The three gentlemen who left yesterday were therefore selected by the President. and they have gone without formal credentials, and merely as informal agents to see whether it be possible to place a conserve for attaining so desirable a result. It is possible that success may attend these efforts, but wisdom and prudence demand that we indulge in no confident expectations on the subject, and that we relax not one moment in every preparation for the ensuing campaign. From the choice made by the President, we may rest assured that no means will be left untried to effect peace, if it be possible to obtain it. But if the three eminent citizens selected for the purpose shall fail in their attempt, one good result will certainly have been reached. All discordant counsels on this subject will have become reconciled and it will no longer to in the power of the factions or the timid to persuade the people that peace can be reached by any path other than that opensifor us by stout bearts. and stout hands. FROM GEORGIA.
