 31st day of July, eighteen hundred and fifty-five, the said Lewis Bell departed this life intestate, leaving him surviving his widow, the complainant, and their two children, and that the said Lewis Bell was at the time of his death seized and possessed of certain real estate, consisting of a lot of ground on the west side of Howard, between Lombard and Pratt streets, in the city of Baltimore, and that the said defendant has since the death of the said Lewis Bell intermarried with the complainant, and has lived with and been supported by her earnings. That the defendant has not resided in the city of Baltimore or State of Maryland for the last year, and is not a resident of this State. And that it is not now a resident thereof; that in the month of June, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, the said defendant abandoned the complainant, and that such abandonment was continued uninterruptedly for more than three years, and is deliberate and final and beyond reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

It is therefore ordered this 24th day of January, 1865, that the said complainant cause a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the city of Baltimore, once in each of four successive weeks before the 20th day of February next, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, and warn him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 20th day of May, next to answer the premises and show cause, if any he has or can have why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.

The METAPHYSICAL DISCOVERY will reach every spot that dregs and instruments will reach, and thousands of places besides. The highly nervous, the weak, the delicate, impoverished with death—consequently must sooner or later sink into oblivion.

In all the universe there is nothing exercised by so much ignorance, as the faculty. Ignorance and darkness connected with the physical and mental constitution of the race.

This sad state of things is the result of ignorance and blindness on the part of those who proceed to assist nature health and life to the people, while in fact, the majority ignored from the system almost entirely. All Physicians find their existence in the sphynxes, and can never be understood apart from the same.

There are men who make a business of treating specific diseases. They prepare instruments too barbarous for the brute, with which to experiment on poor ailing victims, who have not strength, neither physically nor mentally, to undergo such butchering operations. Hardly a day passes but the human body always operates as if it was a machine, and the man must be a brave or fool who would attempt to handle the system inordinately, and keep any portion of it in order, when it is not in the machinery where to which they belong. All such practitioners treat the effects, but know nothing of the cause whatever. Thus the world is no better off than when it began.

The alarming condition of the people physically, especially the young, who are old with disease before they begin to find into life, together with the experience in battle, bereaved of dear friends, who have passed into untimely graves by being operated on.

These circumstances, with many others which might be mentioned, are an irresistible appeal to the people to investigate the merits of every case who has the life and health of themselves and their loved ones in his hands, and is continually administering medicine which the patient is totally ignorant of its nature, and ignorant of the circumstances the people have a right to demand of every such physician to furnish them with a chart of his character, that they may know his qualifications and ability. Indeed every physician should be compelled to have it hung up in his office at all hours. It is only through this channel that the public can have any safety and guarantee
